PEACE TREATY TURNED DOWN BY KEMALISTS

BY LARRY RUE
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune.]

ANGORA, March 1.—A resume of the opinion of the Turkish parliament, government and the press indicates clearly that the economic and financial clauses which caused the rupture of the Lausanne conference will never be acceptable to Turkey.

"If France refuses to sign unless these clauses are included the treaty will be dead," a high official said.

Despite the Moslem sabbath tomorrow, the Assembly will hold an extraordinary session and it is expected that it will complete a note offering counter-proposals and demanding the discussion of the differences at a new conference.

BECOMING RECONCILED

Although Ismet Pasha in discussing the Lausanne conference was heckled for giving up Karagatch and granting concessions to the Allies without getting similar concessions, the Deputies are becoming more reconciled as the discussion continues and it is felt that certain Cabinet recommendations adopted as a compromise satisfying the economic pretendents of the country are gaining favor.

If a war starts Turkey will say that it was merely over dollars and cents. Arbitration by America is still being suggested, but this proposal is not gaining any new advocates.

CONFERENCE FORECAST
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, March 1.—A new Turkish conference, at which peace probably will finally be arranged, is foreshadowed in British government dispatches from Constantinople today.

It is now believed by British observers on the spot that the Angora Assembly will put forward a revised treaty, in which the bulk of the Lausanne treaty will be accepted, but slight changes made on territorial and financial clauses, while the economic clauses will be served for later discussion. It is also believed that they will ask that a new conference be held, and that the Allies will agree, strictly limiting, however, the scope of the discussions at the new meeting.

CUBA INSULTS AMERICANS IN ISLE OF PINES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The conflict of opinion between American and Cuban residents of the Isle of Pines—due to their opposition and support respectively, of the long-slumbering treaty which would place the island officially under control of Cuba—culminated on Lincoln's birthday, it was reported in Washington today, in peremptory commands by the Cuban police forbidding the display of the American flag on residences or business houses.

The State Department today said that no official report of the incident had been received by it as yet, but it was acknowledged that there had been decided protest recently made by American citizens against the permanent transfer of the island to Cuban sovereignty and that any disturbance which may have taken place, might be traced to this cause.

ORDER ENFORCED

The specific charge made by a resident of Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, which has been privately received in Washington is that, on Lincoln's birthday the Cuban officials issued and enforced an order that all the Stars and Stripes displayed in honor of the American hero's birthday should be taken down. The odrer was delivered to the homes of American residents by Cuban police, it is charged, specifying in each instance that the flags should be taken down or the offender would be arrested.

One residence at which the police called was that of A. L. Grider, an American citizen and Civil War veteran, who was flying the American flag from the roof of his house in honor of his former Commander-in-Chief. He was told that it would have to be taken down or he would be arrested. He complied with the order but is said to have forwarded a protest to Washington which the State Department says has not yet been received.

AMERICANS PROTEST

Officials of the National Bank and Trust Company, who had draped an American flag on the door of their business premises, were also notified that the penalty for not removing the banner would be arrest. They refused to comply with the order and when the information as to the incident was sent from Nueva Gerona, no arrest had been made. In the cases of several other American citizens the flags that had been flown at day were taken in under protest.

There is, in addition, the private reports say, a decided anti-American propaganda on the island, which is being actively fostered at mass meetings for Cubans, at which addresses demanding that the Isle of Pines be at once placed under full Cuban sovereignty, are the rule.

According to State Department estimates, there are about 10,000 American citizens resident of the Isle of Pines, mostly interested in the citrus industry. Since the close of the Spanish-American war the question of the title to the Isle of Pines has been in abeyance. There has been a treaty in the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate for the past decade providing for the recognition of the island as Cuban territory. It has been the subject of consideration at the present session of Congress, and since it has been dusted off, Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio has introduced a resolution requesting the government to negotiate for the cession of the island to the United States. Both the treaty and resolution are up to the present unacted upon.

Salt Lake Leaders Push Bill to Permit Sale of Cigarettes and Public Smoking

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SALT LAKE CITY, March 1.—While the Liberty League, despairing of positive action by the present Legislature, was perfecting plans for a State-wide organization to obtain the election two years hence of members of the Legislature pledged to repeal the Southwick anti-cigarette law, the cause of the recent sensationa arrestsin this and other Utah centers, the Senate was considering a compromise proposal drafted by Salt Lake City business and professional men, lawyers and ministers, which is said to have the backing of the conservative element in ecclesiastical circles.

This substitute for the Standish bill, which proposed the repeal of the law, was introduced by Senator Peters, referred to the Public Affairs Committee and quickly acted upon by it. The bill was favorably reported and placed on the calendar for second reading.

Every effort will be made to press it to a final vote in the Senate and send it to the House before adjournment, seven days hence.

BANS TOBACCO ADS

The substitute agrees with the Standish bill in allowing the sale of cigarettes in the State under a tax and heavy permit fees. It differs from the Standish bill in increasing the license fees for cigarette dealers and in prohibiting all forms of tobacco advertising. Under the Southwick Act only cigarette advertising is prohibited.

The substitute bill would allow smoking in public places which have been set aside for that purpose.

Developments today disposed of reports that at a secret meeting at the Alta Club, representatives of the dominant church expressed sympathy with the movement for modification of the Southwick law. On the contrary, it is known that leaders of the church are opposed to touching the present law.

Edgar L. Newhouse, J. C. Lynch and Ernest Bamberger were subpoenaed today to appear as witnesses against A. N. McKay, general manager of the Tribune, whose trial for alleged smoking in a public place will begin tomorrow in City Judge Noel A. Pratt's court. Newhouse, Lynch and Bamberger were taken into custody for alleged violation of that section of the Southwick law which prohibits smoking in a public place.

Nelson G. Vandyke, arrested Tuesday for smoking in a public place, was given until tomorrow to plead when he appeared for arraignment in Judge Pratt's court. Vandyke is proprietor of a cafe at 56 East First South street and was at his place of business and smoking when placed under arrest by Deputy Sheriff Mike Mauss. Signs were displayed announcing that "this is a smoking-room," and Vandyke's arrest was made to test the law.

FIVE HUSBANDS NOT ENOUGH

Woman Admits That Many But Federal Agents Say They Can Prove Ten, All Alive and Undivorced

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—That the estimate of five husbands for Mrs. W. E. (Pauline) Flinn was the conservative, and that they expect to prove the 36-year-old woman was actually married ten times, all of the husbands being alive, was the assertion yesterday of Department of Justice operatives to Federal Commissioner Kruell.

"We have only started on this case," the operatives declared at the opening of the hearing, when Mrs. Flinn was brought up on charges of unlawfully obtaining soldier allotments and government transportation through bigamous marriages to Franklin E. Boyer and W. E. Flinn, both of whom were Army officers during the war.

The case of the much-married woman has attracted the attention of the War Department in Washington, word reaching Chief Esola of the Department of Justice to protect the interests of Lieut. Boyer, one of the husbands, who is now en route from the East to San Francisco. Boyer, it is understood, is desirous of obtaining the custody of his daughter by Mrs. Flinn, Frances Ellen, 8 years of age.

Mrs. Flinn, when taken into custody Wednesday, admitted that she had been married five times and divorced but once. She confessed that her first marriage venture occurred in England when she was 16 years of age. She was twice married in Canada and twice in the United States, she said.

According to information furnished Chief Esola of the Department of Justice, Mrs. Flinn at present is receiving money from an Army sergeant of the name of J. C. Schubert, who is stationed in Nebraska. Under what name the remittances are received by Mrs. Flinn the authorities are unable to say, they stated.

It is likely that a Mrs. Alice Roper will be called to be questioned relative to her interest in the affair of Mrs. Flinn, it was stated today. Mrs. Roper, it was reported to the Department of Justice, has "guilty knowledge" of Mrs. Flinn's matrimonial activities. It was reported to the department that Mrs. Roper accompanied Mrs. Flinn to San Diego and there advised her as to what method of procedure to pursue relative to her matrimonial entanglements with Army officers.

In default of $1500 bond, Mrs. Flinn was remanded to the custody of United States Marshal Holohan to await the action of the Federal grand jury.

BETROTHED STARS HAPPILY REUNITED AFTER SQUABBLE

BY H. B. K. WILLIS

Pola Negri is engaged again.

For the second time in less than four months Charlie Chaplin last night placed a platinum engagement ring upon the finger from which Pola stripped the precious bauble yesterday afternoon and informed him she could never be more than a devoted friend to him.

A paragraph appearing in a morning newspaper here yesterday quoting Pola's "Sharlie" as saying he was "too poor to get married just now" precipitated the King of Comedy from the ranks of the world's leading fiances into the limbo of the jilted. This Miss Negri admitted to The Times at 12:05 this morning.

Pola Negri

As the Hollywood newsies were filling the air last evening with their piping cries of "Pola's given Charlie the air," "Sharlie" wended his way to the home of Pola.

In his vest pocket, just over a heart which must have been missing on a couple of cylinders, "Sharlie" carried a clipping.

"I am too poor to get married just now. This is a working world and we've all got to stay busy and keep away from climaxes of sentiment," the newspaper excerpt read.

Arriving at Miss Negri's home "Sharlie" was ushered in.

LONG, LONG TALK

A long conference ensued. What transpired will never be known, save that a reconciliation was effected. Even Miss Negri's maid is ignorant of the details.

"Sharlie," however, climbed into his limousine just before midnight, once again a prospective benedict.

Pola retired with the large and sparkling emblem of betrothal winking at her agent from the proper finger.

Half an hour later a Times reporter leaned heavily on her doorbell. He continued to lean until the tinkle of the bell became hardly more than a feeble buzz.

FORGETS LIGHT CURTAIN

Then the front door was unlocked and opened enough to allow a maid to risk the tip of her nose in the nippy night air. She wore a night gown of the vintage of '98 and was utterly oblivious of the fact her infinitely proper behavior was discounted by the fact that the front-door curtains were but a film.

She was horrified when the reporter asked to see Miss Negri.

"Miss Negri has gone to bed. If I should awaken her at this time of the morning I'd get thrown out on my ear," was her indignant response.

MAN WINS VERBAL DUEL

Then ensued the first verbal duel between opposite sexes that ever was won by the man. After five minutes of unctious argument impressing upon the maid the fact that coal heavers and kings must have the news today if a reconciliation had been brought about, she placed one bare foot upon the other and showed signs of relenting.

"Well, I can't awaken Miss Negri, but a reconciliation has been effected," she stated.

"How do you know?" the reporter parried. "Did Miss Negri tell you?"

"No-o-o-o, Miss Negri didn't tell me, but I know," was her confident response.

APPEARS IN VELVET

Then ensued another short parley, followed by the capitulation of the maid. The door was closed. Soon she reappeared with a red velvet something wrapped about her.

"Miss Negri has gone to bed, but says to tell you a reconciliation has been reached," she said on her second appearance.

Then followed a conversation carried on with Miss Negri through the medium of her maid, who went shuttling back and forth in her bare feet. This conversation brought out the following facts:

Pola and "Sharlie" have had several tiffs in the last fortnight.

Pola saw the quotation attributed to Charlie in the paper.

She became piqued and broke the engagement.

"SHARLIE" EXPLAINS

Charlie called upon her and explained he was never guilty of saying he was "too poor to marry" Pola.

Miss Negri said the newspaper story was a "lie."

She said Charlie said it was a lie. Her English vocabulary does not yet include the words he probably used.

The existence of a strong drug ring is charged in the resolution, which characterizes the crime of selling narcotics more reprehensible than murder.

POLA, CHARLIE HAVE MADE UP

Comedy King Explains and All is Again Well

Denies He Said He Was Too Poor to Marry

Pola as a consequence is going to marry Charlie, and much sooner than they had planned, but the date is as yet indefinite.

Miss Negri is very happy again. The maid said Mr. Chaplin also seemed happy when he left.

As a result everyone is happy today except, perhaps, the reporter whom Charlie accuses of authorship of his "too-poor-to-get-married" statement.

When Pola broke her engagement to Chaplin yesterday and the dollar sign loomed large in the wreck of their romance, a supposed plea of poverty from a man said to be worth millions, a flash of pique from her whose wealth is but herself alone, the betrothal of the King of Comedy and the Queen of Tragedy was temporarily at an end.

A twisted bit of paper, bearing seven lines and Pola Negri's signature, fluttered from her hand and Chaplin's congo was given—a subtle rebuke to him for his supposed careless comment on the delay of their nuptials—a proud woman's renunciation of the lover to whose wealth she could not bring an equal dower.

"I consider I am too poor to marry Charles Chaplin. He needs to marry a wealthy woman and he should have no difficulty in finding one in the United States—the richest and most beautiful country in the world.

"Therefore I give Mr. Chaplin back his freedom and release him from his engagement. I wish him the best of luck and I will always be his devoted friend.

[Signed] "POLA NEGRI."

So read the typewritten wisp of tissue paper which Pola gave to the press.

POLA GREETS SCRIBES

Pola made her decision yesterday. She shunned the camera. Huddled in a chair in an office at the Lasky lot she awaited the coming of reporters in the late afternoon. With nervous fingers she twisted and smoothed alternately her ultimatum to her "poor little rich man."

She gave each reporter her hand. A twisted little smile accompanied her greeting. Then she handed them Mr. Chaplin's coup de grace. As they read it she sat brooding in her chair. Even her averted head did not hide the tears that came welling up in her eyes. The knuckles of her slender hands went as white as the kid of the long gloves rolled back to her wrists.

She rose as the newspaper men finished reading her statement.

"Please, sat ees all sat I have to say," she said with a catch in her voice. "Please do not ask me any questions."

Superb actress though she is, she could not hide the quaver of her words, nor control her tremulous lips—lips as vividly scarlet in contrast to the pallor of her face as blood on snow.

CONTRASTS OTHER DAY

"Today ees not much like sat ozzer day at Pebble Beach—

"Zere are a thousand reasons. Zair ees no othair way.

"This is terrible, terrible—

"Please take me to my car. I am tired."

She put out an imploring hand to Al Wilkie, her publicity man. With the other hand she threw her blue velvet cape about her throat—a sigh, a shudder and she was gone.

Her car and driver were waiting outside.

It was very tragic. Especially so to one who saw the gayety, the abandon, the happiness which claimed her on that other day about five weeks ago when she snuggled on the shoulder of Charlie Chaplin in her apartment at Del Monte Lodge, at picturesque Pebble Beach.

The sun shone happily then. The waters of Monterey Bay were blue. Birds sang. The apartment was full of flowers.

REPORTERS ABASHED

Yesterday a drizzling rain outside and a lowering twilight necessitated light from Charles Eyton's desk lamp. Abashed at looking into tear-bathed eyes mirroring an anguished heart the four men hearing Pola Negri end her romance were self-conscious and scowling.

Chaplin saw no one yesterday afternoon.

Friends were unable to see him or talk to him. Reporters got no response from his front door bell or from his telephone. His home in Hollywood admitted no one.

Mr. Chaplin is very sensitive. Riches and fame have not made him callous. He thrilled to Pola at Del Monte. He looked the acme of happiness as he stood with his arm about her as she announced their engagement. From his happiness then his dejection now can be imagined.

Douglas Fairbanks, intimate of Charles Chaplin's, was shown Miss Negri's statement ending her betrothal to his friend.

"Hell!" said "Doug," as he read it the first time.

"Well! Waddye-think-o'-that?" he said as he re-read the terse message to the press.

On November 25 of last year The Times sent around the world the news that Charles Chaplin, most famous of film comedians, and Pola Negri, Europe's noted tragic screen actress, had become betrothed.

Two months later, Mr. Chaplin, with Miss Negri at his side, verified The Times' announcement. At that time he said he was the happiest man in the world, and he looked it.

He probably looked the same last night, but he could not be seen nor interviewed.

MEASURE ADOPTED BY HOUSE IS SENT BACK FOR MINOR ADJUSTMENTS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Voigt filled-milk bill was passed late today by the Senate and sent to the House for adjustment of minor differences.

The bill would prohibit interstate shipment of condensed or evaporated milk made from skimmed milk and oil substitutes for butter fat, such as cottonseed and cocoanut oil.

Dairy organizations, supported by the farm blocs in both Senate and House, were behind the measure, which was passed by the House last May, after introduction by Representative Voigt, Republican, Wisconsin.

There was no record vote by the Senate, the bill being passed by unanimous consent.

Schindler is forming a committee of American business men to handle the funds received from the performances. All the receipts, minus the expenses, will be used for charity work in Oberammergau and neither the players nor the promoters will receive a cent of profit. The players have modified their strict stand against the movies and will allow a film of their act to be made.

The players who have signed the contract are all under salary now, while rehearsing for their American tour. The money is keeping the village from utter ruin as the Passion Play last summer, while an artistic success, was a financial failure.

Anton Lang, who played the Savior, received 31,000 marks for eleven months of rehearsing and acting. After nearly a year of toil he was not able to buy a pair of shoes which cost 30,000 marks in Oberammergau.

Schindler states that the cost of the American tour will be $250,000. The Bavarian government has interposed no objections to the trip which will take the simple-hearted villagers from Oberammergau for the first time in the history of the world-renowned town's pledge to God that every ten years it would give a religious spectacle.

All London Awaiting Next Move; Official Comment is Expected

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, March 1.—All London was discussing today Ambassador Harvey's bombshell at the Pilgrims' dinner last night when he asserted the United States has never asked Great Britain to guarantee a dollar of loans made to other countries, and that Great Britain never had done so.

It is believed the utterance, which, in effect, gives the polite lie to a statement by Lord Balfour several months ago, will call forth some comment in official quarters.

The Ambassador's comment was made the more pointed by the presence of the Prince of Wales, who dropped in unexpectedly. It was the Prince's first public appearance at dinner since he returned from his Indian trip. He declined to make a speech or to be toasted, saying he had come simply as a member of the society.

Mr. Harvey said he hoped the British government would remove the "misapprehension" created by the Balfour statement, and London is awaiting the next move with interest.

decisions bearing on the administration on the Rhineland and the Ruhr by the armies of occupation are announced at French headquarters here. The first is the final step in giving necessary powers to the French and Belgian commanders to administer the German railroads, and the second provides for the collection of an internal revenue tax on tobacco and alcoholic beverages.

In the decree promulgating these decisions the Inter-Allied High Commission's right to operate the railroads along the left bank of the Rhine is turned over formally to the army authorities. The Cologne bridgehead area occupied by the British is not included in this order.

The decree, which is effective immediately, sets forth that the taking over of the railroads is deemed necessary in the public interests in view of strikes by the German railroad employees and the unsettled conditions generally.

WOMAN ON TRIAL ASSERTS HE MISREPRESENTED COMPANY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 1.—The trial of Mrs. Myra Cleveland Hill Sims, charged with grand larceny in connection with the sale of World Radio Corporation stock to three women in a Turkish bath, was halted today while a cry was raised for Snell Smith, asserted by several witnesses to have represented himself as confidential private secretary to Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Taking the stand in her own defense, Mrs. Sims declared she had been led to believe by Smith that Mr. Hoover could be induced to take the presidency of the company for $250,000 worth of gift stock but that she had never contended he actually had accepted. The company, she added, had gone on the rocks with her arrest, "because these big men who were directors just didn't want to be connected with it after that."

Mrs. Sims, who said the World Radio Corporation was designed to sell wireless apparatus in retail stores throughout the world, described a journey to Washington last July during which she said Smith informed her Mr. Hoover had declined the position and Julius H. Barnes, head of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, had personally told her he did not wish the post.

Smith, she asserted, had promised to arrange a meeting with Mr. Hoover, but when she appeared in Washington, told her the secretary was so busy at a Cabinet meeting he could not see her.

THREE NEW CONSULATES

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Jugo-Slav Legation announced today that its government had decided to open consulates at Pittsburg, Denver and Cleveland, in addition to those already existing at New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

PROPOSE RAIL COMBINE WEST

include the Union Pacific, C. M. & St. P., Chicago and Alton, Frisco, Texas and Pacific, International Great Northern, Chicago, Milwaukee and Gary, Chicago, Terre Haute and Southeastern, Minneapolis and St. Louis, and the Los Angeles and Salt Lake.

Mr. Holden said that the tentative plan of the commission must be revised so as to provide for either smaller or larger systems than those proposed to preserve competition and to permit of future developments. He said each western system should have access to the Pacific Coast territory and to the Gulf of Mexico, as well as the Great Lakes.

None of the western systems proposed, Mr. Holden declared, would approach the volume of traffic now being handled on either the New York Central or Pennsylvania systems.

GET BETTER SERVICE

Mr. Holden expressed the opinion that large systems of the type proposed would soon prove to be in the interest of better service, more flexible car supply and eliminate a great deal of delay and expense, which was now inevitable because of so many separate properties, interchange and inspection points and duplicate services and facilities.

"I think I have shown that groups of the size suggested are not substantially larger in geographical extent nor in volume of business nor other features taxing management than features of the tentative plan and precedents in present-day operation justify," he said.

"It appears to be the presumption of the law that the consolidation of railroads into a limited number of systems is in the public interest and by this is meant that larger systems will be productive of better and more efficient transportation and greater economy in operation. The history of American railroads has been one of steady development into larger operations and larger systems, although for a time delayed and impeded by the policy of the Sherman Act, which now is in a measure behind us under the policy announced in the Transportation Act, and as recently interpreted in the Central Pacific decision. I do not believe that the full benefits which the public expects to secure through these consolidation provisions will arrive unless a courageous and comprehensive view is adopted.

"Finally, I predict that the courage and ability of American railroad management, if permitted to do so, will demonstrate the value of great western systems similar in type to those I have suggested and I offer these suggestions in the belief that they are sound in principle and with the hope that they may be of assistance to the commission in the solution of the difficult problem that confronts it."

ish Nationalist leader, declared at today's session of the Grand National Assembly that the issue of peace was in the hands of the Allies, who had only to recognize Turkey's judicial and economic independence.

The most important passage in Mustapha Kemal's speech in the Assembly was:

"We went to Lausanne with a sincere and earnest desire for peace. Our delegates defended our claims with patience and firmness. A definite result has not yet issued from the conference.

"The powers only have to recognize our financial, economic and judicial independence in order to assure the peace of the world. Peace is in the Allies' hands. We await the result whatever it may be, with calmness and strength. It is necessary to end the constant adjournments and terminate the negotiations as rapidly as possible."

HARVEY IS FLATTERING TO WALES

Ambassador Calls Heir to British Throne "White Prince" in Speech

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, March 1.—Ambassador Harvey at the dinner of the American University Union tonight eschewed politics and devoted himself to drawing a felicitous parallel between the present Prince of Wales and the first chivalrous "Black Prince" born more than 600 years ago, "when Americans, as they are sometimes now, were called savages and were quite outside the broadcasting area."

"Wherefore," said the Ambassador, "the Black Prince never came to see us, even did not know that we were there, but from the moment the present Prince paid us a visit and crept so manfully into our respect and so boyishly into our hearts, we have felt an increasing desire to acquire some portion of proprietorship in him.

"One may be as black as the ace of spades, yet a white man, the real attributes are a pure mind, a gentle disposition, a sweet nature, a glorious spirit of honesty, truth and courage beyond measure and a heart of gold.

"That is our definition of a white man, whether prince or pauper. In this instance you know him to be a prince. So far as America is concerned let us designate His Royal Highness as 'The White Prince.'"

As such Ambassador Harvey called on those assembled to pledge the Prince's long life and happiness, and added: "God bless the Prince of Wales."

NOTED FRIEND OF ERIN DIES

W. Bourke Cockran Victim of Apoplexy

Held High Rank in Councils of Tammany Hall

Mondell Calls Him Foremost Orator in Congress

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Death today stilled the voice of W. Bourke Cockran, conceded to have been one of the most eloquent orators who ever spoke from the floor of Congress.

The famous speaker, a Democratic Representative from New York, who had matched his powers with many of the greatest of his time, died at 7:10 o'clock this morning of apoplexy. Last night he delivered a vigorous denunciation of the farm credits legislation pending in the House and later he celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary with an old-fashioned birthday party, likened by those who attended to the gatherings of childhood days.

Apparently in the best of health, Mr. Cockran repeatedly remarked to those about him that he "never had felt better."

After his guests had departed, and while he was chatting with Mrs. Cockran, he was stricken with a headache and soon lapsed into unconsciousness.

Last rites of the Catholic church were administered shortly before he died.

News of Mr. Cockran's death stunned his colleagues in Congress and throughout the day at the Capitol stories were told of his remarkable facilities of expression.

POWER AT CONVENTIONS

There were many high lights in the life of Mr. Cockran but those which have stood out in great relief were his oratorical efforts at Democratic national conventions. And, of these, perhaps the most remembered by the present generation was the crossing of swords with William J. Bryan at the 1920 party gathering in San Francisco. There he met the Commoner, himself made famous by a convention speech, in a memorable battle over the proposal to put a dry plank in the platform.

Mr. Cockran placed in nomination for President Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, and when he had concluded he received one of the most remarkable ovations in American political history. With his massive head covered with snow-white hair, Mr. Cockran was a picturesque figure and was well-nigh invincible in debate.

Members were reluctant to interrupt him when he began to speak because, as they explained, they preferred to listen.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the Republican leader, said today he was the greatest orator of his time.

BORN IN IRELAND

Some of the veteran's greatest efforts were directed toward the accomplishment of Irish freedom. He was born in Ireland and was able to describe the trials of his people from first-hand information.

Mr. Cockran's speeches were noteworthy in the House during the present session of Congress. He was an unrelenting opponent of prohibition laws, which, he said, were against all philosophy of government.

A few days ago, during the discussion which followed publication of Representative Upshaw's appeal to public officers to vote dry and drink dry, he held the close attention of the House for more than an hour as he spoke of the "disastrous consequences" that had followed throughout history all attempts to "make man moral by law."

W. Bourke Cockran

Notwithstanding his stand on prohibition, he was a close friend of Representative Volstead, author of the Prohibition Act, who was among the first to express regret at his death.

At his last public address, delivered last night, discussing the farm-credits bill, Mr. Cockran propounded his philosophy of the needs of the time.

HIS LAST SPEECH

"God knows," he said, "whether the world will succeed in freeing itself from the calamities that are multiplying around it, and the dangers that are constantly increasing in its pathway. But if it is to escape, it can be only one way—and that is by the employment of every pair of human hands with active industry on the soil or some product of the soil.

"When the day dawns that any number of citizens are taught to believe that there is a more rapid road to prosperity, to wealth, to possession of capital than the employment of industry and the exercise of self-denial; that a more rapid way is through the treasury by the complaisance, or the connivance of politicans, then the knell of this country's prosperity is sounded."

Mr. Cockran's death was reported to the House late today by Representative Riordan, of New York. Resolutions of regret were adopted and a committee of twenty members appointed to attend the funeral, which will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the St. Jean Babtiste Church in New York City. These members were named: Representative Kline, Sullivan, Riordan, Mott, Carew, Siegel, Griffin, Mead, Fish, TenEyck, Chandler, Fairchild and London of New York; Oliver, Alabama; Dale, Vermont; Tucker, Virginia; Linthicum, Maryland; Sabbath, Illinois, and Connally and Jones of Texas.

News of Mr. Cockran's removal from the activities of Congress cast a shadow on the House as it reassembled today to resume its considerations of the credits measure.

"I am shocked almost beyond expression," said Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader. "Mr. Cockran has been not only a nationally-known, but an internationally-known character for more than thirty years. He was one of the foremost orators of all the centuries."

Uncle Joe Cannon said Mr. Cockran was the "most graceful and forceful speaker," who had come to Congress in many years.

Another who expressed poignant regret was Representative Volstead, Republican, Minnesota, creator of the law that bears his name.

"I had a real respect for Mr. Cockran's ability. We did not agree on some things but we were good friends," he said.

The Foreign Affairs Committee adjourned out of respect for his memory and resolutions of regret were adopted.

HONORED BY TAMMANY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 1.—The flag on Tammany Hall where W. Bourke Cockran helped made much political history was half-masted today when news was received of his death.

John R. Voorhis, president of the board of elections, said Mr. Cockran's seat in the House of Representatives probably would remain vacant until the general election next November.

Mr. Cockran's death came as a shock to Tammany leaders, who had seen him here only a few days ago.

He was head of the Society of Tammany from 1905 to 1908, inclusive. He was chief adviser to Richard Croker, former chief of Tammany Hall, but was ousted from the Croker councils only to come back in 1905, as grand sachem.

After Charles F. Murphy had succeeded Croker, Cockran became chief adviser to Murphy, but split with him as he had with Croker. The Murphy-Cockran differences were soon patched up, however, and Mr. Cockran stood high in Wigwam circles at his death.

An early suffragist, Mr. Cockran took delight in answering the "henpeck" charges then hurled at all advocates of woman's rights by saying he was "hen-pecked and loved every peck."

His widow, the former Anna H. Ide, is a daughter of Henry C. Ide, former Governor-General of the Philippines and once Ambassador to Spain.

They were married here in November, 1908—Mr. Cockran's third marriage—as the result of a romance that grew out of the Taft party trip to the Philippines in 1905, which also was responsible for the wedding of Alice Roosevelt to Representative Longworth of Ohio.

PARIS FACED WITH HIGH-PRICED BREAD

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, March 1.—An increase of one sou in the price of bread, which would bring the price to 1 franc, 20 centimes, per kilo, was announced today by the prefect as being justified by the price of flour as reported by the Bread and Flour Commission. The announcement added, however, that it had been decided not to authorize an increased bread price for a few days, or until it was certain the price of flour was likely to remain up.

BOMB HOME OF HEAD OF FREE STATE

Clash With Irregulars at Clonmel Results in Many Lost by Both Sides

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, March 1.—Ireland had another hectic day in which the beautiful residence of Timothy Healy, Governor-General of the Free State, was destroyed by bomb and blaze.

From Clonmel comes the report of a violent armed encounter between Irish irregulars and Free State forces resulting in many casualties on both sides.

At Balina Free State troops captured fifty rebels after surrounding them.

It is reported here that Free State commanders have orders to run down every Republican leader, capturing, if possible, and destroying if necessary, his followers. The campaign is bearing fruit, as during the past few days many important leaders were captured, while others met death trying to escape.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

Britain Denies French Employ Black Troops

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, March 1.—At the request of the French War Office the British government issued a formal denial today that the French are using black troops in the Ruhr. The British newspapers, however, are printing photographs of black troops in occupied towns.

Nothing is known here of a report from Berlin that Bergmann and a delegation of German officials and financiers are coming to London to seek aid from the British government and bankers. If they do come it is impossible that they will get any satisfaction, as neither the government nor the bankers care to act until the Ruhr situation is cleared up.

BIRTH AT SEA CAUSES ALIEN QUOTA EXCESS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OMAHA (Neb.) March 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Moser Epstein, of Warsaw, Poland and family, including the baby born on the high seas, whose birth held up the family at Ellis Island because it exceeded by one person the February quota from Poland, and because it had no passport, today are on the way to Omaha. The immigration bureau decided to assign the baby to the Russian quota, according to dispatches from Washington sent to relatives of the Epsteins here, and thus solved the tangle which the baby's arrival caused.

HOSPITAL PLAN IS UNDER FIRE

Gen. Hines to Investigate California Project

Livermore Enterprise Will be Considered

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Gen. Hines, the new director of the Veterans' Bureau this afternoon promised Congressman Lineberger and Maj. Graupner of San Francisco to investigate the whole California hospitalization situation before proceeding further in the Livermore Hospital contracts, and to give full consideration to the plan for hospitalization submitted through Maj. Graupner in behalf of the California State Legion.

It was pointed out that Southern California had from 75 per cent to an even higher measure of the tubercular World War veterans and they should be cared for nearest to the greatest concentration. The fallacy of a free site in San Diego county was pointed out and the item of extra transportation for the men over a period of years showed that even with a free site the privilege of using it would be too extravagant to contemplate.

One of the obstacles to hospitalizing the soldiers is the avowed intention of the bureau to build a massive old-style hospital at Livermore and reject the more modern hollow brick bungalow system where eight to sixteen cases each can be handled in detached buildings with greater comfort and efficiency. The World's War veterans of California are committed to this method of construction both in the north and south and this was impressed on Gen. Hines.

Tomorrow afternoon Congressman Lineberger and Maj. Graupner will confer with President Harding and explain the progress which has been made on the problem since Congressman Lineberger last conferred with him.

Congressmen Curry and McLafferty are anxious to have the Livermore project go through as contemplated, but if this is done the additional funds necessary for new hospitals in the south will not be available unless some other source is discovered.

RULING HITS AUTHOR OF BIRTH BOOK

Court Decision Setback for Control Movement in England

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, March 1.—The birth-control movement which has made great progress in Great Britain in the last few years today sustained a judicial setback when the Lord Chief Justice gave a judgment in favor of author and publishers of a book which denounced the writings and activities of Dr. Marie Stopes, author of best sellers on birth-control matters, as "a monstrous campaign."

Yesterday a jury found the assertions made in the book to which Dr. Stopes took exception and which accused her of "experimenting on poor women" were defamatory, but true in substance and fact. Today the Lord Chief Justice, conceding Dr. Stopes's ability, sincerity and honesty of purpose, decided that ended the matter. Dr. Stopes, who will have to pay the costs of the proceedings, took leave to appeal.

Agents for the sale of one of Margaret Sanger's books on the same subject also are waiting the attention of the Appellate Court after the destruction of several hundred copies of the book, which action was ordered by a lower tribunal.

PALO ALTOAN WINS FIGHT FOR ESTATE

STANDARD OIL MILLIONS ARE INVOLVED IN EASTERN COURT ACTION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—James McDonald, Jr., of Palo Alto, Cal., is entitled to receive the residue of the estate of his father, James McDonald, Standard Oil man, according to a decision rendered yesterday by Chief Justice McCoy of the District Supreme Court. The undistributed portion of the estate is valued at $2,500,000.

The court held that the trust attempted by the testator tied up the estate beyond the limit of the law against perpetuities and was therefore void. The trust provision, which was attacked by the son, provided annuities for each of his children. Mr. McDonald brought suit to construe the will. The trustees, Lawrence Maxwell of Cincinnati, and the Fulton Trust Company of New York, opposed the view taken by the plaintiff.

An appeal probably will be noted to the Court of Appeals by the trustees in the interest of the children.

GOV. HUNT IN BATTLE ARRAY

Arizona Executive Strikes in New Quarter

University Board Members Virtually Ousted

Democratic Chieftain Aims to Control Body

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, March 1. — Gov. Hunt, refused by the Democratic Legislature the privilege of filling the University Board of Regents with men of his own peculiar ideas, has struck unexpectedly in another quarter. Today he gave notice of what must be considered removal from the board of Dwight B. Heard, Republican, and Mose Drachman, Democrat.

The former, appointed last year to succeed Dean William Scarlett of Phoenix, who had moved to St. Louis, is owner of the Phoenix Republican, and esteemed as one of the leading citizens of Arizona. Mr. Drachman is a leading pioneer resident of Tucson, appointed to succeed the late Epes Randolph, Democrat.

The point is raised by the Governor that Heard and Drachman were ad interim appointments, and were ad interim appointments which never had been considered by the Senate.

NOMINATIONS MADE

To fill the places he has sent to the Senate the names of E. E. Ellinwood of Phoenix and Mrs. Theodora Marsh of Nogales. The former, for years chief counsel in Arizona for the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, came into the Hunt fold at the last election, though noted as one of the two Democratic members of the State constitutional convention who refused to sign the constitution largely drafted by Hunt. Mrs. Marsh, a Democrat, widow of a Nogales merchant, has served in the State Legislature.

A. T. Hammons, made superintendent of banks, has been succeeded as secretary of the State prison by E. B. Devine of Florence.

The Senate this afternoon turned down Roberts's bank guarantee bill by a tie vote. There were predictions both ways over what the House will do with the amended pact bill passed yesterday by the Senate, but there was agreement that pact ratification is lost.

TO OUST NORVIEL

The Senate by killing a couple of bills that would have abolished the office cleared the way for passage of a bill that will throw Water Commissioner Norviel out in favor of a Democrat. Favor was given a bill for teaching the national Constitution in schools and one that makes a change of venue based on more than a mere motion of prejudice.

Senator Campbell's pet bill designed to eliminate friction between cattle and sheep men and farmers was killed, as were several bills that would record cattle obligations with the Secretary of State.

BROKER'S SLAYER IN STATE OF COLLAPSE

MRS. SALUDES UNCONSCIOUS HALF AN HOUR AFTER BEING STRICKEN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 1. — Mrs. Paulette Saludes, on trial on a charge of murdering Oscar Martelliere, a broker, last October, today weathered hours of gruelling cross-examination and then, stepping from the stand, collapsed at her counsel's table.

Two court attaches carried her to an anteroom. It was half an hour before she regained consciousness.

Yesterday Mrs. Saludes, under the questioning of her attorney, pictured the man she had shot in his William-street office, as a male vampire who had turned her against her husband, tricked her out of her proprety, made her love him against her will and then cast her off.

Today Asst. Dist.-Atty. Brothers sought to sketch another picture for the jury—a picture of Mrs. Saludes as a woman, who if she had wedded at all, had married a deserter from the French army with a name other than Saludes, who had deliberately set out to win Martelliere away from his wife and then had tried to start trouble between the couple; who, while living with the broker, had gone on motor and boat trips up the Hudson with other men and who finally, on the same day of the shooting, went to Martelliere's office with the wish to punish him for his cooling love.

Mrs. Slaudes denied all of these assertions.

SENATOR CARAWAY IS SUED FOR LARGE SUM

VETERANS' BUREAU EMPLOYE CHARGES "WANTON ATTACK" BY LEGISLATOR

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Damages amounting to $20,000 are sought in a suit filed today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court against Senator Caraway of Arkansas by Harry H. Wallerstein, a veterans' bureau employe, for injuries asserted to have been sustained during a clash on a street here several days ago. The encounter grew out of an argument on a street car.

Wallerstein charged that Senator Caraway, whom he described as "a large, powerful, muscular and physically vigorous man many inches taller, many pounds heavier" than himself, had without provocation "cruelly and wantonly attacked him from the rear," hitting him with his fists and an umbrella.

After the altercation which occurred Tuesday, Wallerstein said he had accidentally been thrown against the Senator by a lurch of the street car, and that, although he had apologized, the Senator had followed him from the car and had attacked him.

At the time Senator Caraway said the man with whom he had had the tilt, persisted in jostling him and had used offensive language.

DENY KING WILL QUIT AT MADRID

Report That Alfonso Is to Abdicate in Favor of Son Quickly Set Aside

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, March 1.—The Spanish government hastens to deny a report published in a Madrid monarchical paper that King Alfonso intends to abdicate in favor of his eldest son, but informed circles here insist that the sporting king is fed up on governmental encroachments on his royal prerogatives and the interference with his personal liberty.

It is no secret that King Alfonso has been bitterly disappointed since the failure to dissolve the Military and War Department; he also is mortified over the army's failure at Melilla.

The scathing comment in Madrid on King Alfonso's trip to Deauville last summer and his visits to Biarritz, coupled with the cabinet's veto of his proposed vacation in Cannes and Monte Carlo this winter, also is bothering him.

One of the principal reasons for King Alfonso's imminent visit to Pope Pius at Rome is said to be to discuss his successor to the throne if he quits. It is asserted that King Alfonso will give ill health as his reason if he decides to quit the throne.

GAS HEAT CONTENT CUT IS AUTHORIZED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—The State Railroad Commission today issued an order which would permit all gas served by public utilities to be cut from 570 to 550 British thermal units.

The order provides that no utility shall reduce the heat content from the present standard of 570 until such time as it is prepared to base its determination upon the test of an average sample.

The commission announcement today said "that it was more economic to serve a 550 than the present 570 standard, and that price reductions could be more easily effected on the basis of 550 British thermal units."

Will Cremate New Englander at Marseilles

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, March 1.—The funeral of Robert Shackelton of Fairfield, Ct., associate editor of The Saturday Evening Post 1900-2, took place Monday from the Villa Mont Plaisir, Hyeres. His body will be cremated at Marseilles.

Mr. Shackelton came to Europe, knowing he had not long to live, in order to die by the blue water of the Mediterranean he loved.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION IS PASSED BY SENATE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON March 1.—Appropriations aggregating $20,950,000 for modernization of battleships and reimbursement of contractors as a result of the naval scrapping program under the Washington Arms conference treaty were approved today by the Senate. The House previously had approved the items.

Included in the naval appropriations, contained in the deficiency bill, is $6,500,000 for making changes in thirteen battleships so as to increase the range of their guns.

The measure also increases the limit of cost of the new battleship Colorado and several destroyers and provides $3,450,000 for further payment of costs in the scrapping program

BLANTON PUTS ON ONE-MAN FILIBUSTER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, put on another of his one-man filibusters today in the House.

With the calendar jammed, a succession of roll calls was made necessary by his objections after the House had refused to permit him to speak for two minutes out of order on a bill relating to the District of Columbia.

Representatives Pou, Democrat, North Carolina, and Mondell, Wyoming, the Republican leader, joined in protesting, but the Texan insisted that he was acting on his constitutional rights.

Roosevelt Visualized these Fertile Farming Lands--Now they are Yours

Use Coupon for the information you desire. No obligation.

IN the Valley of Roosevelt's dream there are better opportunities awaiting you — opportunities that are reached from California after only a short night's ride over the Southern Pacific or the Santa Fe. Also a pleasant and scenic trip by motor.

The Salt River Valley is the name of this garden spot which is located in Southwestern Arizona. Here a dry, warm sunshine climate beckons you to the out-of-doors where recreation or work brings better health and greater happiness.

Year Around Farming

Roosevelt visualized the wonderful possibilities of this Valley which Nature endowed with fertile soil. He knew what irrigation would accomplish.

Now the Roosevelt Dam, built by the Government, irrigates thousands of acres of rich farming land where the mere touch of water has made crops grow like magic—a veritable luxuriance of all growing things. Six to twelve tons of alfalfa per acre is the usual experience. Crops are planted and harvested the year around.

Controlled irrigation provides low priced water at regular intervals and insures proper growing—no droughts—no floods. Farming is profitable here, and there is room for many thousands more. Choice ten, twenty, thirty and forty acre farms or larger ones can be purchased on easy terms at reasonable prices.

A large variety of seed crops, fruits and vegetables are profitably grown—more money is made per acre and smaller acreage is required. Intensive farming is the rule.

For Tourists

STOP OVER in Phoenix on your way home and see the great Roosevelt Dam. Those desiring recreation will find beautiful resorts and modern hotels where the cost of living is not excessive. Hiking, camping, golfing, fishing and motoring occupy one's leisure time while the famous Apache Trail highway leads to the great Roosevelt Dam and to many other fascinating haunts.

Cozy Homes— Prosperous Cities

Prosperous towns are scattered throughout this fertile Valley and are connected with the finest of paved and improved roads. These roads lead to Phoenix, the Capital of the State, situated in the heart of the Valley. The best of schools, churches, and civic organizations are found in every town where congenial surroundings in each friendly community will make you feel at home.

Cozy homes in town and country, surrounded by flowers that grow the year around, can be purchased or rented for much less than in other places.

You'll be surprised at these opportunities. It will pay you to know more about them. Come and see for yourself. If you will notify our organization in advance as to the date you will arrive in Phoenix, we will take pleasure in showing you the realization of Roosevelt's dream. When you arrive, come to our office in the Chamber of Commerce Building. If you can't come soon, just fill in the coupon or direct a letter to our organization for detailed information about the better opportunities in this prosperous Valley.

HAWAII LABOR BILL REPORTED

Restricted Immigration is Urged in Senate

Japan Declared Menace to Island Control

Hold Answer to Field Work Situation

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, March 1. — Urging enactment of the Dillingham resolution to permit restricted immigration of otherwise inadmissable aliens into Hawaii to relieve the present labor shortage the Senate Immigraton Committee in a report presented today, declared American control of Hawaii and the center of the Pacific Ocean to be endangered by the Japanese.

The situation with respect to the preponderant Japanese population of the Hawaiian Islands was discussed at length in the report which said the Dillingham resolution should be adopted as an emergency measure, and conditions more completely remedied by permanent legislation. Senate leaders, however, are of the opinion that there is slight chance of getting the resolution through before adjournment.

Calling attention to the 1921 strike of Japanese plantation workers as illustrating the need of removing the Japanese monopoly of the unskilled supply, the report declared that strikes had been "marked by unusual animosity on the part of the Japanese language press and by many un-American demenstrations of violence."

RACIAL CHECKS

The shortage of labor now existing in the islands, the report said, is the result of the restlessness of the field laborers who received, in addition to their regular pay in 1920, a total of $36,000,000 in bonuses, and also "in larger part by the particular racial solidarity of the Japanese, who constitute 42 per cent of the population of the islands."

"American industrial and political control" the report added, "is seriously threatened by the preponderance of the Japanese among those who normally perform the field labor of the territory and by an actual shortage of such labor.

"On account of their close adhesiveness and characteristic collective manner of action, the Japanese have it in their power to control the industries of the territory by being able either to furnish or fail to furnish the labor without which those industries can not live.

"Immigration to supply the immediate needs of the agricultural industries and relieve an existing acute shortage must take into consideration the overwhelming preponderance of Japanese in the islands, their control of the situation and the possibility amounting to a practical certainty under existing conditions that the American control of the island industries may pass into the hands of this alien race.

SITUATION SERIOUS

"The situation in Hawaii must be met and met at once. It is not merely a question of saving Hawaiian industries from bankruptcy. The commanding fact is that the industries will inevitably pass into the hands of the Japanese instead of merely going out of existence. Such a transfer of economic control would practically destroy the American control of Hawaii and in effect transfer to Japanese control the center of the Pacific Ocean. Certainly such a result would be of serious consequences to the American naval and military control of the mid-Pacific."

In proposing to give the Secretary of Labor authority to permit restricted immigration for a limited period of time, the committee said the laborers to be brought in "should be of competitive nationality to break up the racial solidarity of the Japanese and destroy the labor monopoly there now."

MOHAVE RIVER VALLEY TABLES ON FILE HERE

DEPTH OF WELLS, WATER, ETC., SHOWN IN GOVERNMENT REPORTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Director of the United States Geological Survey announces that tables concerning wells in the Mojave River Valley have been filed in the district office of the United States Geological Survey, Federal Building, Los Angeles, where they may be consulted by anyone who may be interested in them.

The tables show the depth of the wells, the depth to water, and the yield, so far as known, of about 650 wells, and are supplemented by chemical analyses of water from about forty-five wells and springs, and by logs of selected wells. These tables, logs and analyses cover the entire valley, from the San Bernardino Mountains to Silver Lake, as well as Cronise and Harper valleys. They supplement a report on the ground-water resources of the Mojave River Valley already on file in the office of the geological survey in Los Angeles, and form a part of a comprehensive report on the ground water resources of the entire Mojave Desert region, which is now in preparation by the geological survey.

OREGON NIGHT RIDER CASE IS DEVELOPING

ARREST WITNESS FOR STATE, ANOTHER WARNED TO LEAVE TOWN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MEDFORD (Or.) March 1.—Interest in the night riders' trial at Jacksonville was overshadowed completely today by two outside developments, first, the arrest of J. F. Hale, asserted victim of the night riders and chief witness for the State against Dr. J. P. Bray, defendant, for refusing to dim his automobile lights, and second, a report made to the Sheriff's office by William Brown, an orchard worker and another witness for the State, that he had received notification to leave town last night by a man who told him there was a warrant for his arrest on a bootlegging charge sworn to by S. B. Sandifer, prohibition enforcement officer.

The Sheriff's office declared it knows the identity of the man who advised Brown to leave town and further developments are expected. The arrest of Hale was made by Traffic Officer J. J. McMahon.

Sheriff Terrill declared this afternoon that he could find no record of a warrant having been issued for Brown's arrest on any charge.

DEADLOCK TO BE ENDED BY NOMINATION OF TWO TODAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 1. — Nominations for the Federal judgeships in Northern and Southern California are scheduled to be sent to the Senate tomorrow by President Harding, ending a deadlock that has existed for months and which even now is not settled entirely.

In the south, the prediction was made by those in the confidence of the administration that either Judge James or Judge Paul McCormick would win the ermine.

About the name to be sent in for the northern district there is still great confusion, but the best information available was that Judge Graham would not be named, but that a possible compromise candidate had been obtained outside of San Francisco.

David Stanbury, another attorney for the defense, declared the government's case was based on conversations and happenings of three years ago, and declared the government witnesses could not remember exactly what took place that long ago.

The A.B.C. of Good Tea

THIS diagram shows clearly one reason for the superior flavor, strength and aroma of RIDGWAYS TEA.

In order to get the very choicest pickings, only those leaves marked "A," "B" and "C" are gathered for Ridgways. These tender, young tip-leaves give to Ridgways Tea that rare quality of flavor which distinguishes the famous Ridgway blends.

The leaves marked "D," "E," "F" and "G" are coarser and less flavory and therefore are never used by Ridgways.

This carefully guarded Ridgway quality also assures more cups to the pound. When you buy Ridgways Tea you not only get the best tea, but actually more of it than is possible from inferior tea. As an example of rare good tea we suggest that you order Ridgways (GOLD LABEL) the Genuine Orange Pekoe.

'BATTLE OF WOMEN' IN LONG BEACH

Objection to Remarks of Speaker at Church Cause Near Riot

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 1.—Efforts to suppress news of a "battle of women" that broke out at a recent afternoon meeting of women members of Trinity Methodist Church here were being made today, following attempts on the part of one of the asserted participants in the melee to obtain a warrant for the arrest of certain of her adversaries.

Names of the women involved, many of whom are said to be prominent in social and church circles, are being withheld pending the decision of Dist.-Atty. Dennison on the question of whether a warrant shall be issued.

The asserted trouble started, it is said, when a woman lecturer, formerly a cloistered nun, made certain statements asserted to have been detrimental to members of another faith.

The woman who is said to be seeking a warrant, contends she arose in the meeting and declared the speaker to be telling untruths. There followed a rush of other women in the audience to eject her from the church after efforts to drown her objections by hand-slapping had failed, she asserts.

More than 700 women were present at the meeting.

Nearly 100 were present, women of the Congregational Christian churches serving the banquet. Discussion of water conservation and flood control was the topic of the meeting. A committee was appointed by the president, L. Crumrine, at the request of those interested in the Water Doctrine Exposition, which is to be held in Los Angeles this fall.

The committee included Ed Metzgar, F. W. Slaybaugh of Santa Ana, B. P. Johnson, Orange; Fraser, Anaheim; G. A. Hart, Fullerton. A committee from the Brea chamber, headed by President C. R. Merrifield, welcomed the visitors.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ORANGE, March 1.—The second trial of William Wilson, 17-year-old youth, charged with a statutory offense against a 17-year-old girl, ended like the first when the jury in Superior Judge Thomas' court at Santa Ana failed to agree after nearly seven hours of deliberation.

The jury was dismissed and reported that it stood 9 to 3 for acquittal. Whether the case will be reset for a third hearing will be determined tomorrow by Judge Williams.

RANKIE GENARO GRABS FLYWEIGHT TITLE FROM LITTLE PANCHO VILLA

ITALIAN IS TOO WISE FOR THE FILIPINO

Whirlwind Finish Captures Title for Greenwich Villager Before Big House

BY HARRY NEWMAN
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 1.—Frankie Genaro, Little Greenwich Italian tonight became the new flyweight champion. Genaro, undaunted and outclassed Pancho Villa of Manila for three-quarters of the fourteen fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

TOO SMART

Villa was too smart for the Italian from the Philippines. He permitted Pancho to run all over the ring in the early rounds and when half of his lead had been traveled. National Amateur Champ Season of 1922

His Game With Sweetser Was a Humdinger

BY CHARLES (CHICK) EVANS
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, March 1.—The golfer I choose for number six in the list of the first ten has this further distinction, besides the sobriquet, "Golf's Siege Gun," and the game's longest driver. He played and lost the strangest championship match that the game in this country has any record of. The subject of this article is, as you have probably discovered ere this, Jesse Guilford of Boston, last year's national amateur champion. The strange match I speak of was his game during last year's national amateur championship at Brookline with Jess Sweetser.

Guilford was stymied eleven times during this match, Guilford said eleven times, though others quoted the number as fourteen, while one staunch Guilford rooter remarked that the big Bostonian never had a shot on the greens that was entirely free from a stymie lie.

STIRS COMMENT

This remarkable championship match stirred up more comment about the stymie, I dare say, than was ever heard previously during a championship. There were days at Brookline when hate for the stymie was at white heat, and no end of discussion as to whether a player stymied so many times had really a fair chance. Such luck would seem to be all hard, to say the least, and not a few of the players took the position at the time that the stymie was not good golf. However, we had it, regardless of what our personal opinions about it may have been, so there was nothing to do but play it.

"PLAY INSIDE"

It is a comparatively simple matter for any player to "play inside" on his opponent for a possible stymie when putting, but I have never played the game this way. I doubt very much, indeed, if Gardner, Ouimet, Guilford or any of our other champions ever did, either. I don't know whether Sweetser played for stymies, but the assumption was obviously that he did, since it had never been heard of for a man to give his opponent so many stymies in one match. In this it is not meant that Sweetser is subject to criticism if he did play for stymies, since he had every right to try for them if he wished. The remarkable thing is that he could lay them as he did if he were really playing for them.

CAREFUL PUTTING

The stymie can be played for if the ball is putted deliberately for an "inside" lie. That is, play it so that if it fails to make the hole it will have its chance to come to rest between the hole and your opponent's ball. Often when the line of direction from the other ball to the hole is at right angles, the stymie can be obtained by putting a touch of hook or slice spin slightly to the right or left of the hole, as the case may be. Then, if the hole is missed, the hook or slice may leave the other ball stymied.

DOESN'T LIKE IT

I don't like the stymie in golf because it can so easily be played for. I don't like anything that changes the element of chance to a machine-like proposition of reasonable certainty. It requires skill enough for the player to get his own ball into the hole when anything offers that tempts the player or which may tempt him to abandon the idea of sinking his own ball and interfering with his opponent—at that point the game ceases to be golf and becomes an irritation.

DESERVES IT

Guilford deserves—and has won—a great place in golf history, not alone because of this one extraordinary match, but for the greater reason that he took all those stymies in manly fashion. I heard him tell how they defeated him—but I didn't hear him utter a word of complaint against the game of the man who put so many of them in front of him. One could write a book about Guilford without saying more.

Langford Will Turn Grappler in Lyceum Show

Sam Langford, the original "Tar Baby," will make his debut as a mat artist next Wednesday night when he meets Roman, "the powerful," before the Lyceum Athletic Club, 321 South Spring street. On the same card will be Champion Johnny Meyers in a tug with Jack Ross.

"Tham" thinks he's some wrestler. This much can be said about the big fellow: He's taking the same interest in the mat game that he took in fighting. Langford has never been known as a shirker, and when he says he's out to win, the fans can rest assured that the old boy will give the best that is in him. If he is half as good on the mat as he was in the ring, it should be a whale of a match.

Charlie "Tiger" Mason will meet Sam Sandow in the other feature match of the evening. Both Mason and Sandow are noted for their ruggedness, so they should show the fans something new in gameness.

BACKSTOP MYATT IN CLEVELAND FOLD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BUD SOULES AND SAILOR IN RING GO

Ashmore Out for Revenge at Legion Hollywood Fistic Arena Tonight

Bud Soules will attempt to do what Phil Salvadore didn't, when he tackles Sailor Ashmore in the main event of the Hollywood American Legion scraps tonight. Matchmaker Frank Crowley lined these two mixers up with the intention of giving the flock of fight fans, who patronize the weekly bouts at Hollywood, a real battle, and if both boys put up their usual scrap, Crowley's desire should be fulfilled.

Once before these battlers met and Soules succeeded in hanging a technical knockout victory over the present claimant of the Coast welter and lightweight titles. Ashmore has trained faithfully for tonight's bout with the hope that he can reverse the tables despite the fact that he will be outweighed by some four pounds.

The semi-wind-up will bring together Dick Hoppe and Young McGovern. Hoppe has just returned from San Francisco, where he has been holding down the bright spot on the bills and disposing of all lightweight contenders. McGovern has proved to the fans hereabouts that he is a comer and will very likely give Hoppe all he can handle tonight.

Red Uhlan, the powerful 155-pounder, is scheduled to trade wallops with Johnny Cline in the special event. The participants in this number are exceedingly well matched and their bout should be a battle from start to finish.

Jimmy Dunning, the popular 116-pounder, will go four rounds with Frankie Dolan. Fred Cullen, a 160-pound champion in the making, will square off with Benny Demske. Walter Rooney and Young Roberts meet at 130 pounds, and Hank Gattan will put on the curtain-raiser with Honey Melody, at catchweights. George Blake referees.

IRWIN BRAME IS SIGNED BY MACK

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—Reports from the Philadelphia Americans' training camp at Montgomery, Ala., today said that Manager Connie Mack had announced the signing of Irwin Brame, one of the leading pitchers of the Kitty League. He played last year with Hopkinsville, Ky.

Mack also stated that he had heard from "Stuffy" McInnis, recently unconditionally released by Cleveland, and that the prospects of obtaining his signature to a contract were "fair."

HOLLYWOOD IN TRACK DEBUT

Foothiller Squad Takes on Toiler Crew Today

Pioneer Cinderpath Cohorts Clash With Pasadena

Lincoln Meets Oxy Freshmen and Poly, Jeff Tangle

Providing sunny Southern California remains sunny this afternoon, four high-class prep track tangles will be pulled off on local cinderpaths, with Hollywood, in its seasonal debut, meeting Manual Arts at Wilson Field in the feature.

Local track fans have been anxiously waiting to get a line on the mob of spike specialists that Coach Bill Page has under his wing at the Foothiller institution, and today their patience will be rewarded—providing it doesn't rain. Jupiter Pluvius has opposed prep track meets in past week-ends in a no uncertain watery fashion, but may be persuaded to desist putting on the April showers that bring May flowers a month ahead of time.

The Hollywood track squad, which is favored by not a few experts to run off with honors in the city meet, boasts of a pole vaulter, Barnes in name, that ascends to the dizzy height of twelve feet; a high jumper by the name of Olsted who leaped over six feet in an interclass meet early this season; Meeks, a broad jumper and hurdler, who is touted as a point grabber in any prep meet; Akroyd, a distance man already known in city circles; Coyne, a weight man with a record of 49 in the shot put, and Tweeton, one of the numerous ten-flat men, in the sprints. Although Coach Tennisson has several promising young athletes at the Toiler institution, including Ruiz, Pemberthy and Walker in the pole vault and hurdles, and Watson and Allen in the weights, the Hollywood team is favored to cop the well-known hunk of hoop.

Out in the millionaire-infested city of Pasadena, the Los Angeles High and Pasadena high track squads will be putting on a beevoodee fashion show in a meet that is expected to be decided by the relay. Providing Field Thompson is in proper running order, it is rumored that the quarter-mile event will bring out some close competition, with a Mr. Stack of Pasadena forcing Field to let everything out.

Lincoln High's railsplitting spikesters hook up with the Oxy frosh at Patterson Field in an affair that will probably be chucked full of surprises. The Tigers babes are quoted by several of the local sport prognosticators as having enough of an advantage to nose out the pets of Tommy Davis. Poly and Jefferson furnish the amusement in the fourth and final event of the day. The Democrats are doped as having as much of a chance to win as Phil Alguin has of being elected Chief of Police.

JESS'S TOUR IS OVER MARCH 7

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, March 1.—Ray Archer, Jess Willard's manager, today ordered the exhibition tour of the former pugilistic champion discontinued after the exhibition at Kansas City March 7. This announcement was made here by William McCarney, Willard's advance man, following a long distance telephone conversation with Archer, who is in New York. McCarney said the action was taken on orders from Tex Rickard, boxing promoter.

McCarney stated he was advised Rickard took the viewpoint that a long tour might not meet with public approval as the public might be of the opinion the former champion should be in training for his bout with Floyd Johnson in May instead of touring the country.

PLAY-OFF CONTESTS ON TODAY

Basketball Fives Battle in Southern California Title Tilts

Aside from bringing fish, this Friday also puts before the fans three hot Southern California basketball championship play-off games. Alhambra High's speedy quintet, winner of the Southern and Central California coasha titles last year, hooks up with the San Bernardino five, winner of the Citrus Belt championship this year, in the feature struggle this evening in the U.S.C. pavilion. This game is expected to be hard fought all the way, and the winner meets Huntington Park in the semifinals next Friday.

The other two unlimited games find the Chino and Owensmouth hoopsters engaged in combat on the latter squad's court, and the Sweetwater Union and Fullerton squads in a death struggle on the Fullerton court.

A lightweight play-off scrap also is on the boards for today. The Whittier High midgets, undefeated this year, clash with the Inglewood bantams on the University of Southern California court this afternoon, starting at 3:00 o'clock. Bonita meets Orange at the Pomona Y.M.C.A. and Grossmont takes on San Pedro at San Pedro in the pair of 110-pound court struggles for the afternoon.

SHOULD PLAYER MARRY?

McGraw Gives Some Hints on Subject; Two Kinds of Wives; the Spliced Year of Grace

"MY THIRTY YEARS IN BASEBALL"
Article XLIX
BY JOHN J. McGRAW

Manager of the New York Giants, World's Baseball Champions, 1921-22.

(Copyright, 1923, U. S. and Canada, by the Christy Walsh Syndicate.)

To my surprise fans throughout the country, in answer to our questionnaire, have hopped on a subject that I would never have thought of discussing in these memoirs. As I near the end of my story, though, I must answer while there is time.

"What effect on players?" several ask, "has the presence of wives and sweethearts in the stand or in traveling with the teams?"

Now, you know, if I talk too freely on that subject I'm going to get in trouble. Many times have I been in a quandary over that angle of baseball. I have even feared to discuss it in private, let alone in the newspapers.

On general principles, though, I'll say this: Very few ballplayers are ever as valuable to a team the first year they are married as they are before or after. Wait a minute—I'll explain.

When a young fellow gets it into his head to get married there is no stopping him. I think I have too much common sense to even try to stop him. He thinks of nothing else. He is entering a new phase of life and is taking on new responsibilities. Naturally, he and his wife think their marriage the most important thing in the world. In working out their early problems they forget all about baseball. As a result, the young fellow's seat is gone. It takes a full year for him to get down to business and concentrate his mind on the game.

WIFE HELPS

I am convinced that nothing helps a young man so much in baseball or in any other profession as a good wife. I think, though, that they ought to get married immediately after the World's Series. By the time the next season comes around they will be able to understand things.

I have known young bridegrooms, on the bench, to forget whether there were men on bases or not. Sometimes they are not even particular whether there are one or two out. They are thinking about that new apartment, about that new furniture, that fancy gas range, and so on.

It is a beautiful state of bliss, but take it from me, a young man in that state of mind doesn't win many ball games.

QUITE NATURAD

It is quite natural for the wives to want to attend the ball games and see their heroes at work. Baseball has become a part of their lives. If they are sensible women—which most of them are—they will encourage and criticise their husbands so as to be of help. I have had brides come to me and ask what kind of food they ought to prepare for their husbands.

There are other wives who will not attend a game in which their husbands appear. They get so nervous over his possible success or failure that they fear they will make themselves conspicuous. I wish all of them thought that way.

The wife of one of our greatest pitchers would never come to the Polo Grounds on the day her husband pitched. She followed the progress of the game, though, by a rather unique method. Their apartment was on the Heights. From the front window it was possible to see the scoreboard by the aid of a pair of field glasses. Often this wife and the wives of other players used to gather there in the afternoon and have tea while the game was going on.

This particular wife knew what dishes her husband liked most. One of his favorites was corned beef and cabbage. If the glasses showed the Giants behind she would immediately start preparing that dish. Upon his arrival home the grouch of defeat would disappear. She would never mention the game until the dinner was over.

The wives and sweethearts who really cause the player trouble and embarrassment are the foolish ones. Many ball players, as you know, come into the league with little knowledge of life, especially big city life. They are carried away with hero worship and marry some girl who really seeks the limelight more than the love of the young fellow. There have been many cases of that kind. As a rule ball players marry some girl with whom they have been brought up in the little home town. It is seldom that divorce cases grow out of that kind of marriage.

These foolish wives or sweethearts who sit in the stand and yell out endearing encouragement to their husbands are genuine distraction. They not only embarrass the player, but often make it very uncomfortable for those about them in the stands.

GETS HIS GOAT

You can well imagine the feelings of a player when he leaves the bench to go to bat at a critical moment and suddenly hear a soprano voice from the stands scream out:

"There goes my dearie!"

It is the real wholesome woman of good, hard, common sense who helps the ball player to success. Often they have been my very helpful allies in getting a player to improve his work or to take care of himself.

On one occasion there was a pitcher who suffered many defeats through lack of control. His wife went with him on the spring training trip. He knew his failing, but did not have the patience to correct it. His wife, knowing what was required, took charge of him during his off hours and insisted upon him putting in so much practice in the court back of the hotel. There was no escape. Any time

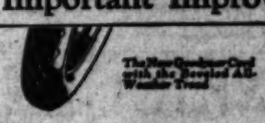
Four Important Improvements



These four important developments in the new Goodyear Cord with the beveled All-Weather Tread make it the greatest tire you have ever had.

—1—

This new All-Weather Tread is made from the most serviceable rubber compound Goodyear has ever produced.

—2—

Being semi-flat, instead of round, it gives the tread broader road contact, which also offers greatly increased resistance to wear.

—3—

The powerful, clean-cut blocks are buttressed at the base by heavy rubber ribs, knitting the whole tread design into a firmer unit.

—4—

The blocks which line the tread are beveled at the outer edge, relieving the carcass from the strain of vibration as wear proceeds.

You can have this quieter, smoother-running, longer-lived Goodyear Cord at no extra price. You will get with it a service that brings out the full mileage built into it at the factory.

TELLS WORLD HE'S A DUFFER

Comedian Harry Langdon Is a Golf Spasm

Touches for Funny Points That Crop Up

Across Many Pros Seldom Show Elation

BY HARRY LANGDON

The Orpheum Golfer and Motorist

After playing golf for five years, I am convinced I'm happier as a duffer than I would be as a pro. I play the game for the fun there is in it, just like President Harding. The impression I get from the professional golfer is that he does not cull the joys and thrills from the game that I do.

I have made the rounds with professional players and have seen some wonderful shots. Some were a spectacular that the hair on my head would seem to rise from the thrill. The gallery would clap with gratification, and then I'd glance at the professional. Do you think he looked thrilled? No, sir. There wasn't a sign of delight about his face, not the slightest change of countenance. He was playing the game as though he had so much work to do and that was all. And when I say "work," that exactly is the right word for the golf pro's game.

SHOUTS DELIGHT

Now, take the so-called duffer again. When he makes a pretty shot, you hear him all over the lot, shouting his delight. That one shot brings him out the next day. He dreams of it, eats it, sleeps it, and babbles it till he's a regular pest. But that's the fellow who's getting fun out of the grand old game. He may not be very wise about golf, but he sure does know how to enjoy it.

We duffers play the game for the fun there is in it, and that means we enjoy all the fun there's a chance to get. All the time I am on the course I watch for the humorous side of whatever happens in that way. I get the grins for my act.

There is one course here—the municipal links in Griffith Park—that is a great place for laughs. So many people invariably are clustered around the first tee that the novices usually get shaky when it is time to drive off. I admit I stand around and laugh—until it is my turn in front of that multitude. The crowd seems like forty or fifty until I get on that tee. Then it suddenly expands until it's bigger than any Orpheum audience I ever played before. That's the one place I feel what is called "stage-fright."

ANXIOUS TO TEE

I saw one fellow pace back and forth anxious to tee off. He practiced swinging his driver, showing the gallery his beautiful form with little egotism, but when he did get up to tee off, he wiggled about with his club, gazed down the fairway several times, pulled his club back from the ball over and over again, then wiggled some more, and when he finally made up his mind to swing, he topped the ball and it only rolled three feet. Then his partner got up with a frightened look, and accidentally put over a good drive. Everything must have turned black to him for joy, because he staggered about trying to act unconcerned. He picked up another fellow's bag and when he found out his mistake he tripped over his own, turned all colors and followed his disgusted playmate down the alley. I'll not tell you just what I did when my turn came.

Well, I got to go now.

NORTHWEST BOXING DEMON HITS TOWN

Neil F. Tierney, amateur featherweight champion of the Northwest, is here to take a whirl at the local game. Boxing critics of the North say that he has much class, carrying a good punch with either hand. Tierney was scheduled to make his debut in Spokane, Wash., against Bud Ridley last Armistice Day, but owing to the injury to Ridley's arm the bout was called off. Tierney will make his debut in one of the Los Angeles arenas in the near future. He comes here with an excellent amateur record, having knocked out Joe Farrell, featherweight champion of Western Canada. Tierney is 24 years of age, fights at 126 pounds, and is anxious to meet the best of the boys in his class.

ANGELS LEAD CLUB CIRCUIT

Flintridge Runs in Second Position

Miss Rowe Captures Public Links Tilt

Ladies' Round Robin Tourney at Angelus

BY BOB LOCKE

With the third round of the interclub matches played off the standings of the clubs show that Los Angeles Country Club is far in the lead of the scratch division. Flintridge is running in second place but five points behind so that the Angel aggregation is sure of first place through at least one more round. Unless Flintridge win their next contest by a whitewash score they will still remain in second place.

The standings of the teams in the handicap divisions show that all except group No. 4 are tied for first place. This would indicate that the committee in charge of the grouping did a splendid job in picking the right handicaps for teams. With all these ties a lot of interesting struggles will be on the hill a little later in the season when they are played off for final honors.

The standing of the various groups and teams to date are as follows:

CLASS A (Scratch)

Club	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Los Angeles	11	1	.733
Flintridge	9	4	.600

Miss Elizabeth Rowe won the midwinter tournament for the Bullock trophy at the Griffith Park municipal links. Miss Rowe by winning the class-A event, defeated some of the best golfers in the outfit and proved her superiority.

Mrs. S. H. Morse won the Class-B feature, playing a nice game of golf throughout the tournament. Her steadiness won for her and pulled her out of many holes when in a bad way with her score.

Recently the two played off the championship and from all reports the game was a whirlwind affair. Miss Rowe had by far the best of the bargain throughout the play and was at no time in any danger. Miss Rowe's score for the event was as follows:

4, 4, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5—47; 4, 5, 5, 4, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5—48; handicap, 2; total, 46.

Mrs. Morse's score was as follows:

5, 5, 5, 5, 4, 5, 5, 5, 4, 7—50; 5, 5, 5, 4, 5, 4, 5, 5, 5—48; handicap, 2; total, 46.

In the consolation flight the finals resulted in the defeat of Mrs. H. C. Earle by Mrs. M. Cartwright by a score of 4-3. The play was exceptionally good in this flight, and the final match was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout.

Just to show folks that she was not out of the running, and that she still had the old fight, Mrs. Earle won the monthly Sunny Jane tournament, held at the Griffith Park course. Her score was 52-43-94-4-91.

AT ANGELUS VISTA

The ladies' round robin golf tournament, which is being held over the course of the Angeles Vista Golf Club, is fast drawing to a close, and despite the fact that the desperate golfers are striving to beat her, Mrs. R. C. Noble seems to be safely holding her own against all contenders.

Mrs. Noble managed to get a slight lead in the first few days of play and consequently had an advantage over some of her less fortunate sisters. The play has been unusually brisk, due partly to the fine weather and the excellent condition of the course. No tournament play in the round robin tourney is being held on either Saturday or Sunday.

In the Invitation tournament started at the San Gabriel Country Club yesterday the following men qualified:

[illegible]

Pairings for today's flights are as follows: Thomas and Barber, Geyer and Modissette, Craig and Behr, Heddon and Statz, Williams and Sadden, Gore and Toma, Ralphs and Higgins, Jacobs and Mescall.

The eighth flight will start at 9:30 and will continue till 10, seventh flight at 10 to 10:30, sixth from 10:30 to 11, fifth 11 to 11:30, first flight 12 to 1, championship flight 1 to :30, second 1:30 to 2, third 2 to 2:30, fourth 1:30 to 2.

SPORT SHRAPNEL

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Vic Walters, an unknown from the U.S.S. Mississippi, has been creating something of a furore at third base for the Angels down at Elsinore.

Whether he is just a flash, or the extent to which he can bat, are questions for the future. But he does handle himself beautifully in the field. In his ability to get in front of batted balls he resembles Frankie Frisch somewhat. And yet there is a vast difference. They both seem to sense the direction in which the batter will drive the ball. Frisch, however, is a two-handed fielder. That is, he seems almost invariably to plant himself directly in front of a batted ball and meets it with both hands. As a result few get by him, but he is sometimes caught off his balance and is tilted back or set down on his haunches. But his quick recovery and a good arm enable him to offset this tendency to fight certain kinds of drives when playing third base.

Frisch is what might be termed an acrobatic ball player. Walters, I think, is a more natural and graceful fielder. He also gets in front of a hard drive, but not as directly as Frisch. Rather, he allows something for that long reach and that fine pair of hands. He will do less tuna-like leaping and go to his knees less frequently to recover a blocked ball. Walters has a stronger arm than Frisch, but while fast, lacks the latter's great speed and perfect stride. He probably is a better fielder than Frisch was at the same stage. No kid has looked so good around that corner since Willie Kamm was a rookie.

As stated, he may be just a flash. But if you don't say nice things about the rookies in the spring you may never get the chance, as they seldom are allotted a place in the summer sun.

Herbert Hunter's personally conducted tour of the major leaguers abroad apparently was a success in every respect. The players, by their skill on the field and their deportment elsewhere, seems to have made a most favorable impression. A Japanese paper, commenting editorially on the visit, says:

"The major-league players are at last in Kobe ready to play a number of games, starting tomorrow. We are exceedingly glad that the members of the present professional team from America are all gentlemen, especially because in the past some men of the same profession, by their behavior, have caused their compatriots to be regarded as a tough lot.

"It is still more gratifying to note that, unlike an ordinary professional baseball team, the visiting team feels it is its mission to develop a keener public interest in baseball in Japan and at the same time to improve the relations between Japan and America.

"Mr. Herbert Hunter, the manager, says sportsmanship is the greatest thing in the world to bring about sympathetic understanding. When people become interested in the same thing and understand the same thing it is a bond between them, and so it is with nations. We indorse every word of Mr. Hunter. The plan of the All-American team to visit Japan has secured the warm support of many distinguished men in America. President Harding said he saw in international competitive sports a medium for the promotion of good will between representative men of nations and a means of bringing about better understanding."

Judging from this editorial, Hunter and his colleagues may have been the real trail blazers of a better understanding between what some seem to have regarded as two irreconcilable forces. However, one is somewhat puzzled by the reference to the "behaviour" of other teams visiting Japan. No unfavorable reports regarding deportment have followed any teams back from there, at least, in recent years.

American aggressiveness is little understood abroad, especially among the older civilizations, while some of us, perhaps, are inclined to be a little loud, if not actually boastful and cocky, when traveling for the first time beyond the confines of our own country. Unconsciously we may offend others unaccustomed to these ways. Possibly it is their fault for not being able to understand or make allowance.

About the time the Allied diplomats started that series of conferences at the Quai d'Orsay following the armistice, a flock of our correspondents landed. One of these registered at the hotel on the Rue de Rivoli where I happened to be stopping. Every afternoon about 4 o'clock he would crash through the front door, dash athwart the lobby and hurdle upstairs five steps at a time. He doubtless had a story to write and get on the cable and was thinking only of press time. Yet his daily entrance to the hotel never failed to excite the European guests. Each time they were as much surprised as if a horse had galloped through the lobby. We know little of leisure; the average European does not know how to hurry. We are misunderstood abroad, as is the foreigner in our midst.

PRIZE HOLDERS PUT ON SPIKES

To Defend Honors at Indoor Relay Carnival

Big Middle West Meeting at Urbana, Ohio

Iowa Looks to Be Surety in Casaba Line

BY CHARLES WEST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) March 1. Holders of the trophies won last season in the annual Illinois indoor relay carnival will be present to defend their laurels Saturday when the best spike specialists of the Middle West meet at Urbana in the sixth renewal of the big affair. The cups for the three big events of the carnival, the one-mile, two-mile and four-mile relays in the collegiate division, were won by Iowa, Ames and Illinois, respectively last year, and although competition promises to be fast, the teams to be entered by these institutions are figured as possible winners in their pet races.

Iowa is almost certain of another victory in the four-man mile affair, as the identical team which broke the carnival record last season will represent the Hawkeyes Saturday. While Ames and Illinois will enter teams with slightly different personnel, both are said to have speedy quartets lined up and will make a hard fight to keep their records and trophies.

FIELD IS FAST

A fast field in the hurdles is promised such men as Gus Desch of Notre Dame, Hubbard of Michigan, Kipp of Haskell Institute and Earl Frazier of Baylor University, Texas, having been entered. Desch is bothered with an injury sustained during the football season, but it is reported that he will perform. Frazier is the champion timber topper of the South, while Kipp and Hubbard have both made reputations in the stick events.

Bob Ayers of Illinois, Spetz of Wisconsin and Hubbard of Michigan will probably have the blue ribbons in the sprints to squabble over, with the dope favoring none of the three. While both Spetz and Ayers have made startling records as sprinters, they are at their best on the cinder path, while Hubbard is quite at home on the boards.

ADDS CLASS

Late entries have added considerable class to the relay classic. Beloit, Earlham, Marquette, Kalamazoo, Wabash, Eureka, Washington University and the Kansas Aggies having sent in their acceptances, although at the last minute. In all thirty-five colleges and fifteen high schools will be represented in the mammoth meet.

With but two games yet to play, Iowa seems to be firmly entrenched in the first position in the big ten basketball standing and if they run true to form the Iowans will win an undisputed title. Only one game is looming as a possible stumbling block for the Hawkeyes, the return game with Michigan on the latter's floor Saturday night. Wolverine rooters took new hope when their team squelched Illinois Monday night, although Iowa's overwhelming victory over Minnesota indicates that it will be no easy task to upset the Hawkeyes.

THROWS SCARE

Purdue threw a scare into Wisconsin Saturday by holding the Badgers to a 29-19 score. If Wisconsin can get by the dangerous Indiana squad on the 12th inst., they are sure of second place. Standings follow:

Iowa	10	0	1.000
Wisconsin	7	1	.875
Michigan	7	3	.700
Illinois	4	5	.444
Chicago	5	5	.500
Purdue	4	4	.500
Indiana	4	4	.429
Northwestern	3	6	.333
Ohio State	1	9	.100
Minnesota	0	10	.000

Baseball sessions are part of the daily program at all of the big ten universities now. A strong array of veterans is working under the tutelage of Coach Carl Lundgren at Illinois and prospects are bright for a third straight conference championship at the Indiana institution. Unless eligibility rules whittle down his squad, Lundgren can be certain of putting a team in the field which will be very much in the running for the title.

Coach Sam Barry of Iowa, being a versatile person, is busy at present winning the basketball championship for the Hawkeyes, but will turn his attention to baseball as soon as the casaba season expires. He will be faced with a problem in the hurling end of the team, Frohwein, the only dependable pitcher on last year's squad, having been lost by graduation. In the field, the Iowans are better off, but it will be quite a task to mold a nine of championship caliber out of the material available.

Michigan is fortunate in having a squad of baseball men free from the bogey of scholastic ineligibility. Coach Fisher is working his men daily in the cages and expects to have a tentative team picked, by the time warm weather permits, out for practice.

Minnesota, while not a serious contender for the 1923 title, had a team that was considered dangerous and is expecting to be up at the top next season. The late spring in Minnesota handicaps the Gopher diamond artists, although they are getting in some battery practice indoors at present, and will undoubtedly be represented by a strong team.

HIGH SCHOOL HOLDS TRACK MEET TODAY

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VENICE, March 1.—The annual interclass track meet between the four classes of the Venice High School will be held on the local course today. Interest is exceptionally keen due to the fact that each class is represented by strong track men.

Both the sophomore and junior classes have exceptionally fine teams this year, but the seniors are favored to take the honors. The meet is the first of the season and will be held to determine the respective strength of the various contestants and rounding them into shape for the regular season.

SHOULD BALL PLAYERS MARRY?

he felt lazy she was right on the job. Such of that man's later success was due to that wonderful wife.

As a rule I do not approve wives accompanying their baseball husbands on the road trips. They seem to distract their attention. Again, a lot of wives, when thrown together in such close association, are bound to talk and gossip over what they have heard. While they mean no harm the husbands are often worried over this. They learn of things about other players that otherwise would not have interested them. For that reason I think it a bad practice to have a number of wives travel with a team.

On the other hand I have insisted on certain players taking their wives with them. Some harum-scarum young fellows can be controlled by nobody but their wives.

I had one very excellent player who would not keep in condition unless his wife was around to look after him. He would be like a young boy out of school, running loose. He would drink, play cards late at night and lose interest in his work.

One year he wrote me for his transportation to the training camp. I wired back that I would send transportation for two. Privately I wrote the wife that it was important to the club that she come along. She did and the young fellow had a good year.

I have received dozens of questions to be answered on this subject, but nobody is going to trap me into saying whether I think a ball player should be married or single. If I said that they ought not to get married every kid on the club would immediately begin thinking about that girl. Then I would get some lively letters from some of the wives, I fear.

FAVORITES SURVIVE IN TENNIS TOURNEY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—All the favorites, including William T. Tilden, II, national champion; Wallace F. Johnson, chop stroke expert, and Stanley W. Pearson, squash racket champion won their second round matches in the Middle States indoor tennis tournament today without much difficulty.

Tilden defeated Neil Sullivan, a local player, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2.

Johnson played two singles matches today, defeating A. J. Cohen, Philadelphia, in the first round, 6-2, 6-0, and Watson Knight, Philadelphia, in the second, 6-1, 6-1.

EARL SHEELEY IS STILL A HOLDOUT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, March 1.—Earl Sheely, first baseman of the Chicago club of the American Baseball League, is a holdout, according to information received here from Morro, fourteen miles from San Luis Obispo, where he is said to be "loafing," while he awaits developments.

With Sheely, who was obtained by the White Sox two years ago from the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast League, is Walter Leverens, pitcher of the Portland (Or.) Coast League club, his former team-mate when they were with the Bees. They are said to be passing the time chiefly in hunting.

K. AND K. BOWLERS GET A WALLOPING

Another three games for the Klippenger-Kincaid bowling five went glimmering Wednesday night at the Angelus Academy in the resumption of Interurban League play.

The K. & K. pin knockers got walloped by the Vernon Square Market team, 3 to 0. A large crowd was on hand at the Angelus to see the special women's doubles match. Owing to sudden illness of Mrs. L. D. Meador, former Pacific Coast woman champion and a member of one of the teams, the play was indefinitely postponed.

ALDRIDGE MAKES UP MIND TO SIGN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, March 1.—Victor Aldridge, right-handed pitcher for the Chicago National League baseball club, who was left standing here on a station platform when the Cubs' first squad boarded a train for the spring training camp, today was to start on his way West to join his team-mates at Catalina Island, Cal. He then balked at the terms of his contract, but yesterday reconsidered and "signed up."

GLENNA COLLETT MAKES FOXY SHOT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BEALLEAIRX HEIGHTS (Fla.) March 1.—Miss Glenna Collett, the national woman's golf champion, played a unique shot today when she played over a moving railroad train. Miss Collett was at the tee just as the train came along. She hit her tee shot straight and far down the fairway, clearing the train by a wide margin.

TROEH IS HIGH MAN AT SHOOT

Vancouver Gunner Annexes Top Honors in Tournament From Gus Becker

BY H. ALF SCHOTT

With over eighty shooters on hand, the Los Angeles Trapshooting Association put on the first day of its annual Pacific zone tournament yesterday at the Vernon Gun Club traps. Frank M. Troeh, the intrepid, red-coated gunner from Vancouver, continuing to win.

The day's program consisted of two separate shoots, the first, the introductory hundred from 16 yards and the second, a class championship event for trophies in four classes, also from 16 yards.

In the morning the introductory hundred was held. Frank Troeh, along with C. Rickard, A. J. Stauber, W. G. Warren and H. E. Sargent, broke 99 targets.

The class championship event resulted in some shooting off. Troeh, with Gus Becker of Ogden, Utah tied each breaking 100x100 in class A. Troeh won the title and the trophy, breaking 24x25 to Becker's 23x25 in the shoot-off.

Frank Stoop, president of the American Trapshooting Association, announced that the Pacific zone will hold its annual meeting at Tufts-Lyon Store tomorrow night at 7:30 sharp. Yesterday's scores:

NOTAS LOCALES

Pola Negri Ha Dado Calabazas a Charlie Chaplin

La novela regia de la Reina de la Tragedia, y el Rey de la Comedia quedó ayer hecha mil jirones, cuando Pola Negri anunció en forma concluyente que su compromiso con Charlie Chaplin había terminado. Esta declaración va a crear otra sensación internacional, hecha como ha sido unas cuantas semanas apenas después de que la confirmación del noviazgo de la famosa pareja había soltado las lenguas de todo el mundo y la zapoza de éste.

Ayer tarde recibió la Srita. Negri a los reporteros en la oficina privada de Charles Eyton, gerente del taller de "Famous Players-Lasky", y les entregó la siguiente declaración escrita: "Juzgo que soy demasiado pobre para casarme con Charlie Chaplin. El necesita unirse con una mujer rica, y le será muy fácil encontrarla en los Estados Unidos—el más rico hermoso país del mundo. En tal virtud, devuelvo su libertad al Sr. Chaplin, relevándole de su compromiso. Le deseo la mejor buena suerte, y seré siempre su devota amiga. Pola Negri, Rúbrica."

Se Emplean Avión y Cámara para Hacer un Mapa Oficial

Ayer voló el Tío Samuel a 16,000 pies de altura, y mirando hacia abajo con tres ojos luminosos, abarcó de una ojeada diez millas cuadradas de la gloria de esta tierra suriana, y registró sus impresiones en la placa sensible de una cámara de 100 libras. El avión, "pájaro" de 400 caballos de fuerza, piloteado por el Teniente H. K. Ramey, y llevaba como fotógrafo al Teniente G. W. Goddard, ambos del Servicio Aéreo Militar de los Estados Unidos. Partieron los aviadores del campo municipal de aviación de Santa Mónica, ayer a la 1 p.m., y recorrieron las novecientas millas cuadradas en dos horas, habiendo fotografiado en ese espacio de tiempo la mitad del condado. A dieciséis mil pies de altura, sin embargo, sólo pudieron tomarse los accidentes principales de la región, por lo que hoy harán los oficiales el mismo recorrido a menor altura para tomar los detalles.

Dos Esposas se Divorcian de Padre e Hijo

Es éste un caso de "tal padre, tal hijo", dijo el tribunal la Sra. Winifred Nancy Hager, después que la señora Hager había concluído de dar testimonio. Dijo que se había casado en junio 16 de 1918, y separádose en abril 28 de 1920. Hager el joven era telegrafista inalámbrico. Poco después de su boda se puso inquisto y fastidiado de la vida de hogar. El océano sin límites le llamaba, y una buena noche empacó sus efectos y desapareció.

Nunca ha recibido ella carta de él desde entonces, pero le han dado noticias del viajero desde los cuatro rincones del mundo.

ISOBEL

By James Oliver Curwood

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS.

Sergeant William MacVeigh and Private Pelliter of the Canadian Mounted Police are on the hunt for heretic Deane, wanted for murder. They come upon Isobel Deane, and MacVeigh goes to headquarters for medicine. Returning that night to meet a woman in trouble, he finds both Isobel and Deane in camp with the body of her husband, who died three days ago, and he offers to accompany them to the Hudson Bay post. They sleep in the open for the night, and MacVeigh falls in love with the woman. Next morning MacVeigh goes on ahead to the second camp, but Isobel is missing. A note, signed Mrs. Isobel Deane, explains that she suspected rolls had contained liquor, and that the living Deane, not dead, captures means promotion, but his love for Isobel prevents his following, and he heads toward the old trapper's cabin. This is MacVeigh's absence Pelitier recovers. In an Indian tepee (dirty native word) he finds a white girl, Isobel Deane, and her dead husband. When MacVeigh returns, several nights later, they are attacked by a band of armed Eskimos, who claim the life of their little chief as the reason for the Eskimos follow, but the fight is ended when Noodle Deane appears on the scene and explains that the child is his. Isobel has been left in the care of these Eskimos. Deane dies of exposure, but before his death he succeeds in establishing the fact that his supposed victim still lives. MacVeigh and Pelitier meet at Fort Churchill's cabin with the news of her husband's death. The stock leaves Isobel a free victim, and MacVeigh goes in search of a woman to care for her.

In a flash there came again the terrible pain in his head, and he sank down on the sledge. This time he was roused from his stupor by the barking and snarling of the dogs and the voice of a man. When he lifted his head out of his arms he saw some one close to the dogs. He made an effort to rise, and staggered half to his feet. Then he fell back, and the darkness closed in about him more thickly than before. When he opened his eyes again he was in a cabin. He was conscious of warmth. The first sound that he heard was the crackling of a fire and the closing of a stove door. And then he heard some one say:

"Whelp me God, if it ain't Billy MacVeigh!"

He stared up into the face that was looking down at him. It was a white man's face, covered with a scrubby red beard. The beard was new, but the eyes and the voice he would have recognized anywhere. For two years he had messed with Rookie McTabb down at Norway and Nelson House. McTabb had quit the Service because of a bad leg.

"Rookie!" he gasped.

He drew himself up, and McTabb's hands grasped his shoulders.

"Whelp me, if it ain't Billy MacVeigh!" he exclaimed again, amazement in his voice and face. "Joe brought you in five minutes ago, and I ain't had a straight squint at you until now. Billy MacVeigh! Well, I'm——" He stopped to stare at Billy's forehead, where there was a stain of blood. "Hurt?" he demanded, sharply. "Was it that damned half-breed?"

Billy was gripping his hands now. Over near the stove, still kneeling before the closed door he saw the dark face of an Indian turned toward him.

"It was Couchee," he said. "He hit me with the butt of his whip and I've had funny spells ever since. Before I have another I want to tell you what I'm up against, Rookie. My Gawd, it's a funny chance that ran me up against you—just in time! Listen."

He told McTabb briefly of Scottie Deane's death, of Couchee's flight from the cabin and the present situation there.

"There isn't a minute to lose," he finished, tightening his hold on McTabb's hand. "There's the kid and the mother, and I've got to get back to them, Rookie. The rest is up to you. We've got to get a woman, if we don't—soon"—

He rose to his feet and stood there looking at McTabb. The other nodded.

"I understand," he said. "You're in a bad fix, Billy. It's 200 miles to the nearest white woman, away over near Du Brochet. You could not get an Indian to go within half a mile of a cabin that's struck by the plague, and I doubt if this white woman would come. The only game I can see is to send to Fort Churchill or Nelson House and have the force send up a nurse. It will take two weeks."

Billy gave a gesture of despair. Indian Joe had listened attentively, and now rose quietly from his position in front of the stove.

"There's Indian camp over on Arrow Lake," he said, facing Billy. "I know a squaw there who not afraid of plague."

"Sure as fate!" cried McTabb exultantly. "Joe's mother is over there, and if there is anything on earth she won't do for Joe I can't guess what it is. Early this Winter she came a hundred and fifty miles—alone, to pay him a visit. She'll come. Go after her, Joe. I'll go Billy MacVeigh's bond to get the Service to pay her $5 a day from the hour she starts!" He turned to Billy. "How's your head?" he asked.

"Better. It was the run that fixed me, I guess."

"Then we'll go over to Couchee's cabin and I'll bring back the kid."

They left Joe preparing for his three-day trip into the south and east, and outside the cabin McTabb insisted on Billy riding behind the dogs. They struck back for Couchee's trail, and when they came to it McTabb laughed.

"I'll bet they're running like rabbits," he said. "What in thunder did you expect to do if you caught 'em Billy? Drag the woman back by the hair of 'er 'ead? I'm glad you tumbled where you did. You've got to beat a lynx to beat Couchee. He'd have perforated you from behind a snow-drift sure as your name's Billy MacVeigh."

Billy felt that an immense load had been lifted from him, and he was partly inclined to tell his companion more about Isobel and himself. This, however, he did not do. As McTabb strode ahead and urged on the dogs he figured on the chances of Joe and his mother returning within a week.

During that time he would be alone with Isobel, and in spite of the horrible fear that never for a moment left his heart, it was impossible for him not to feel a thrill of pleasure at the thought. Those would be days of agony for himself as well as for her, and yet he would be near, always near, the woman he loved. And little Isobel would be safe in Rookie's cabin. If anything happened—

His hands gripped the edges of the sledge at the thought that leaped into his brain. It was Pelitier's thought. If anything happened to Isobel the little girl would be his own, forever and forever. He thrust the thought from him as if it were the plague itself. Isobel would live. He would make her live. If she died—

McTabb heard the low cry that broke from his lips. He could not keep it back. Good God, if she went, how empty the world would be! He might not ever see her again after these days of terror that were ahead of him; but if she lived, and he knew that the sun was shining in her bright hair, and that her blue eyes still looked up at the stars, and that in her sweet prayers she sometimes thought of him—along with Deane—life could not be quite so lonely for him.

McTabb had dropped back to his side.

"Head hurt?" he asked.

"A little," lied Billy. "There's a level stretch ahead, Rookie. Hustle up the dogs!"

Half an hour later the sledge drew up in front of Couchee's cabin. Billy pointed to the tent.

"The little one is there," he said. "Go over an' get acquainted, Rookie. I'm going to take a look inside to see if everything is all right."

He entered the cabin quietly and closed the door softly behind him. The inner door was as he had left it, partly open, and he looked in, with a wildly beating heart. He could no longer hesitate. He stepped in and spoke her name.

"Isobel."

There was a movement on the bed, and he was startled by the suddenness with which Isobel sprang to her feet. She drew aside the heavy curtain from the window and stood in the light. For a moment Billy saw her blue eyes filled with a strange fire as she stared at him. There was a wild flush in her cheeks and he could hear her dry breath as it came from between her parted lips. Her hair was still undone and covered her in a shimmering veil.

"I've found a trapper's cabin, Isobel, and we're taking the baby there," he went on. "She will be safe. And we're sending for help—for a woman"—

He stopped, horror striking him dumb. He saw more plainly the feverish madness in Isobel's eyes. She dropped the curtain and they were in gloom. The whispered words he heard were more terrible than the madness in her eyes.

"You won't kill her?" she pleaded. "You won't kill my baby? You won't kill her"—

She staggered back toward the bed, whispering the words over and over again. Not until she had dropped upon it did Billy move. The blood in his body seemed to have turned cold. He dropped upon his knees at her side. His hand buried itself in the soft smother of her hair, but he no longer felt the touch of it.

"IRISH NAVY" COMING HERE

Cruiser Omaha Due at Port Early in April

Commander and Gobs True Sons of Erin

Ship is Fastest and Best of Type Afloat

"The Irish Navy," otherwise the U.S.S. Omaha, the fastest, highest-powered and most modern cruiser afloat, will arrive at Los Angeles Harbor early in April on her maiden voyage, according to advices reaching the local naval base last night. Capt. David C. Hanrahan, known on American naval craft throughout the world as "the Irish Grand Duke," hoisted his flag to the main truck of the Omaha as her first commander when she went into commission at the Puget Sound Navy Yard last Saturday. Red hair and freckles are in the majority among the Omaha's crew. She is manned by a selected crew of veteran sailormen, all back in American waters after two years' duty out at the China stations and 75 per cent of them are sons of Erin.

FIRST OF TYPE

The Omaha is the first of ten light cruisers, all sister ships being built for duty as destroyer squadron leaders and flagships. Her Westinghouse Parsons electric turbines generate energy of 90,000 horsepower, greater than that of the engines driving the liner Leviathan. Five hundred and fifty-five feet in length, her graceful proportions give her the appearance of an overgrown destroyer. She has a cruising speed of thirty-five knots and a main battery carries twelve six-inch guns. She is also equipped with secondary batteries and torpedo tubes.

The Omaha has just been commissioned after completion at the Tacoma plant of the Todd Dry Dock and Construction Company, where her sister ships, the Milwaukee and Cincinnati, are nearing completion.

REGUNNING RECORD

Dispatches received at the base also told of the remarkable regunning record just established by the Puget Sound Navy Yard recently when the huge fourteen-inch guns of the dreadnaught Texas were removed and replaced with new guns in twenty-four hours.

While the remainder of the dreadnaught force of the battle fleet is sweltering in the heat of the tropics at Panama, the Texas is covered with a mantle of snow at Bremerton. Upon completion of her overhauling period she will sail for Los Angeles Harbor, reaching here April 10.

PORT NOTES

Work was started yesterday at the plant of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation on extensive engine repairs to the Shipping Board steamer Yolaire, here from New Orleans on her first trip to Los Angeles Harbor. The Yolaire had for some time been laid up at Orange, Tex., and will operate hereafter in intercoastal trade out of this port. Her repairs are scheduled for completion next Monday.

The motorship Donna Lane is due today from Tacoma on her second and last trip to construct lumber trade to this port. She will carry lumber hereafter from Tacoma to New York.

On her last trip in Pacific waters, the Dutch liner Kinderdijk of the Holland-American Line fleet is due today from the Far East for Europe. The Kinderdijk and her sister ship, the Rembdijk, are to be taken off the European-Pacific run and will be replaced by modern motorships.

Operating in the joint service of the Holland-American and Royal Mail Steam Packet Lines, the motorships Loch Katrine, Loch Goil and Dinteldijk are already known on the Pacific Coast, while the new motorship Drechtdijk is also on the berth for Los Angeles. The only steamers to be retained on the run are the Moerdyk and and Cardiganshire, both practically new craft.

Capt. George Harbottle, commander of the Kinderdijk, is regarded as one of the handsomest shippers in the offshore fleet. He is slated to command one of the new motorships now nearing completion in Great Britain for the Holland-American Line.

The mine sweeper Gammel, tender of the Aircraft Squadrons, battle fleet, is due from Mare Island today towing target raft No. 61.

Marking the beginning of a movement of sailing vessels from northern lumber ports to Los Angeles Harbor, the schooner Vigilant will sail from Astoria this morning with 1,700,000 feet of lumber for the local plant of the K. K. Wood Lumber Company, her owners.

Radio advices from Capt. H. R. Lester, commanding the Honolulu liner Calawall, indicate that the steamer will arrive here at daylight Saturday on the completion of her first round voyage to Hawaii. She is maintaining a steady speed of fourteen knots, according to Capt. Lester.

BUSINESS NEWS OF BUSY MARTS

Faster Boats Bring England Closer to Los Angeles

Silver Market Active; New Manufacturing Plant

Cotton Stocks Decrease; Bank Acquires New Branch

Steamship and motor-ship schedules of the Royal Mail Steam Packet and the Holland-American lines between Los Angeles and European ports will be shortened by the decision of the two companies to increase the speed of the boats to twelve knots, reducing the running time to twenty-five days from here to Liverpool. The change is the result of a conference yesterday between C. J. Lehman, Los Angeles agent for the two companies, and E. R. F. De Lancy and Cpl. E. J. M. Nash, Pacific Coast agents for the Holland-American and Royal Mail lines, respectively.

The first ship to operate under the new schedule will be the motor ship Lochgoil of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Line, which will leave Los Angeles March 12 and will stop at Liverpool, London, Rotterdam and Antwerp. The ship will carry freight and passengers.

The M. S. Dinteldyk of the Holland-American Line will begin the new schedule on April 1, when the ship will leave Los Angeles for Rotterdam, London and Antwerp. The Dinteldyk will be the first of the motor ships to increase its passenger-carrying capacity to sixteen, having recently obtained a passenger license to this effect.

A cargo of 500 tons of cotton, borax, canned goods and miscellaneous merchandise will leave the harbor today on the S.S. Kinderdyk of the Holland-American Line. The goods are consigned to various continental ports.

SILVER IS ACTIVE

Foreign silver manifested renewed strength yesterday and the purchases were heavy enough to create considerable interest on the part of financial commentators. The buying was attributed to the Far East, principally China and India, the two countries generally active in the silver market. Open market quotations in New York were at 64¾, as compared with 64¾ for the week ended February 27.

China's participation in the market is ascribed to improvement in trade conditions and the termination of the New Year period. It is said that the China market is now in the best position since prewar days, as the result of the passing of excessive stocks into actual consumption.

India was the largest silver buyer during the month of January and reports indicate that present commitments are at the same rate. Market improvement in the jute and tea trades has contributed to general prosperity.

DRESS FACTORY

Following the purchase of The Sassy Jane Company, manufacturing Sassy Jane summer frocks and house-dresses, by the M. G. Cooper Dry Goods Company in the bankruptcy court yesterday, Miss June Rand, creator and originator of the Sassy Jane dresses announced that a new company to be called The June Rand Frocks would be incorporated to manufacture and distribute a similar line of goods.

The Sassy Jane Company sold its dresses on a nation-wide scale, and was the first factory of its kind to operate in Los Angeles. The company became involved in financial difficulties a short time ago, went into involuntary bankruptcy, and was sold yesterday to the highest bidder for $42,500.

Miss Rand plans to have the new company on a production basis in the near future, and is arranging to distribute the dresses on the same scale as in the former venture.

COTTON STOCKS

Total stocks of American cotton for the period ended February 23 are estimated by the Galveston Cotton Exchange and Board of Trade to amount to 2,462,670 bales, a decrease of 1,319,964 bales from the corresponding time of 1921. Total world stocks aggregate 4,407,670 bales, a decrease of 1,416,364 from 1921.

The shrinkage in world stocks reflects the marked decrease in consumption during 1921, and the shortage of the world crop. The cotton market has made sharp rises during the present season on this basis, May cotton selling above 30 cents a pound on Wednesday.

LARGEST CASH DEAL OF RECORD

Seventy Million Dollars Involved in Transfer of Mining Stock

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, March 1.—Wall street wrote a new and interesting page into its history yesterday, when a $70,000,000 cash transaction was consummated and the Anaconda Copper Mining Company paid for 2,000,000 shares of Chile Copper Company stock bought from members of the Guggenheim family. The price was $35 a share. The transaction, Wall street believes, constitutes the largest cash deal ever recorded.

A new copper merger of great size is reported under consideration, with the Kennecott Copper Corporation as the nucleus. If effected along the lines desired it would compare favorably, bankers say, with the new Anaconda company, inclusive of the Chile company.

As now outlined the new Kennecott company would have capacity for producing 600,000,000 pounds of copper annually, whereas, it is asserted, the Anaconda company, with its Chile adjunct, can produce about 500,000,000 pounds annually.

Kennecott Copper Company for some time has owned about 40 per cent of the outstanding shares of Utah Copper Company, for some of which it paid as high as $118 a share. New offers by Kennecott, on the basis of seven shares for four of Utah, were accepted by some of the larger stockholders in amount large enough to give Kennecott more than 50 per cent of the shares, it is reported.

The Penrose estate of Philadelphia, credited with about 60,000 Utah shares, is said to have consented to the proposals, and various members of the Guggenheim family, large holders both of Kennecott and Utah, also are said to favor the deal.

Eventually, it is declared, the proposed Kennecott consolidation would include control of Utah, Nevada Consolidated and Mother Lode copper mines in the United States, including Alaska, and the Braden mine in Chile, already controlled through stock ownership by Kennecott.

Through affiliation of the Morgan banking firm with the Cerro De Pasco Copper Corporation, which owns and operates a large low-cost mine in Peru, and its affiliation with Kennecott, Wall street is of the opinion that Cerro De Pasco would eventually be included in the Kennecott combination.

These figures were made public at the annual stockholders' meeting today at Whiting, Ind.

Total assets of the company for 1922 were $246,598,743.79, as compared with $231,919,621.30 for 1921. Cash on hand at the close of 1922 was $15,147,949.17, as compared with $9,533,651.32 in 1921.

Capital stock, totaling $107,326,450 in 1921, was $230,181,650.32, the increase being a stock dividend during 1922, which totaled approximately $110,000,000. The drop in accounts payable from $24,122,-687.10 in 1921 to $9,541,964.39 last year was due to withdrawal of many banks.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Panama Rubber Through Los Angeles Port May Yet Lead Uncle Sam from Great Britain's Yoke

BY JOHN HALD

For the purpose of indicating to Pacific Coast investors sources of trade extension The Times recently published in this department a series of articles covering Central and South American business opportunities. When I wrote those articles, rubber, because of long stagnation in Latin America, received but slight mention. Today every big rubber user in the United States is asking our government to find new sources of supply, the reason being that the English planters in the East Indies have boosted prices almost out of sight, and our manufacturers, with unlimited rubber producing land to the south of us, less than a week's sail from New York and New Orleans, are helpless, crying for relief from a foreign competitor.

With Los Angeles Harbor growing so fast there is occasional difficulty in meeting the demands of shipping, the subject of trade expansion holds first place. Through this doorway of the Pacific Coast, to a rapidly increasing manufacturing center, raw material must come in ever increasing quantities; and one of the most important articles to come will be crude rubber. This field of rich future trade extends from Southern Mexico to Southern Brazil, and will produce every ounce of rubber needed in our factories. This result can be obtained within ten years. The great cultivated rubber plantations of the East Indies have grown to overshadowing size within the last two decades. Before that, as all know, Brazil supplied wild rubber to our trade, since then grown far beyond the Brazilian output.

Strangely enough, Latin America has never attempted the systematic development of the cultivated rubber industry. Here and there a few have set out plantations, and are doing good business, but the East Indian rubber, coming in huge quantities, secured our home market, and the American manufacturer seemingly secure with what he considered an abundant supply of rubber in sight, completely disregarded Latin America. Naturally, the Latin American planters turned to coffee, cocoa, bananas, cocoanuts, hard woods, hides, etc., and allowed his rubber trees to go to waste.

COSTLY OVERSIGHT

We are paying a stiff price for our lack of foresight—the first installment, $500,000, was just the other day handed to Mr. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, for the purpose of finding in our insular possessions sources of rubber supply. Almost daily The Times publishes Washington dispatches telling of official uneasiness over the rubber situation which, if not mastered, will make itself felt in the home of the millionaire and the working man alike in greatly increased automobile-tire costs. This writer, and others who have spent many years in tropical America, and who want to see the peoples of the two continents drawn more closely together in bonds of friendship and trade, have forecast such things as the present rubber situation. Let us now point out a remedy.

On account of proximity, Central America offers the best field for rubber planting, this including Southern Mexico. The six states, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, all have rubber producing soil and climate. They are capable of producing the best rubber, and all are within a few days' sail of the United States. Only capital is needed, the labor supply being abundant and reasonably cheap. The coastal region of these countries can be exploited and the rubber output laid down in our factories within twenty days after gathering the sap.

TREES LONG LIVED

The Pacific coast of Mexico and Central America will produce many thousands of tons of rubber, all of which may be imported through Los Angeles. The Atlantic coast also is capable of great production. Rubber trees live long and produce abundantly when scientifically bled and cared for. Few insects attack them, and I know of no safer agricultural investment.

In the matter of where to begin no suggestion is of real value unless the factor of reasonable investment safety is given first consideration. Upon Mexican conditions every newspaper reader has been informed. When our government recognizes the government of President Obregon, investment in that country will, no doubt, vastly increase. Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica, at present, are enjoying what looks like permanent peace and fair prosperity; and I think they should be encouraged, by our business men investing in their industries. All have available large areas of good rubber land, and the different governments are eager to encourage outside capital to come and invest. They need help, and they are fair in land prices, though most of them limit the quantity of land sold to a corporation. In Costa Rica all the coast is retained by the government, though leases are possible.

SAFETY FIRST

Going back to the question of security of investment, I want to indicate that spot where American influence is practically the same as in one of our own States; and I want to do this without hinting at instability in any other country, leaving judgment to those who are willing to vouch for their choice, as I am to vouch for the Republic of Panama, bisected by our Panama Canal. I know that all of the above mentioned countries will gain enormously after our men of business have entered the wedge in what is as safe a place as any man could reasonably wish for. The little Republic of Panama (two-thirds the size of California) will not by a large margin supply our rubber needs, but the timid investor must be led to a safe starting point. Once there and prospering, the other States will come to their own.

The United States government, through the Canal Commission, has expended many thousands of dollars in experimental farms in Panama; and some of those farms, at this very writing, are earning astonishing profits. Every product of the tropical Panama soil was tried out, and the net results of these costly experiments are on file at Washington for the information of all interested. Every kind of commercial wood has been tested and scientifically recorded. These experiments covered a period of years and were conducted by men sent from the different departments in Washington. Included will be found full data covering rubber production in the Republic of Panama. Being right under our eye, and having in mind all possible contingencies in relation to the safety of the Canal, our government has explored Panama and looked into its agricultural, timber and mining possibilities to an extent which leaves little to the imagination. Its tiniest trail is mapped and every possible resource listed. And Panama is a rubber-producing country.

Now that there is a tendency to start something, Panama, because of its favored position, full protection by our government, and possessing the required rubber-producing soil, not to mention unlimited transportation facilities to both coasts, seems to me the logical point at which to begin. The Panama government (a replica of our own in form,) always genial to the stranger, is proud to tell the world that Panama is just as sound and safe as the government of the United States, whose advice and guidance it heeds in all matters of importance to its future prosperity, smoothly gliding along, busy with its internal affairs, in which the United States rarely meddles.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 1. — Heavy profit-taking failed to halt operations for the rise in today's stock market, speculators for the advance finding little difficulty in selecting new leaders when the old industrial favorites began to falter. Several new high records were made during the session in the sugar, copper and motor accessory groups and by American Woolen, at 107 3-4; American Can at 104¼, U. S. Realty at 104, and California Petroleum at 96½, the last mentioned up 7 1-8 points.

Several commission houses sounded a note of warning during the day. It was pointed out by one large house that approximately 75 per cent of brokers' loans, now estimated in excess of $3,000,000,000, represented funds of interior banks, which were beginning to withdraw from the local market in order to meet the increased demands for commercial credit at home. This was construed as an indication of higher call-money rates, which would likely involve a decline in quoted values.

While there were reports of expanded public buying, the large bulk of the trading was still being done by professional interests, Wall-street pools being particularly active. The chief item of trade news was the establishment of a new high price of 17 cents a pound for copper metal, as compared with 14 1-4 around the first of the year; the doubling of the Utah Copper dividend, placing it on a $4 annual basis; and sales of Cuban raw sugar at 5 5-8 cents a pound, the highest price since 1920. After the market closed, the American Smelting and Refining Company raised the price of lead from 4.10 to 4.15 cents.

The usual market leaders moved within a comparatively narrow range. U. S. Steel closing 1-8 lower at 103, Baldwin 1-8 higher at 136 1-4, and Studebaker 3-8 higher at 120 1-8.

American Smelting was the outstanding copper stock, jumping 3 1-4 points to 86¼. Utah yielded fractionally in response to the traditional "selling on good news." Anaconda, China and U. S. Smelting closed at least a point higher and the others fractionally.

Gains of 1 1-4 to 2 1-4 points were scored by Bosch Magneto, Stewart Warner Speedometer and Stromberg Carburetor. Other individual strong spots were American Express, Burns Brothers A., Lorillard Tobacco and Tidewater Oil, all up 3 to 5½ points.

Railroad shares were slightly reactionary, despite the publication of more favorable January earnings statements. Southern Pacific dropped more than a point, but most of the other active issues showed only fractional changes.

Call money opened at 5 per cent, dropped to 4½ within an hour and then advanced again to 5, where it closed. Time money continues firm with loans made at 5½ per cent for the longer maturities. The ruling rate on prime commercial paper is 5 per cent, with a few exceptional names commanding 4 3-4. Only a limited amount of new paper is coming in.

Trading in the foreign exchange market was quiet and irregular, demand sterling selling around $4.76½ and French francs just below 6.10 cents.

NEW YORK CURB

Oils Lead

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, March 1.—Oil shares led the advance in today's curb market, but some of the early gains were substantially reduced by profit-taking before the close. Standard Oil of Indiana boosted 6¾ on publication of the 1922 report showing net profits of $49,351,194, after tax reserves, which is equivalent to $3.60 a share ($25 par value) on all stock outstanding at the end of the year, or double the earnings of the year before. Galena Signal established a new top at 79 and then dropped back to 77, up 5. Oil reports that $400,217 had been added to surplus last year. Standard Oils of Kansas and Kentucky also gold substantially higher.

Rex Motors touched 15¾, a record high, in response to an early dividend of 1 per cent, in addition to the regular dividend of 1½ per cent. Household Products and Cleveland Motors also were strong. Checker Cab dropped 1½. Columbia Gas new stock, selling between 50 and 50¾ on "when issued" basis, and Stutz Bearcat that A. Co., Inc., Shelton Mills, selling around 37½, were traded in for the first time.

Changes in the mining group were mixed and relatively unimportant.

Coppers Strong

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

In the foreign group the only noteworthy changes were losses of more than 1 points in Netherlands 6s and approximately a point each in Swiss 8s and French-American 7½s and a gain of 1 point in Serbian 8s. All the active United States government bonds with the exception of the second 4¼, which were unchanged, and the fourth 4s, which dropped 4c on $100, showed net gains of 2@16c.

The Seaboard Air Line issues led the advance in speculative railroad mortgages, the 4s gaining 1½ points and the 5s 1¾. St. Paul issues improved fractionally in response to the market improvement shown in C.M.& St.P. Kansas & Texas issues reported. Atchison adjustment 4s slumped recovered yesterday's loss.

Total sales, par value, were $10,182,000.

Initial design report that some opposition has ceased in the distribution among individuals of some of the recent large offerings. The principal issues put out today were the $7,000,000 Consolidated Light and Power Company first mortgage and refunding lien sinking fund 6½ per cent gold bonds, offered at 98½; $10,000,000 Southern California Edison Company general and refunding mortgage 5½ per cent bonds, offered at 97¼ to yield 5.70 per cent, and $5,000,000 H. BANK IS ACQUIRED

A. M. Chaffey, president of the California Bank, announced yesterday that approval of the State Superintendent of Banks had been given for the purchase of the Southside State Bank, located on the southwest corner of Vermont and Manchester, and that permission had also been granted to amalgamate the assets of the latter named institution, with those of California Bank.

The Southside State Bank was purchased outright three weeks ago, by California Securities Company, acting as agent for California Bank. Mr. Chaffey stated further, that the combining of the assets of the two banks would not be in the form of a merger.

Beginning today, the bank will be operated as the Southside Branch of the California Bank and will be the thirty-third office maintained by the local institution in Los Angeles and suburbs.

D. E. Dobbins, formerly cashier, will become manager of the new branch, and R. J. Kane, assistant cashier, will be assistant manager.

Total resources of the Southside State Bank are approximately $500,000.

The 20,000-Barrel Petroleum Midway Gusher Has Made Signal Hill Leases Priceless!

Miracle Owns Six Signal Hill Leases

When we bought Miracle's six leases on Signal Hill, they were so located on the oil producing structure—close enough to big producers, to be TREMENDOUSLY VALUABLE.

The great Davis-Macmillan—the Nicholson No. 2—the Leonard No. 4—the famous D'Angelo—and a host of other 3000—4000—and 5000-barrel wells near-by TREBLED THEIR VALUE.

And then, the great Petroleum Midway's Ryder gusher—which on Monday roared in producing 20,000 barrels of oil a day—MADE MIRACLE'S SIX LEASES PRICELESS.

Miracle Leases Are Not For Sale

These six Signal Hill leases owned by the Miracle Oil Syndicate are NOT FOR SALE—we believe they will produce tens of millions of dollars' worth of oil.

But Miracle Units Are For Sale

Production interests (called units) in these six priceless Signal Hill leases can be purchased at $100 each.

A definite, fixed part of the production from three wells now drilling—the two wells already starting—from the locations we have made—on these six Signal Hill leases—is what you buy when you buy Miracle units.

Only 4300 equal-sharing, non-assessable, perpetual assignments (units) share in the oil from all of the wells ever drilled on Miracle's six great Signal Hill lease holds.

Miracle distributes its earnings every 30 days—divides them equally among the owners of its 4300 units.

Buy Miracle Units Today

The few Miracle units that remain to be sold at $100 each will be sold on the first orders that reach us by wire—by mail—or by telegraph—Oversubscriptions will be returned.

CUT IN IMMIGRATION SOUGHT IN NEW BILL

QUOTA SET AT 2 PER CENT BASED ON 1910 CENSUS FIGURES

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A resolution which would reduce to 2 per cent the quota of immigration from Europe, based on the number of each nationality in the United States under the census of 1910, was introduced today by Chairman Johnson of the House Immigration Committee. The present law provides for a 3 per cent quota under the same census. The measure also would admit immediate relatives of persons who had become citizens or declared their intention of doing so.

Hope was expressed that the resolution could be put through in lieu of the immigration bill reported several weeks ago and which would have restricted the quotas to 2 per cent based on the 1910 census. Chairman Johnson was unable to get consideration for that measure at this session of Congress.

POSTAL REFORM HOPES DIMMED

New Opposes Nonpolitical Organization

Believes Party in Power Must be Responsible

Advocates of New System Are Discouraged

BY ROBERT T. BARRY
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Impetus given by Postmaster-General Work to the movement started a decade ago for a nonpolitical administration of the postal service conducted as a business institution under a director of posts, free from partisan influence and beyond political control, is to receive no encouragement from Postmaster-General New.

Mr. New, who will assume his Cabinet office Monday morning, does not agree with Dr. Work as to the advisability of having postmasters in the larger cities selected free from political considerations. The new head of the postal service believes administration of the service to be an essential factor in the political responsibility undertaken by a party given control of the government. That it can discharge that duty in full measure is possible only when it can have the naming of the men who are to assist in the task, is his position.

Although as a political theory, Mr. New is held to be standing on firm ground, advocates of postal reform are discouraged over his hostility to nonpartisan administration of the postoffice. It is their contention that the mail service never can be brought to that point of efficiency to which the American people, generally and business men particularly are entitled, so long as the department is continued as a football of politics.

STRESS GREAT EXPENSE

Recognition of the fact that to have an army you must feed and sustain it, and that political parties without organization and reward for service were not possible has not dismayed the advocates of postal reform, who pointed to the great expense of public funds to maintain the service under political administration. Some years ago a special commission of Congress, including such an outstanding believer in political organization as Senator Boies Penrose, urged a business direction of the postal service, under a director of posts, who would be appointed for life and removable only for cause. Secretary of War Weeks, while a member of the House, urged the enactment of legislation to carry the commission's views into effect. Endorsement of the idea was given by business, civic, religious, educational and political leaders in all parts of the United States two years ago. There was hope at that time that Will H. Hayes, as Postmaster-General, would start the ball rolling for business director of the service.

It was not intended to dispense with a Postmaster-General. That political functionary was to remain a Cabinet member and to have general supervision over policy in the department. The actual management would be invested in a director of posts, who, being free from politics and not subject to removal every four years, would center his efforts on efficient service.

DRAW COMPARISON

The point has been made repeatedly that such institutions as the Pennsylvania Railroad, the United States Steel Corporation or any other similar organization would be wrecked if subjected to complete change of personnel every four years, from the president and his principle executive assistants down to field representatives and agents, new men with absolutely no experience or training being thrust into the places.

That the Postoffice Department has been able to survive such a system, it was argued by the special congressional commission, was due solely to the fact that the Treasury of the United States stood behind it to meet the deficits.

Senator Norris of Nebraska has been trying for some years to have at least a start made toward destruction of political dictation of postmasterships. In spite of the nominal influence of the civil-service rules, any one who is at all familiar with the workings of the game, knows that a Senator or Representative can have his man chosen regardless of examinations or any other obstacles.

Politicians have discovered devious ways of getting around civil-service rules, and few Senators who thus seek to maintain State organizations fail to get what they want.

HOPES BLASTED

There was a hope that the present joint congressional commission on reorganization of the Postoffice Department would take into Congress a specific recommendation for establishment of a business administration in the service. A commission under the leadership of Senator Townsend of Michigan has put its finger on many weak spots in the organization of such offices as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis, and has suggested some really worthwhile changes in the general administration of the department but it has not gone to the extent of attacking the political system which has been the greatest lead the service had to carry. Now Senator Townsend is about to leave Congress.

VALUABLE WILSHIRE LOT SOLD

Old Lawler Property is Bought by San Franciscan as Site for Apartments

The lot at the northeast corner of Wilshire Boulevard and New Hampshire street, recently purchased by San Francisco capitalists, has been resold to S. H. Levin of San Francisco, according to A. C. Blumenthal & Co., agents in the transaction, and substantial improvements, representing an expenditure of approximately $500,000, are to be made by the new owner.

The property was formerly occupied by the Oscar Lawler residence, which was destroyed several years ago by a bomb. The first purchasers of the site paid $85,000 for the property, and it was resold, according to Mr. Blumenthal, at a substantial profit.

Mr. Levin, who is a successful builder and operator of district theaters in San Francisco, plans the erection of two modern apartment-houses on the property. These will probably be six stories in height, and will be equipped and furnished by the owner. This is the first investment in Los Angeles realty to be made by Mr. Levin.

The site, which will be entirely covered by the buildings, has a frontage of 150 feet on Wilshire boulevard and 130 feet on New Hampshire street.

COMPANY'S STATEMENT UNDER FIRE

City Will File Report in Telephone Rate Case Now Before Commission

City Attorney Stephens announced yesterday that in support of the city's application for an order reducing telephone rates, now pending before the State Railroad Commission, he will file in a few days a detailed supplemental report and exhibits setting forth that the Southern California Telephone Company made $86,695 in 1921, instead of losing $322,370, as contended by the company in resisting a reduction of rates.

The City Attorney's supplemental brief will be accompanied by engineering data compiled by the Public Utilities Department. Engineers Osborne and Dillon will charge that the company's showing of a financial loss in 1921 was based on excessive amounts being charged to depreciation and of license payments to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company of $135,-544.

The city contends this is $13,565 in excess of the license fee allowed to be paid to the parent company by the Los Angeles company under a previous ruling of the Commission establishing the license fee.

CITIES LINE UP IN CRIME DRIVE

Whole State Backing Legal Procedure Reform Plan

South is Nearly Unanimous; North Falls in Line

Heavy Pressure to be Felt by Members of Legislature

From all parts of California, City Clerk Domingues is receiving notification that city governments, chambers of commerce and other civic bodies are indorsing resolutions recently adopted by the Los Angeles City Council, as well as by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, recommending changes in the judicial procedure and criminal laws of the State as originally outlined by the Los Angeles Crime Commission.

After the recent election of the Los Angeles City Council in indorsing the Crime Commission's suggestions for amendments to State laws so as to stamp out crime, 750 City Councils, State Senators and Assemblymen, chambers of commerce and other civic bodies were notified by City Clerk Domingues, as directed in the Los Angeles City Council resolutions, of the action taken here. Replies now are arriving at the City Hall telling of similar action being taken by other California communities, showing that the movement for more stringent laws against crime has become State-wide.

All of Imperial Valley within another week will have been put on record in favor of the reform program, designed to improve halting justice throughout the State. The latest action is by the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Imperial Valley. The Riverside Chamber of Commerce, comprising all the chambers of that county, already has indorsed the movement.

The Imperial Valley Chambers unanimously adopted resolutions approving the program and calling on the local legislators to support it at Sacramento. In addition the various city governments are indorsing it. Calexico and Brawley already have done so. The resolutions of the Los Angeles City Council urged support by all City Councils and Boards of Trustees and Chambers of Commerce in the State.

The entire northern part of California is expected to swing into line for the program at the meeting this month at Sacramento of the Northern Counties Association, according to a letter received by City Clerk Domingues and read to the City Council. In many of the letters, the communities in addition to indorsing the campaign for legal and judicial reform say that the legislators from those sections have been urged by their constituents to work for this legislation.

BAKERSFIELD BACKS MOVE

The Bakersfield City Council unanimously indorsed the proposed legislation as did the Bakersfield Civic Commercial Association of which H. I. Tupman is president.

The Chamber of Commerce and Civic Association of Pasadena, Huntington Park Chamber of Commerce, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, San Fernando Chamber of Commerce, Pacoima Chamber of Commerce, and the Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce are a few of the organizations which have notified the Los Angeles City Council that resolutions similar to the ones adopted here have been

Film "Vampire" Adopts Gurgling Baby

Barbara La Marr and Her Adopted Son

Dead Baby With Skull Crushed Is Found by Road

The body of a 2 or 4-day-old baby, its skull crushed, was found late yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Wilmot near the Union Pacific right of way on the Downey Road, a short distance from Fruitland avenue.

The body was found in a small wooden box. It was naked. In the bottom of the box was found a newspaper dated January 14, last, leading to the belief that the baby was killed at least three weeks ago.

Several rags and cheap clothing covered the body, which was taken to the Huntington Park mortuary. The only clew found was a laundry mark on some woman's underclothing with which the body was covered.

SMILE WINS HOME FOR BOY

Actress Just Can't Resist Taking Orphan When He Flirts With Her at Texas Asylum

The Great Scenarist who wrote the story of Barbara La Marr's romantic life devised another episode during her recent visit to Dallas, Tex., and she returned Wednesday to her Hollywood home with an adopted baby.

Once Reatha Watson, to whom a judge sternly said: "You are too beautiful to live in a large city," Miss La Marr is now one of filmland's most successful portrayers of "vampire roles," known wherever motion pictures are shown.

But her latest role is that of a foster-mother to a little Texas orphan, who smiled his way into the affections that—screenically speaking—a thousand heroes have vainly sought to win.

His name is now Marvin Carville La Marr, and before long he will pass his first milestone. His foster-mother found him in Hope Cottage, a Dallas institution that cares for orphans and foundlings, and he was chosen from sixty little ones. Miss La Marr incidentally was in Dallas to attend an automobile show by invitation.

SMILE WINS HER

"He smiled and gurgled, and I smiled—and that was all," said the silver-voiced siren yesterday. "I didn't have any idea of adopting a baby when I went there, but something about him just made me pick him up—and then I couldn't bear to go away without him, so that very afternoon I cut through all the red tape and adopted him."

Are vampires people? Are their hearts as stony as their actions indicate? Well, listen:

"You see," Miss La Marr said softly, "once I had a little boy. He died two years ago. It left an empty place in my heart that has ached ever since. But Marvin has filled it, and we're going to be happy now, aren't we, precious?"

Marvin, cuddled in her arms, gurgled emphatic assent, his utterance somewhat indistinct due to his efforts to discover whether Miss La Marr's fingers contained any nourishment.

"I was a foster-child myself," said the actress, "and I know what it means to feel that there is no one in all the world that belongs to you."

Foster-child or not, Miss La Marr's life has so far been composed of incidents which would make the imaginative creations of a scenario writer seem tame. Back in 1913, as Reatha Watson, she broke into the public prints as the supposed victim of an abduction; a little over a year later, she announced that she was a widow of two months, having been wed and widowed by Jack Lytelle, Arizona rancher, whom she declared had used cave-man tactics in his wooing.

DIVORCED AGAIN

In 1914, after she had figured in the sensational flight of an Italian lawyer named Riccardi, she reached another climax of her human drama when she discovered that Lawrence Converse, whom she had married, had a wife and three children. Converse said he was a victim of "matrimonial aphasia."

When two years more had passed, Mrs. Watson-Lytelle-Converse married a chorus-man named Phil Ainsworth, who two months later sought and obtained a divorce, naming Robert Carville, a

Wife Screams When Husband Is Held Guilty

Mrs. T. M. Daniels threw Judge Reeve's courtroom into an uproar yesterday afternoon, when she put her arms about her husband's neck and screamed, "there is no justice," after a jury had found Mr. Daniels guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Mr. Daniels was prosecuted on the complaint of Al J. Gabel, who charged that he had been persuaded to invest $5000 in cash and a note for $6402 in the Reliance Building Company, owned jointly by Daniels and William L. Brown, on the understanding that the assets of the company were $24,000.

The testimony indicated that the actual assets were $3000 and that among the assets listed were included the investments made by Mr. Gabel.

Counsel for Mr. Daniels moved for a new trial and hearing on the motion was set for March 6.

TWO HELD AS FUGITIVES

Harry Hayward and George Luttrell were arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Fox on a fugitive warrant from Baltimore, Md., charging them with the theft of an automobile and the embezzlement of $3700. They are held at the County Jail for extradition.

RAIN TRACE IS RECORDED FOR CITY

Near-by Communities Get Better Results From Threatening Weather

Los Angeles was treated to a light sprinkle of rain yesterday afternoon, following two weeks of unbroken sunshine. The weather man checked up his gauges, barometers, etc., last evening, and made the official announcement that today's weather is problematical, with a light northerly wind, and possibility of rain.

Nearby cities received showers yesterday. At Monrovia the precipitation at 5 p.m. was .02 of an inch. Rainfall for the season to date, in that city, is 12.28, about half that of the same time last year. F. A. Bliss, Monrovia's weather forecaster, declares Southern California will have little if any more rain, and that the spring will be the earliest in years.

Pasadena was visited by sharp showers yesterday, totaling .15 of an inch, and bringing the season's total to 10.56. Last season's figures for this date were 26.01.

Sierra Madre got .13 of an inch, 13.02 for the season, 24.79 for last year.

Glendora recorded .02 of an inch, with a season's total of 14.59. Eagle Rock got .05, making a little more than eight inches for the season. Anaheim was visited by a misty rain, too light to measure.

The first general rain of any consequence in Imperial Valley this winter was recorded last night when .12 of an inch fell at Brawley and .15 at Calexico. The rain was general over the valley. The total for the season in the valley is placed at .25 at Calexico and .32 at Brawley. The total this time last year was .75 of an inch. The weather continued threatening today.

BUILDING IS INCREASING AT HARBOR

February's Permits Total $811,608; Huge Gain Over Month Last Year

Building operations at Los Angeles Harbor increased 111 per cent during February over the same period in 1922, according to the monthly report of Building Inspector Charles E. Bolts. Figures for the month totaled $811,608, as compared with $384,095 for February, 1922. The figures show an increase of 635 per cent over February, 1919, with permits totalling $109,215. The port's building progress during the last five years is shown by the following table of permits issued:

February, 1919, $109,215.
February, 1920, $74,936.
February, 1921, $127,648.
February, 1922, $382,095.
February, 1923, $811,609.

WATER-POWER GRAB FOUGHT

Lyon Bill Declared Menace to Interior Counties

Southern California Press is Bitter in Attack

Hot Battle in Legislature Looked For

Declaring that the Los Angeles Bureau of Power and Light is attempting, through Senate bill No. 503, which was introduced into the Legislature a few moments before the close of the first half of the present session, to set a water and hydroelectric power monopoly in Southern California and to strangle the growth of the interior counties of Inyo, Kern, San Bernardino, Riverside and Imperial, newspapers in these sections are thundering against the bill, which was presented by Senator Lyon of Venice.

It is expected that when the Legislature reconvenes next week, the battle over this bill will rage hotly and that attacks will be made upon Los Angeles, as misrepresented by Dr. John R. Haynes, and the Bureau of Power and Light officials as attempting to set up a "power and water trust" with the result that if the Lyon bill carries and is signed by the Governor, the interior counties will be placed in the position of begging on hands and knees at the doors of Dr. Haynes and the Bureau of Power and Light for water and power for their communities.

BILL'S SPONSORS

The Lyon bill was prepared and sponsored by W. B. Mathews, the $12,000-a-year special counsel of the Public Service Commission and campaign manager for Senator Hiram Johnson, and by Dr. Haynes and the officials of the Bureau of Power and Light. Editorials from interior-county newspapers show that the feeling against Los Angeles is running high, and that there is danger that the interior counties will oppose legislative reapportionment, and everything else that Los Angeles desires, in the belief that in anything in which Los Angeles is interested there is a "nigger in the woodpile" somewhere. It was this distrust of everything legislative labelled "Los Angeles" that caused opposition to the ratification of the Colorado River compact in Arizona. The Board of Public Service Commissioners, while viewing this opposition with unconcealed glee, issued a formal statement declaring that it had been officially neutral in the Colorado River compact controversy although it objected to a low dam being built at Boulder Canyon.

WHAT IT PROVIDES

In brief, the Lyon bill would enable the city of Los Angeles to condemn any water, irrigation or power rights anywhere in California owned by a private company, though actually dedicated to and used in the service of other cities, counties and communities of the State.

The "joker" in the Lyon bill is the clause which states that the courts may—but the bill does not

WATTS GRAFT CASE AIRED

"Double-Crosser Double-Crossed" Declared to be Apt Title for Asserted Sewer Conspiracy

Watts' mythical $500,000 sewer system was diverted into Superior Judge Hardy's courtroom yesterday, where, on its murky surface, were reflected asserted pictures of graft, conspiracy and collusion and a tableau entitled, "The Double-Crosser Double-Crossed."

The charges were contained in a suit instituted to annul the contract for construction of the sewer system and which was awarded to J. G. Beckjord last December 26.

The suit was based on an asserted confession made to a group of Watts citizens by John P. Kennedy, a rival contractor. On the witness stand he told of an asserted conspiracy to prevent competitive bids for the construction of the sewer. He told of an agreement to accept $10,000 from Charles Thompson, another contractor, to place a complimentary bid on the work. A complimentary bid is a bid made as a display of competition by a contractor who has no intention to obtain the job.

But after placing his complimentary bid, Kennedy testified, he slipped in a bid lower than Thompson's. Then, he declared, he arranged to divide his profits with other competing bidders, if they would eliminate competition and permit him to grab the contract.

Thompson had bid $483,000, Kennedy's bid was $455,000, Fred Hoffman, a third contractor, had bid $447,000. Beckjord was awarded the contract on his estimate of $448,000.

Kennedy admitted he tried to double-cross Thompson. But he also said he was double-crossed by other contractors when they were awarded the contract and then refused to go through with the asserted scheme to divide the profits.

Kennedy stated that when he attempted to collect $20,000 from his asserted coconspirators as the price of his services he "was left out in the cold." He then placed the matter before a group of Watts citizens. He told this group that provisions had been made by his coconspirators for a fund to be distributed to certain political bosses in Watts.

CONTRACT SUBLET

From Joe Chutuk, a fifth contractor, it was learned he had sublet the contract from Berkjord and that Chutuk was to construct the sewer system at a cost of $315,000, more than $100,000 less than the price Watts was to pay for its sewers.

From Hoffman the court learned he had signed Berkjord's bond, intimating that though Hoffman's bid was not accepted he had used Berkjord as a figurehead on a lower bid.

Hoffman denied entering into any partnership with Kennedy, that he had merely offered to sublet a portion of the work to Kennedy if the job was awarded to Hoffman, and that Kennedy refused. Beckjord also denied knowledge of a partnership agreement.

The case was continued until 9:30 this morning.

COUNTY BEING PHOTOGRAPHED FROM AIR

Plane and Camera Are Used to Make Map for Government

[P. & A. Photo]

Lieut. H. K. Ramey (left) and Lieut. G. W. Goddard

UNCLE SAM flew over Los Angeles county yesterday at an altitude of 16,000 feet, looked down from three luminous eyes, taking in ten square miles of Southland glory at a glance, and registered his impressions on the sensitive plate of a 100-pound camera.

The airplane, a 400-horsepower "bird," equipped with a Liberty motor, which was finished last week at San Diego, was in charge of Lieut. H. K. Ramey, pilot, and Lieut. G. W. Goddard, photographer, both of the United States Army Air Service.

Taking off from the Santa Monica municipal aviation field at 1 p.m. yesterday, Lieuts. Goddard and Ramey covered 900 square miles in two hours, having photographed half the county in that time. However, at the height of 16,000 feet only the main features of the country could be taken, and today the officers will return over the same route, at a lower altitude, and take pictures of the country in detail.

The two officers were sent here by the United States Geological Survey Bureau to map the county and vicinity. In the back cockpit of the airplane is a small hole, and it was from this point that the tri-lens camera was operated.

Lieut. Ramey said that on the return trip from Mt. Baldy a speed of about 190 miles an hour was attained. He also reported sighting a heavy sandstorm blowing toward the sea in the vicinity of Long Beach, as well as a lighter storm near Venice.

"Cold, a mile above Baldy? We'll say it was! Hungry? Say, man, if you knew we hadn't tasted food since 1 a.m. today you'd realize the danger you're in by asking such a question!" Said Lieut. Ramey.

Lure of Sea and Road Too Strong Set Out

Couples Happy Only Short Time After Marriage

The lure of the beckoning road and the shining paths of the sea were too much for Ernest Edward Hager and Harry Hager, his son, their wives testified before Judge Elliot Craig of the Superior Court, who yesterday severed the ties which bound them to their mates in a double legal ceremony.

It was a case of like father like son, Mrs. Winifred Nancy Hager told the court after the older woman had concluded her testimony. She said they were married on June 16, 1918, and separated on April 26, 1920. The younger Hager was a wireless operator. Soon after his marriage he became restless. Home life began to irk him. The wide-flung seas enchanted him. One night he packed his belongings and disappeared. She has never heard from him since, but reports of him have reached her from the far corners of the earth, she said.

Mrs. Mavis Adele Hager, wife of Ernest Hager, told a similar story. Her husband was a carpenter, she said. For a time he was employed at Long Beach at a good salary, and they were happy, she asserted. After he obtained a government job at Panama he wrote to her to join him, but she lacked funds and was unable to do so, she testified. From Panama he was said to have gone to China and Japan. Later he went to Siberia and then returned to Asia. Then, the wife said, he wrote her that he was going to resume his old family name and she could do what she pleased as he would never return to the monotony of his former life.

She said they were married April 14, 1917, and separated Oct. 20, 1920. The elder Hager is a Spanish War veteran and has a distinguished record of service in Philippine campaign. At one time he was a navigator, his wife stated.

PUP'S ATTEMPT TO END LIFE FAILS

Spanking Too Great a Disgrace; Gas Tube Yanked Away

Jack and His Near Nemesis

GOOD-BY, cruel world! I'm going away from here!"

Thumping this message in Morse code with his tail, Jack 4-months-old French brindle bull-pup owned by A. L. Ewing, 742 South Lake street, yesterday yanked the tube from a gas heater and composed himself for a journey to oblivion via the gas route.

His sensitive Gallic soul had been outranged by harsh words and a spanking from his beloved mistress, merely because he had dragged a tablecloth and dishes from a table, chewed up a pair of new slippers and otherwise comported himself in a sportive manner. Just having a share of the fun that every pup is entitled to as his heritage, seeking only to mitigate the boredom of an otherwise dull day, when suddenly—the onslaught.

Bitter words and slaps that stung.

Disgrace.

Humiliation.

Presently he was left alone with his shame. His mistress had gone out for the afternoon, after warning him to behave himself. Behave! He'd show her! But how?

The bright blue flame of the gas heater seemed to wink at him in a suggestively sinister manner. That was it! Fascinated, he drew closer to it, and dallied with the dread idea. His adolescent imagination pictured the return of his mistress, the finding of his stark body, the outcries of grief, the remorse—"Oh, why wasn't I kinder to him?"

It pleased him, and for a moment, he felt almost cheerful. Then he made up his mind to do it. But he might as well have a little fun out of it. So he pretended that the gas tube was a large and ferocious snake, gliding with venomous intent at his mistress. He growled a warning at it.

You would, would you?

Then take that! Gripping the dangerous reptile by the neck, he shook it thoroughly and efficiently, until it lay quite limp.

Then he assayed a bark of triumph, but stopped short. Funny smell! He sniffed, sniffed again, and his legs seemed to crumple under him. He lay down.

It was just about an hour later that Mrs. Ewing found him, and by that time he had almost reached the Valley of the Shadow. She summoned a veterinary surgeon, whose first aid methods brought the little dog back to life.

Jack refused to be interviewed on his exploit, but consented to pose for a picture, side by side with the gas heater in the case. His expression says, plainer than words: "Aw, what's the use? Nobody loves me, anyway!"

say shall—require the city of Los Angeles to furnish the communities thus robbed of water and power by the Los Angeles Public Service Commission, of water in amount equal to a substantial equivalent "of the service theretofore furnished by means of such property," which has been condemned by Los Angeles, but nothing is said of the rates the communities shall pay for the water and power thus to be kindly given by Los Angeles.

Under the law the rates will be whatever Dr. Haynes and his colleagues desire shall be paid, and if the communities protest the rates, the Public Service Commission can, under the Lyon bill, go into court and protest against giving the communities any power or water at all!

WHAT IT HAS DONE

While the defeat of the Lyon bill by the Legislature is predicted, the consensus of opinion as viewed from the editorial attacks on Los Angeles in the newspapers of the State, is that the introduction of the measure has done Los Angeles incalculable harm, as it has fostered a feeling of antagonism to this city, which has been working for years to secure whole-hearted co-operation between all of the communities of Southern California for the benefit of the entire section.

While the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and other organizations have been working toward this end, the Los Angeles Bureau of Power and Light, as evidenced by its back fire against the Colorado River compact, and now by the Lyon bill, has attempted to set up inside of the city government its own creature of monopoly, a water and power trust, to which every community in Southern California must pay tribute.

DECISION OF COURT

The Lyon bill was the direct result of the defeat the Bureau of Power and Light received at the hands of the Circuit Court of Appeals, when a rehearing was denied in the case where the efforts of the Los Angeles power bureau to condemn Southern Sierras Power Company land in Owens River Gorge were stopped. The court held that Los Angeles had no right to condemn these lands, and so the Lyon bill was introduced to give the power bureau the rights which the courts held were illegal under the existing law. So Counsel Mathews and Dr. Haynes started in to change the law for their benefit and to permit Los Angeles to reach out beyond the city limits and into any part of California and to condemn water and power rights in use or to be used for other communities.

ATTACK ON BILL

As showing the strong feeling against Los Angeles aroused by the Lyon bill, the following editorial comment from the Riverside Daily Press is interesting:

"At the request of the water and power bureau of the city of Los Angeles, Senator Lyon of that county has introduced a bill that would authorize Los Angeles to condemn the power plant of the Southern Sierras Company in the Owens River Gorge.

"It will be recalled that the right of the city to condemn this property was recently decided by the Federal court adversely to the city. What is now proposed is that a State law be passed making it possible for Los Angeles to do what the Federal courts have held the city cannot legally do.

"Senator Lyon was asked by a Riversider if he did not think it was a bit nervy for Los Angeles to propose to legalize the seizure of a power plant that supplies electric power to Riverside and other communities in Southern California. He admitted that under the terms of the act proposed it might be possible for Los Angeles to take over practically all the power plants of the Southern Sierras in Inyo and Mono counties and thus put Riverside and other interior cities at the mercy of the metropolis in the matter of power supply from that source; but he argued that this was all right on the theory of 'greatest good to the greatest number.' He might have added that the plan is also justified on the theory that 'might makes right.'

"The real purpose back of this bill apparently is to make Los Angeles city the dictator of power, so that the industrial development of the smaller communities might be strangled and Los Angeles made bigger and more prosperous.

"Los Angeles had the effrontery to send a representative to Riverside with the request that nothing be said here about the Lyon bill, for the present at least. In other words, Los Angeles asked Riverside not to 'holler' until she was through robbing us.

"And yet there are people in Riverside who think this county ought to aid Los Angeles in securing an increase of 50 per cent in its voting strength in the State Legislature."

EIGHTEEN SPEEDERS LOCKED UP

Judge Chambers Hands Out Three and Five-Day Terms; Accident List Up

Coincident with a police report showing that traffic accidents and the number of persons injured are both increasing rapidly, Police Judge Chambers sent eighteen more speeders to jail yesterday for a total of sixty-two days and ten hours imprisonment.

Fourteen drew sentences of three days each, three of five days each, and Mrs. Mamie Pickens, who said she was the mother of several children, who needed her care, was let off with ten hours.

During February, 525 persons were hurt in traffic accidents, the police report showed, compared with 416 the same month last year, and there were 2454 traffic accidents reported compared with 2737 a year ago.

Five-day sentences were received by Howard Carter, A. W. Danielson, and George J. Tremble. Three days each in the service of the city will be spent by M. Tilton, Truman O. Dicky, E. E. Hill, T. Kruschke, August Alps, A. J. French, H. F. Canelti, L. W. Kastner, B. V. Smith, D. Brady, Carl C. Mitchell, Lyle Hunt, J. D. Mills and L. Liferani.

Smith's Day in Court Becomes Day of Smythe

The case of Kenneth G. Smith accused of grand larceny was called before Judge McCormick in Superior Court yesterday. A defendant was brought before the judge.

"Are you Kenneth G. Smith?" asked the court.

"No, sir, my name is Smythe," said the defendant.

"Well, what is your first name?" asked the judge.

"Kenneth G., sir."

"And are you charged with grand larceny?"

"I believe I am."

Judge McCormick turned to his clerk. "Why is this man's name entered as Smith, when he says it is Smythe?" he asked.

Court attaches got busy and discovered that the County Jail held two defendants charged with grand larceny, one by the name of Kenneth G. Smith, the other Kenneth G. Smythe. Although Smith's case had been called, Judge McCormick decided to let Smythe plead. He pleaded not guilty.

approved by these communities outside of Los Angeles.

Replies also have been received from the Stanislaus County Board of Trade, city of Oakland, from Assemblyman Frank F. Merriam of Long Beach, from the Galt Chamber of Commerce, from the Dinuba Chamber of Commerce, and from the city of Berkeley. Each mail is bringing additional favorable replies, showing that when the Legislature reconvenes next Monday each legislator will be fortified with instructions from his constituents to work for more adequate laws against crime.

The action of the Los Angeles City Council has been of tremendous benefit in the campaign for this legislation, as the sending out broadcast copies of the Los Angeles resolutions has brought home to these communities the need for additional crime legislation.

FIRMS LOSE PERMITS TO SELL LIQUOR

Revocation of Papers to Los Angeles Druggists Sustained in Washington

W. J. Gloria, legal adviser of the State Prohibition Director, who is here to make a survey of conditions in this city and San Diego, announced yesterday that his action in revoking the liquor permits of the following firms in Los Angeles had been approved by authorities in Washington: Contreras Pharmacy, 1946 East Seventy-fourth street, Savoy Drug Company, 633 West Sixth street, and Angelus Pharmacy, 214 West Fourth street.

Charges were brought against H. M. Jack, 5200 West Adams street, but he was exonerated, and his permit was not revoked.

Mr. Gloria says that abatement proceedings are being pushed satisfactorily in San Francisco and that more than 300 places have been closed under the "padlock" feature of the Volstead law. The Real Estate Board, representing property owners in that city, is cooperating with the prohibition enforcement agents to the end that a better class of tenants are obtained for many of the business locations. They refuse to lease quarters to persons whom they have reason to think will violate the national prohibition law.

Tailors Are to Feature Spring Fashion Week

For the first time the open shop was established more than three years ago, the entire tailoring industry of Los Angeles and vicinity will meet Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the banquet rooms of the Elite, 632 South Flower street.

The purpose of the assemblage is to raise funds and complete plans for Merchant tailors' spring display week, which is to be conducted in all cities on the Pacific Coast during the week of the 12th inst. The Los Angeles exchange of the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors' Association has set itself out to eclipse other exchanges in the manner and extent of celebration.

An advertising campaign to inform the public regarding advantages of wearing "tailor-made" clothes; window display cards; a six-day style convention and talks on merchant tailoring are among the features planned for the week.

Thomas Nestor, local merchant tailor, who has just returned from Europe will discuss "The Tailoring and Woolen Business in Europe," at the meeting Monday night.

of Minnetonka," by Lieurance; a lake of morning dew; "Winter Memories," a red hearth, the siren of the wind down the chimney, and ivory frost etchings on the window panes.

This harmony bazaar has no end of lovely wares. Here are pastels of soft, shimmering hues by Georgia Stark, coloratura soprano. They have glossy surfaces made by Marian Lentz, accompanist. The titles are "I Heard You Singing," by Crerie; "Songs My Mother Taught Me," by Dvorak, and "Quel Ruscelletto," by Paradies.

Georgia Clark had other song pastels for the evening hour, in which Marian Lentz assisted. They were called "In an Old-Fashioned Town," by Aquire; "The Lilac Tree," by Gartlan, and "There are Fairies at the Bottom of Our Garden," by Lehman.

BOY VIOLINIST

There were colorful violin-batiks also during the evening hour by John F. Knox, boy violinist, accompanied by Mrs. H. C. Knox. The patterns were labeled "Salute d'Amour," by Elgar; "Cavatina," by Raff; and "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms." Subtle bits of art most pleasing to the beholder.

Noon patrons of the harmony bazaar found exquisite embroideries, the songs of Dat Street, soprano, with the left touches of Grace Street, accompanist. Richly and carefully done. Any song seamstress would be proud of "Sally," by Dove Stamper, "When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down," by Richard Howard; "For the Sake of Old Lang Syne," by Ball, and "Carry Me Back to My Carolina Home," by Abner Silver. Models of an ornamental voice.

And, too, there were the lavish, clever designs of Frances Copeland, pianist. Fine draperies of melody, excellent copies of Mokowski's "Waltz in E," and Dubussey's "Golliwogg's Cake Walk."

COURT GETS RESULTS OF FLIRTATION

Woman on Stand Asserts She Was Bunkoed Out of Valuables by Man

Testifying for one hour and fifty minutes without stopping, without being asked a question, or without pausing, Mrs. Eva Lindenmuth detailed minutely the courtship of H. F. Davis, which she asserts cost her $800 and two diamonds, in Justice Baird's court yesterday. The examination was not finished in her charge of grand larceny against Davis, and the case will continue today.

Mrs. Lindenmuth, who lives at 749 South Flower street, testified that David, after a Pershing Square flirtation, made love to her, and little by little talked her out of all she owned. Then he came no more, she declared.

"When you started to talk with him in Pershing Square did you not say, 'I've been wanting to come over and bite a piece out of your neck ever since I first saw you'?" queried the defense attorney.

"I did not!" indignantly replied Mrs. Lindenmuth.

"Did not the defendant give you a hat, gloves and hose?"

"Garden hose?" asked Justice Baird.

"Silk hose," the lawyer persisted.

"He might have given me some stockings," conceded Mrs. Lindenmuth, who then denied she had told Davis to "go ahead and spend her money—she wanted to give him a good time."

Mrs. Lindenmuth asserted she had sold an apartment-house she owned and turned over $800 to Davis because he said he was all tied up in a knot by trouble over his income tax and that his mining claims in Alaska were not producing any revenue for him, temporarily.

He admired her largest diamond, she said, and she had it reset for him for a ring. Then he coaxed another from her for a tie pin, she charges. On four occasions, she declared, Davis asked her where she would prefer to be buried.

She said one night he asked: "How much money have you left?" She counted up and told him she had $10.

"Can't you get some more from your father?" he asked, she asserted. "No, I can't," she said.

He didn't return the next day, she said, and she found he had moved and was registered with another woman as his wife. Then she sought his arrest.

"Bootleg" Cars Snapped Up at Federal Auction

The public sale of "bootleg" automobiles, seized by the government for violation of the liquor laws by their owners, was held at the Federal Building yesterday and the machines went off like the well-known and justly celebrated hot-cakes.

Twenty-four were sold for the total figure of $8245, ranging from $65 for a disreputable Ford to $2655 for a Cadillac limousine, that had been fitted up with receptacles for liquor under the seats. Dep. U. S. Marshal Menick acted as auctioneer.

STREET IMPROVEMENT ORDINANCES ORDERED

The City Council yesterday instructed City Engineer Griffin to prepare and present for adoption ordinances providing for the paving and improving of the following streets:

Hazeltine avenue, from Sherman Way to Tulare street; Fulton avenue, from Sherman Way to Lecadale street; Fellowship Parkway, from Landa street, westerly; McCadden Place, from Sunset to De Longpre; Grand avenue, from Sunset to California street; and the streets in the Sixty-third Place and Raymond avenue improvement district.

H. Jenkins, of Chicago, is another to whom Lyko has meant renewed strength and vigor. The following is from his letter: "My business keeps me closely confined to the office and at a desk all day long. As a result, my system became all clogged up, I was always tired, rested poorly at night and grew nervous and irritable. I began using Lyko and now I am in fine shape again, feel cheerful, and am able to do much more work without fatigue or nervous strain."

Mitchell Murray, of Missouri, sends a letter which says: "When I began to take Lyko I was so weak I could hardly walk across the room. Now I am able to do a pretty fair day's work, and my neighbors are amazed at the effect."

J. D. Miller of Chicago writes: "We have been using Lyko in our family and find it the best tonic for stomach and bowels we have ever used."

F. B. Barker of Florida is another who writes in praise of Lyko. He says: "My wife's health was all run down and she has greatly improved since taking Lyko."

Lyko is a scientific preparation containing pure medicinal ingredients each of which has a beneficial action on some part of the system. It has a mild but effective laxative action which gets rid of constipation. It also stimulates a lazy stomach to normal action and improves digestion so that the body absorbs the full strength from the food. As many ailments come from a disordered digestive system or from a clogged up condition of the bowels, Lyko helps to remove one of the great causes of discomfort and illness.

Certain ingredients in Lyko have a direct and beneficial action on the kidneys and liver; others give strength to the nervous system and prevent what is known as nervous fatigue and mental exhaustion. Practically every part of the body is helped to return to its full health and strength by Lyko. And a healthy body means physical and mental power, magnetic personality, the appearance that brings admiration and confidence.

If you are frail, weak, suffering from a "breakdown" or if you feel inactive, lacking in energy, unable to compete with active people, if you look and feel old, let Lyko give you new vim and vigor. Do not delay. Begin at once. Let Lyko do for you what it has done for so many others.

WAY THE WIND BLOWS

Anyhow, more straw hats are to be seen on the streets of Los Angeles today than in any other city in America.

A HORSE ON US

According to government reports there are 3,000,000 more horses in the country than there were in 1912, but for the life of us we don't know where folks keep 'em.

NOT MUCH PAY

In Germany collective statistics show that the total wages are less than 50 per cent of the cost of living. At that rate half the people must be dead or mighty hungry.

WATER POWER

Henry Ford is going to build a $10,000,000 plant near Minneapolis, but wishes to dam up some more of the head waters of the Mississippi in the doing. It would be a fine thing if the Mississippi River could be harnessed up to the family Ford and keep the blooming thing a going.

RAPE OF THE LOCK

Women are worried in Chicago over the activities of a mysterious Jack the Clipper, who has waylaid a number of girls and roughly shore their locks with a keen pair of scissors. What makes the situation more tragic is the fact that bobbed hair is apparently going out of fashion.

THE BARE FACTS

They threaten to take Isadora Duncan's citizenship away, but Isadora doesn't mind. Taking things away from her only enables her to dance with more freedom. Isadora could lose her nightie without a blush or a palpitation, why should she worry about a citizenship? If she can barely get along so much the better for her.

THE SKY SPEEDERS

The announcement by Camille Flammarion, the venerable French astronomer, that a couple of high-speeding stars went into collision and then burst into flames will not frighten very many people. There is no use in calling out the fire department, at any rate. The stars are so remote that it takes eighty years before the light of one of them can reach our earth. No fireman is going to answer an alarm on a fire that is eighty years old and was probably extinguished before he was born. It is possibly only the reflection of the explosion that we are getting today. The revelation of the astronomer is, however, calculated to disturb the effrontery of some of our own lawbreakers. It seems that they have been speeding on the Milky Way for aeons. Here it has been going on for less than a decade. Maybe the men of Mars think we are decayed.

ELECTION POSTERS

Chicago has declared war on the election poster. The City Beautiful Committee, composed of representatives of many commercial and fraternal bodies, has secured the pledge of all the candidates for Mayor to refrain from blanketing the town with their cards and posters. It cost the city a large sum to clean up after the last primary and a repetition will be prevented. An ordinance forbids posting on sidewalks, curbs, poles or the walls of buildings and it is now expected that the candidates will use nothing save the established and regulated billboards and not many of them. Members of many clubs and civic organizations declare that they will not vote for a candidate who messes up their beauteous city with his garish and flamboyant advertising. He may send his message through the press or whisper it in the ear, but he may not affront the eyes of the citizens with glaring repetitions of his name. This seems sensible, at that.

COALITION TALK

James Hamilton Lewis, former Democratic Senator from Illinois, has been looking 'em over in Ireland. He says that peace is coming, but will be through a coalition government. He declares that Eamonn de Valera is assenting to the program—is, in fact, proposing it. The offices would be divided between representatives of the Republicans and Free Staters. There would be demand for a board of arbitration or referees and this would be made up of Irish-Americans, who have virtually financed every movement for the freedom of Ireland for the last fifty years. Compromises suggested from America could be accepted where approaches from England would be dealed. The gossip went so far as to name a number of Americans who would be acceptable to both sides.

This is interesting, but possibly unimportant. If it is the suggestion of De Valera the Free State government will have nothing to do with it. They would be naturally suspicious. Rival patriots in Ireland will not trust one another with a handful of mud. A coalition government would be a Kilkenny affair, with the accent on the kill. The sergeant-at-arms would be the busiest man on the place.

Uncle Sam would also strongly object to any American citizens being drafted as referees. It would be a fine chance to stir up embroilment with the mother country. First thing we know committees or commissions would be asking the American people to take sides or raise another $1,000,000 and there would be the dickens to pay.

The findings of the pink-whiskered statesman are interesting, but the results are unavailable.

ENGLAND PURPOSES TO STICK

Lord Curzon, British Foreign Minister, has announced publicly that he will not remain a member of a government that adopts a "policy of universal skedaddle." It pains him to hear a clamor arise at home for the withdrawal of troops and an abandonment of influence whenever the troops and the influence are attacked. It is a reaffirmation of the old Tory policy of no yielding under pressure. He will only support a government that will listen to reason, but that is unterrified by a display of force.

Lord Curzon possesses in a remarkable degree that Anglo-Saxon trait known as stubbornness. He will listen to a suggestion, but will never place himself in the position of obeying a command that issues from any government than his own. He says that he is shocked by reading in a part of the British press "an almost piteous plea to the British people to withdraw from everywhere—from the Rhine, Constantinople, the Straits, Jerusalem and Bagdad." While admitting that there are places from which it might be deemed advisable to withdraw, he adds, "but I would like to be cautious about it. We had better stay a little longer than go too soon."

His words are interesting, because they are an expression of the foreign policy of the Lloyd George government. Such a pronouncement carries the authority of a President's message in our own country. Whether one approves or disapproves, it is the government policy. Especial significance attaches to his declaration in regard to the British force of occupation along the Rhine. After observing that, "We believe that the entry into the Ruhr, whether right or wrong, was unwise," he continues, "but we will maintain our troops on the Rhine as long as possible because we have an interest as well as any of the others in the solution of the problem."

That is a plain notification to whomever it may concern that the British troops will not be crowded out of the Rhine sector, that they will not permit that portion of the Rhineland to pass under French dominion. It recalls Napoleon's explanation of how he conducted a battle, "I first engage the enemy along the entire front and then I look around."

England is prepared to stay in the Rhine country. If there is going to be a collapse of the present German confederation and annexations England will be in possession of something when the melon is being sliced. It does not mean that she is committed to a policy of permanent occupation; but, like Napoleon, she will be in position to "look around." If the French contemplate taking possession of both banks of the Rhine, "to have and to hold," they will find the British lion crouching on the cliffs at Cologne.

It is not the policy of the British government to go to an international conference, which is generally an international bargain counter, without having something to trade. Material and moral interests have been so intermingled in recent years that none can tell where one ends and the other begins. Her diplomats say, "We do not think there should be a division of the spoils, but, if that is the general consensus of opinion, we want ours."

There is always one point of difference between the English and French policies: The English try to irritate the victims as little as possible; they are experts at plucking the greatest amount of feathers from the goose with the least amount of squawking; the French, on the other hand, revile the enemy that they despoil. "Don't cheer; poor devils are dying over there," was not said by either an Englishman or a Frenchman, but by an American.

BOURKE COCKRAN PASSES

With Bourke Cockran passes the last of the picturesque school of Irish-American emotional orators. They have left their imprint alike on the politics and the judiciary of their generation. It was to explain their fascinating hold upon an audience, whether it be a mass meeting, a convention, a legislative assembly or a jury, that the term spellbinder was coined.

One loved them for their defects even more than for their qualities. Their Irish wit crushed with ridicule an argument to which there was no logical reply. Their addresses were a rapid succession of glowing verbal images; and they possessed in a remarkable degree that faculty known to the psychologists as self-hypnotism. Their imagination became superheated by the contact with their auditors. Carried away by their own eloquence, they produced electrical effects that often surprised themselves most of all.

Whatever might be said of the truth or the sincerity of their appeals, they were always plausible; for, however dark their case, a native instinct would reveal to them, somehow and somewhere, a silver lining. They were masters alike of pathos and humor. They stirred their audiences alternately to tears and laughter, just as gusts of rain and shafts of sunlight inundate in turn the Irish countryside in midsummer.

Such men were dangerous in a political convention. Experts in mass psychology, there was always the menace of their starting a stampede. Delegates entered a convention pledged to a certain policy or candidate, only to be swept in a wave of generous enthusiasm into the opposing camp. After the excitement had subsided they would be disgusted at their own weakness, at permitting their emotions to dominate their reason; but the recovery did not come until the damage was irreparable.

Cockran was one of the greatest of this school. A hereditary instinct aligned him with the weaker cause. He loved to fight for the under dog; with the result that he often separated himself from his party when victorious, but never in its adversity.

Son of an Irish immigrant, he grew up in the environment of misery and turbulence of the famous East Side of New York. He became recognized as the star orator of Tammany Hall. His opponents accused him of capitalizing his voice while denouncing capital; but the charge was without foundation in truth. Tammany Hall is a medley of vices and virtues. It mingles charity and politics.

No other institution has done so much in the way of looking after the material welfare of the needy in the Tammany districts. It buys votes by distributing food and clothing to the unfortunate and in getting them jobs. It is a cold, calculating form of relief—perhaps it does good that evil may come of it—but Cockran, a paladin of Irish freedom, remained loyal to the association that did the most for his needy countrymen.

Cockran was better, nobler than his political associations. Perhaps his alliance with Tammany kept the machine from disappearing wholly in the mire. He gave it ideals.

Cockran represented a New York district for many years in Congress. He was re-elected in November. As an orator he had no superior in either House; and his demise is a loss alike to Tammany and to the Democratic party of New York.

For a decade, however, the influence of the spellbinder has been waning in American politics. Education has taught the masses to be wary of emotional oratory. Delegates are fortified against it. To be interested and amused is no longer to be convinced. The era of the purely emotional speaker was one of development. It had ended before Cockran passed; and, for that reason, he will have no successor.

YUCATAN RUINS

To the inquisitive American secrets concerning the ancient Maya civilization of Mexico will have a more intimate appeal than the digging up of buried historical treasure in the old kingdom of the Pharaohs. "Near is my shirt"—goes the proverb—"but nearer is my skin."

King Tutenkhamun's tomb is interesting for the light it throws on ancient Egyptian civilization, but excavations at Yucatan should prove more interesting still for what they may reveal of an equally old era on our own continent.

Indeed, when the expected monuments and Maya records are unearthed from under the mounds of Yucatan they will—if the hopes of the archeologists are fulfilled—build for the present an even more startling history of the past.

They may, in fact, do something more important. They may provide a connecting link between the by-gone Mexican races and those of Egypt and China. The Toltecs appear to have had much in common with the Egyptians, while the Mayan relics seem to identify that people with the Mongolians.

At any rate, there is room here for an interesting speculation. Was Mexico, after all, the cradle of civilization and from this center—long before Tutenkhamun was royally interred or Confucius spread the light—did a great exodus take place, eastward to Egypt and westward to Cathay—to start the two oldest civilizations known to history, on the shores of the Chinese Sea and along the deltas of the Nile?

So may not Mexico be the birthplace of the subdivided races that today have spread across the globe to start digging again on the very spot where their first ancestor made his rough and rudimentary experiment in the art of becoming civilized?

And then later on did the continent of Atlantis whence Mexico had peopled Africa sink beneath the waves and the bridge crumble away across the Behring Straits, cutting off the Mayans from their Asiatic colonies?

One man's guess, of course, is as good as another's. The scientists at Yucatan may go those at Luxor one better.

DARKEST MISSISSIPPI

The State of Mississippi is fighting its way to the light. The brilliant intellect of John Sharp Williams has aided the State in retaining its sisterhood and endowing it with recognition, but now that that distinguished gentleman is about to retire from the United States Senate it behooves Mississippi to hump herself.

She purposes so doing. She is going to advertise.

To many minds the State is the center of the black belt and is chiefly known for its lynchings and consumption of plug tobacco. It was also the State which denied women the right to vote in 1920 after a constitutional amendment had dowered them with that glorious privilege. Although Mississippi has a population of approximately 2,000,000 souls, it gave Harding less than 12,000 votes. It gave Hughes less than 5000 votes four years before. In Mississippi the voting is mainly done by white Democrats over 60 years of age. There is a belief that Mississippi does not yet know that the Civil War is over.

At times she behaves that way. She has penalized northern capital and driven foreign fire insurance companies from the State. Yet Mississippi possesses a wonderfully balmy climate, rich and fertile soil and some very lovable people. There are huge plantations and much valuable timber. On behalf of the sportsman and naturalist it is claimed that Mississippi has the richest game preserves in America. Deer and bear are still plentiful and smaller animals and birds are beyond number.

Incidentally, Mississippi has a blooded porker whose life is insured for $75,000. The finest hogs in the country are now being raised in Mississippi. It may therefore be seen that Mississippi has much to advertise—if she goes at it in the right way.

Watch the smoke arising from the Bayou State.

THE REAL THING

Eight hundred quarts of embalming fluid taken from an undertaker's truck in an eastern city proved to be low-grade moonshine when tested by the authorities. In this case there could be no question about the veracity of the label. It was embalming fluid, all right.

RIPPLING RHYMES

BRAGGING

My car is on the blink, it's built of tin and zinc, it isn't worth a cuss; but when, as night descends, I gossip with my friends I boost that grand old bus. In ecstasy I say, "It is a splended dray, it fairly splits the wind; it isn't much for looks; for pep and speed, gadsooks, it has all others skinned. Of winners it's the chief; it's never caused me grief in all its useful years; it fills my soul with thrills when it goes up the hills without a shift of gears." My car is on the bum, its works are out of plumb, its cylinders all miss; it has a broken back, its wheels refuse to track—my friends are wise to this. Yet patiently they stand and smile while I outhand such fairy tales as these; they know my boast's a fake and yet they do not make a reference to cheese. My brags they do not quell, for they have tales to tell of wondrous cars they own, of knocking records cold, of triumphs manifold, to rend a heart of stone. Their cars are worse than mine, they all should stand in line upon the junkman's floor; but still the boys relate achievements high and great, and claim a first-class score. We can't all ride in pomp, we can't all proudly romp in shining limousines; and if we're soothed within by boosting cars of tin, oh, who would spill the beans?

EASY-CHAIR SCIENCE

BY RANSOME SUTTON

IV. ELECTRONS

In the last article it was shown that the atoms of the eighty-seven known elements, such as gold, iron, oxygen and so on, are miniature solar systems, each having a nucleus, made up of positive electrons, around which negative electrons revolve at a speed almost equal to that of light.

Much that has been written about the incredible number of electrons in atoms, however, is erroneous. For example, Geoffrey Martin, who is a better chemist than physicist, in his recent book on "Modern Chemistry and Its Wonders," says: "A complex molecule, like that of starch, may contain well over 300,000,000 electrons—as many particles as exist visible stars in the universe around us!"

As a matter of fact, the starch molecule is believed to contain only 34,400 electrons. The manner in which the number of electrons in the various atoms is determined may be easily understood by any reader of The Times who will read the following paragraph twice. It explains a discovery, made by Mr. Moseley, when 27 years old—a brilliant young Englishman who was shot down during the war:

If the atoms of all the elements be arranged in a series, according to their weight—beginning with hydrogen (the lightest) and ending with uranium (the heaviest) the number of any atom in the series will be approximately the same as the number of positive, and also of negative, electrons in that particular atom. The hydrogen atom, being number one in the series, has only one positive electron, around which one negative electron revolves; it is a single electrical doublet. Carbon, being sixth in the series, contains six positive and six negative electrons. The eighth atom in the series is oxygen, so it contains eight electrons of each kind.

Now we are able to calculate the number of atoms in a starch molecule which, according to the formula given by Geoffrey Martin, contains 1200 carbon atoms, 2000 hydrogen atoms and 1000 oxygen atoms.

The 1200 carbon atoms, each containing six positive and six negative electrons, altogether contain 14,400 electrons; 2000 H. atoms, each with two electrons, contain 4000 electrons; 1000 O. atoms, each with eight electrons, contain 16,000 electrons; giving the total number of electrons, 34,400.

The smallness of atoms, although tremendously [illegible] electrons, is beyond [illegible] sion. Prof. Thomson [illegible] are trillions in a soap [illegible] size of the letter "o" [illegible] on this page, and this [illegible] is demonstratively true. [illegible] Millikan says the radius [illegible] ative electron cannot be [illegible] comparison with the [illegible] atom than is the radius [illegible] earth in comparison [illegible] dius of her orbit about [illegible]

Perhaps the best way to [illegible] an electron is to say it is [illegible] more nor less than an [illegible] electricity. In like manner [illegible] rent of electricity may be [illegible] as a stream of electrons. [illegible] electron or atom of other [illegible] bodies a distinct charge. [illegible] Dr. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology has succeeded in measuring it takes ten figures, with a sign before them, to express the minuteness of the charge. [illegible] ly determined. To light an ordinary electric bulb more than [illegible] must pass through the filament each minute than there are human beings on the earth. The [illegible] ment is conservative. If the word "second" were substituted for minute it would still be true.

All the heavy atoms, which contain eighty or more positive and negative electrons, are radioactive, which means they are spontaneously exploding and hurling electrons into space. The rate at which atoms can be rendered radioactive by bombarding them with [illegible] From a bit of radium no larger than the head of a pin billions of electrons are being shot off continuously and the explosions continue so long as the radium lasts, the life of such a speck being about 20,000 years. Each radium atom, however, only shoots out a few positive and eight-times-as-many negative electrons are thrown out. According to Moseley's law, a radium atom contains only [illegible] trons of both kinds. The flight of electrons causes [illegible] numerable atoms, one after the other, exploding their particles into space. The eruption takes place on the surface of the radium [illegible] as evaporation proceeds from the surface of water.

THE FORD BOOM

BY EUGENE BROWN

My Dear Henry: Many thanks for the opportunity being offered me through the Economic League to join the splendid movement to name you as Harding's successor.

Some folks seem to think that because a man can build up a good business that runs on wheels and under its own power he is competent to take over the major affairs of our beloved country.

The fact that you can take a monkey wrench and a pair of tweezers and assemble a $400 touring car doesn't mean anything to me. You might be able to pick our government apart with the aid of a can opener and a screw driver, but are you sure you can put it together again?

Let me be perfectly frank with you: The fact that at different times you have been able to sell me three of your cute little merry-go-rounds doesn't qualify you for the Presidency of a going and a growing government. Neither does it carry the obligation on my part to sustain any political ambitions you may have.

It shows that you are a fast worker or that I am an easy mark, but that is about all.

I am told that I can assist your aspirations by writing to my friends in Nebraska, urging them to support you in the Presidential primaries. I am to understand that your boom is to be first tried out in that State. I am not sure that any word of mine would be of advantage to you, even if I gave it. Since William Jennings Bryan moved to Florida I don't seem to have so many friends in Nebraska and I am not even certain that Bryan would be active in your behalf did I invite his support. He may be too busy running himself to spare a thought for you. Otherwise I could imagine a reasonable amount of teamwork in the combination.

Of course, I cannot be certain.

There's another matter: Quite a bunch of folks are still a bit dubious about intrusting the ship of state to an untried pilot. What sort of a navigator are you, anyhow? Remember, there's a big difference between the helm of the ship of state and the steering wheel of a tin Lizzie. Rolling one of your nickel doodlebugs over one of our flossy boulevards is one thing and steering a ponderous vessel amid the frowning rocks of an uncharted sea is another.

The people want to know what you can do.

Furthermore, the people would not willingly indulge you with authority without knowing where you stand upon some of the important questions that are bound to arise. What are your views on such intimate matters as flannel underwear, home brewing, psychoanalysis and predestination? Are we getting better and better day by day?

What is your foreign policy? Do you think your country should flock by itself or should it try to break into the big league? If Moscow should declare war on Washington what would you do? Would you hire a ferry boat and cross the Baltic with a cage full of pigeons or would you go after Trotzky with a bow and arrow?

What do you think about the soldier bonus, anyhow? Would you pay it in trading stamps or would you write a check? Do you think every man who has run down by a hack would get a pension? If we were to give a ship subsidy, how about a subsidy to get on the yachting cruise to Balboa two years ago? Are you in favor of the public ownership of barber shops and do you think that all lady voters should be supplied with curling irons at government expense?

A plain and definite reply is desired.

Off-hand, I am not prepared to promise you my support. I think it would be easier for you to support me. My wife is dead set, but is already beginning to complain. Since the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect my wife should be a rather sizable armful—especially to a party who does not guess within 20,000 pounds of his bank balance.

But if I do decide to support you I do not think I will be able to make any speeches in your behalf. My dentist has been working on my face and installing a new denture in my dining-room. The temporary result may be very much of that sweetness and benignancy for which it was so distinguished.

We will cut out Roland Hayes. In the meantime you may write me freely and frankly on such matters that have been troubling you. You may do this in confidence as a confidence man there is whomever than I am who is so no more at present.

a wedding gift in trust

Are you planning to make your daughter a wedding gift in the form of money, investments, or other property?

Has she the experience and business judgment to protect and preserve such property, not only from her own mistakes, but possibly from those of her husband?

It is sometimes extremely difficult for a wife to refuse to let her husband invest her money for her. If your married daughter cannot legally touch the principal of her wedding gift or her share of your estate, this personal question cannot arise.

You can insure your daughter's income and the preservation of money or property set aside for her by means of a trust, by deed or will, under which the Title Insurance and Trust Company, as trustees, will carry out your plans for her benefit.

UNIQUE MURDER CHARGE DRAWN

Two Who Didn't Raise Hand in Slaying Held

Third Who Stabbed Victim to Death Freed

Case is Probably First of Kind in State

Making charges of murder against two persons who did not raise their hands against Frank Johnson, and setting free the man who stabbed him to death, one of the most unusual complaints ever issued in Los Angeles county was filed yesterday in Justice Cruzan's court.

Under it Mrs. Pearl "Cozy" Paden and Seth Donaldson, who are asserted to have accompanied Johnson to the home of Anthony Whittley on West Avenue Forty-sixth last Sunday night, when Johnson met his death, are held for a preliminary examination on the 9th inst. Whittley was held to have stabbed Johnson in defense of his own property and in self defense and so to have been justified in the killing.

The two men and the woman are said to have gone to the Whittley home to chastise C. F. Wagoman. Mrs. Paden's asserted former sweetheart, who was a lodger there. Wagoman refused to c e out and Whittley and Johnson became involved in a quarrel that resulted in the latter's death.

The theory of law on which the charges were based is that Donaldson, Johnson and Mrs. Paden went to the Whittley home to commit an unlawful act and that the two survivors were therefore accessories before the fact and responsible for the result. So far as is known the situation is unique in the courts of California.

Johnson was a former soldier and was decorated for bravery in the World War. It was said, Mrs. Paden had left her husband in the East and eloped here with Wagoman. They quarreled subsequently.

TOLAND IS APPOINTED RECEIVER

Former Judge is Named to Take Charge of Affairs of Discount Company

Judge Crail yesterday appointed Thomas O. Toland, formerly a judge, as receiver for the California branch of the Cleveland Discount Company, the parent organization in Ohio having gone into a receivership some time ago. Those interested in the company explained that the local action has nothing to do with the financial status of the California branch, which is sound, but merely is a friendly action at law because of the disorganized administration of the parent company. It is said that there are 800 stockholders in California, 600 of whom live in the county of Los Angeles, and the receivership was at the request of their representative, J. N. Harper of Los Angeles.

M. D. Andrews, attorney for the stockholders, said the assets of the California company amounted to upward of $4,000,000, while the liabilities will not exceed $70,000. The local company offices occupy an entire floor of the Corporation Building.

Mr. Andrews explained that the president of the company at Cleveland, Josiah Kirby, and the board of directors, some time ago engaged in a dispute at Cleveland, which resulted in the resignations of Mr. Kirby and the other officers. The company was left without a head, and the eastern stockholders brought suit for a receivership in order to rearrange the administration. The eastern receivership and no jurisdiction over the California assets. The local action therefore was necessary, said Mr. Andrews.

Wife Wins Point in Paddleford Divorce Battle

Genevieve M. Paddleford, defendant in the sensational Paddleford divorce case, scored the first point in the long-drawn-out legal battle centering about her when her demurrer against George E. Paddleford's divorce complaint was sustained yesterday by Judge Peaire, sitting in Judge York's department of the Superior Court.

The demurrer stated that the complaint was uncertain, indefinite and vague and did not recite "facts sufficient to state cause of action." Paddleford was given ten days in which to file an amended complaint.

Mrs. Paddleford came from Europe, where she was sojourning with her daughter, to fight the suit. It was charged in the complaint that Mrs. Paddleford had been imprisoned in Vienna and later in Switzerland for nonpayment of debts. This she denied on her return here, stating that she had been confined in a hospital after becoming ill in Lucerne, Switzerland.

The complaint also charged mental cruelty, based on sensational revelations made by Mrs. Paddleford.

SUSPECT IN DEATH CASE GETS AWAY

Fresno Officers Capture Supposed Slayer, Then Give Him Freedom

Lawrence McMullen, sought for many weeks by local authorities for the asserted murder of Charles Weingarten on January 21, last, wriggled out of custody at Fresno Wednesday after being arrested on a vagrancy charge. It became known yesterday.

The suspect was turned loose by police of Fresno Wednesday after being ordered to leave the city, dispatches from there said. Yesterday Fresno police received a bulletin from the local department which contained a description of the asserted slayer. Detectives there immediately recognised the fugitive as the man they had arrested for vagrancy and later turned loose on the court's orders.

The prisoner had been arraigned before Police Judge James G. Crichton of Fresno who ordered the police to release him on the promise that he would leave Fresno at once.

An intensive search for the fugitive has been started by Fresno police in the hope of recapturing him.

It is charged that McMullen and Clarence "Tuffy" Read, now awaiting trial in Superior Court on a charge of murder, killed Weingarten at a trunk factory at 419 South Spring street. Read was arrested on February 5, last. The murder is said to have followed Weingarten's refusal to open the safe in his factory at the command of two bandits.

COURT WRIT CURBS HEAD OF CONCERN

Building Firm President Can't Call Meeting in Receiver Dispute

A temporary order restraining the president and board of directors of the Western Building and Construction Company from holding a stockholders' meeting to determine whether a receiver shall be appointed for the company, was issued by Judge Crail in Superior Court yesterday. A hearing on whether the temporary order shall be made permanent was set for Monday.

The order was sought by Albert H. Beach, Mrs. Agnes Finlayson, wife of Appellate Judge Finlayson; Mrs. Cora Brain, Leslie R. Hewitt and R. A. Wall, stockholders. The order is directed against B. G. Adams, president; Joseph Musgrove, attorney, and Paul D. Meidenberg, William D. Blodgett, John Flahive and D. G. Turnbull, directors.

In the petition for an injunction, prepared by Kemp, Mitchell and Silberberg, attorneys, the complainants recite that in April, 1922, Mr. Adams gained control of the company, and caused to be elected as directors, the persons named with him as defendants.

It is charged that since that time the directors have acted in the interests of Mr. Adams rather than in the interests of the stockholders. Contracts were canceled, greatly to the disadvantage of the stockholders, it is asserted, and other contracts were let for water supply for the company's land, which worked greatly to the disadvantage of the company.

The restraining order was asked on the ground that Mr. Adams and his associates have obtained an unlawful advantage over the company, and are using this to the disadvantage of the stockholders.

THE FLAPPER'S CIGARETTES

"I simply went to luncheon at the X's any more," said a pretty little dapper of my acquaintance, the other day. "Betty X is one of the best pals I have," she went on, "but her mother is the narrowest woman in our set. She won't even let us smoke between the courses at luncheon, and I simply can't wait till the end of the meal."

Another flapper in the group nodded understandingly.

"I know," she said. "I spent the night with Betty last week and I didn't sleep very well so I lit the light and smoked some cigarettes. Mrs. X saw the ashes on the sheets the next morning, and I wish you heard the fuss she made. At first I thought it was because I might have set the bed on fire, but it wasn't. It was the terrible crime of smoking at night that worried her. She lectured me for half an hour, and I wouldn't have stood it for a moment from my own mother, but of course I had to let Mrs. X go on. I suppose she would have been talking yet, but Betty happened to come into the room, and of course, she stopped her."

I looked at the two youngsters. They were pale and heavy-eyed, as well they might be, and their complexions were not clear.

The Flapper's Average

"How often do you smoke at night?" I asked the second one.

"Oh, whenever I don't sleep well," she answered indifferently. "Three or four times a week, I suppose. You're not going to begin to preach, I hope," she added anxiously.

"No," I said. "I know it wouldn't do any good. But as a matter of interest I should like to know how many cigarettes you smoke during the twenty-four hours."

"Mercy, I haven't the least idea," the flapper told me. "I don't suppose any girl knows how much she smokes," she added thoughtfully. "You see, we smoke so much more some days than others. In the summer time, when I'm out doors a great deal, I hardly smoke at all except after meals. But in the winter I smoke a lot more."

"Do you start smoking right after breakfast?"

"Usually," said the flapper, beginning to look bored. (If she had not been one of my god-children she would have "left me flat," in flapper parlance, long before the conversation had reached this point.) "Unless I'm going right out."

"How many cigarettes after breakfast?"

"Two or three. Oh," added the flapper, "I know now what you're after. You're going to hold me up as a horrible example in one of your editorials. But let me tell you something. I don't smoke half as much as most of the other girls in my set. There's Anne Morris, for instance. She never has a cigarette out of her mouth except when she takes it out to put in another one."

"Oh, come now!" I gasped.

The second flapper turned to the first one.

The "Horrible Example"

"How many cigarettes does Anne smoke?" she asked.

"I heard her say one day that she had smoked thirty-eight," said the first flapper, "and she said her tongue felt like a piece of card board."

"There's your horrible example," giggled the second. "I only smoke ten or fifteen a day, and so does Maudie. I know a few girls who only smoke three a day—one after each meal. Of course they've got to smoke some," she added, "to be in the swim."

"Maudie," the first flapper, looked thoughtful.

"I smoke about ten a day—one box, you know," she admitted. "But I never smoke in bed," she added virtuously.

Later I had a little chat with my god-child's mother.

"Does Prue smoke?" I asked, as an opening.

"Smoke?" repeated my friend, with a groan. "Haven't you seen the clouds of smoke rolling down the north river lately? They're from Prue's cigarettes. It's just about driving me crazy," she ended.

"It's more apt to drive Prue crazy if you let her keep it up," I pointed out unsympathetically. "Why don't you make her stop it?"

My friend gave me a hollow-eyed glance.

"Make her," she echoed, ironically. "Make her! That shows how much you know about the mother-and-daughter relations of today. But her father and I are working it out in another way," she added more cheerfully. "We have promised her an automobile if she will stop smoking till she is 21. She may kill herself speeding' but we'll have to take our chance on that."

These conversations, I hasten to add, took place in New York.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I was interested in your correspondent's letter signed "A Mackerel," and if only the builders would build houses suitable for the climate, we should all be a lot more satisfied and comfortable.

I came here from a civilized country and bought a house and was not up to tricks of the natives in removing the stoves. The house I bought had two stoves in it and when I took possession both were gone. Stoves should be fixtures.

Then again, 99 per cent of the houses are so badly constructed that they are furnaces in the summer and refrigerators in the winter—for you have some miserably cold and raw weather here, in spite of what anybody says to the contrary. Even in the northern part of California things are much better arranged. Houses are built properly, stoves are always left, and you find a more settled and prosperous community.

I was advised not to come here and was told they did not know what homes were in Southern California. They lived in piano boxes draped with vines. However, I came, and like the majority, was stung. Now, the trouble is to sell, unless you are willing to take $100 down and $10 a month for life. These prosperity stories are amusing when you mingle with the public. I have traveled on five continents and heard more hard-luck stories and met more discontented people right here than ever in my life before.

ONE OF THE KNOCKERS.

More About "Canneries"

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] With some amusement I noticed in your paper what you termed "a pertinent reply from C. B. De Mille" to criticisms by well-known authors, Messrs. Kyne, Morris and White.

In resorting to the food element as a comparison, I'll say that I eat three meals a day and every once in a while comes a meal that I do not like, but that does not stop me from eating. The fact that 60,000,000 people attend the movies is not saying that they are satisfied with the pictures—I should say not. The fact is that the legitimate stage is nil so we are forced to go to the moving pictures for entertainment—but the present-day picture in the majority is far from approaching the word entertainment. However, we keep on going with the faint spark of hope in our minds that some time the producer will surprise us.

Take the "De Mille did it" brand of today. After seeing one of these spectacles one imagines that when production is started on it the department heads on the lot give out the word "De Mille is ready to shoot and he says he'll put everything we've got in the picture," which is just the way it looks. Whether or not an object or situation is relative to the story, if it's good hookum, in she goes.

The screen writers are too thoroughly surfeited with their own importance and pleasures. Power to Mr. Kyne for not wanting to sink to their level in order to ride in the "canned drama" band wagon. Congratulations to that group of stars and producers who are taking their stand against "machine-made" pictures.

Explains "The New Woman"

BELVEDERE GARDENS, Feb. 24.—[To the Editor of the Times:] As long as I can remember, for a number of years, at least, I have been reading about us American women. Why we are valued so highly by our men; why we are so different from European women; why the self-confidence; why this and why that.

The last answer to the old conundrum was in last Sunday's issue and by the eminent English writer, Elinor Glyn.

She is very logical in her explanation. She goes back to the very beginning of our history. She says something to this effect; that there were so few of us girls in the first days of settling our country and there were so awfully many men in proportion that we just naturally were very popular. "Demand and supply, you see!"

Now, girls, by keeping up this fictitious value of ourselves we have quite easily pushed the game a little further; "we feel so superior" which enables us "to put it over" on our men.

Quoting further, "American women have a keen business sense, inherited from their forebears." Mark you! girls have inherited something from their fathers. Here, to me, lay the only logical answer to this much mooted question to the high standing of American women.

All history tells us that our forefathers came to America to be free from religious persecution and to have wider fields for personal and political activities. The mothers also. Just as the daughter inherited from her father a keen business sense, she inherited his visions for a broader life. Gradually, oh so gradually this vision or desire began to be expressed; at first in the home; then as father advanced in experience and success, more power was added to daughter's inheritance. Thus after the passing of a few generations we see her a poignant factor in all spheres of activities.

American woman is not "putting something over on the American man. She is in reality the product of his own brain, energy and need. They know this too, that is why there is no feeling of resentment toward them on his part, as our foreign observers seem to think there should be.

L. M. HANCOFF.

Says We Erred

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I don't want you to think that I am butting into your business, but as I was once a "printer's devil" and worked up, I thought I would say something. In your "This is the Day," February 22, you said George Washington was born in Westmoreland, Va. Westmoreland is a county. George Washington was born in Wakefield, Sussex county, and remained there till his father's death. Then he and his mother moved to Fredericksburg, where he lived till his mother died at the age of 21. George William Washington was his right name—and it will be a surprise to many that he was not the first President. John Hanson, a very honorable man, was elected as the first President of the United States by Congress, but when the States were made up and got together they elected George Washington our President.

I have been out here since January 1, and have read your paper every day and liked it very much.

Question: What should beads be restrung on? A. D. S.

Answer: Thread waxed with beeswax, or dental floss is durable for stringing beads. A good method is to string the beads, leaving them loose on the string. Fasten one part of the clasp at the end next to the needle and run the thread back through the beads, making a single knot between every other bead. Then fasten the other part of the clasp.

Q.: How long has baking powder been on the market? B. F. T.

A.: It appeared shortly after the close of the Civil War. In 1921 the value of the products of establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of baking powder and yeast amounted to $52,856,000.

Q.: Who invented high frequency and low frequency wireless? R. S.

A: Low frequency wireless telegraphy was invented by an Englishman named Preece in 1895. High frequency was discovered by Marconi, an Italian inventor, in 1896.

Q.: Who was ruling in England when the Puritans left? P. U.

A.: This name was given in the time of Queen Elizabeth and the first two Stuarts to those who opposed traditional and formal religious usages and advocated simpler forms of faith and worship than those established by law. As a political party the Puritans were powerful during the reign of the Commonwealth from 1649 to 1659, but many had emigrated to New England before that time.

Q.: Where are parlor matches made? B. B. C.

A.: Matches are made chiefly in Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, Germany, Austria, China, Japan, France and the United States. In this country in 1914, there were 3800 men employed in the industry. One company makes 40 per cent of the American product, which is equivalent to about 250,000,000,000 per year.

Q.: What is the origin of the expression "There is something rotten in Denmark?" A. O.

A.: "There is something rotten in Denmark" is an adaptation from a similar sentence used in Shakespeare's "Hamlet"—"Something is rotten in the state of Denmark." Hamlet, the Prince of Denmark, is led to make this remark when he suspects that his father was murdered.

Q.: Please give some information about the city of Cagliari? C. B.

A.: Cagliari is the capital of the Province of Cagliari, situated at the southern end of the Island of Sardinia. The town has an old section which has many ancient buildings, notable among which is the amphitheater and the botanical garden, containing Roman remains. The university founded in 1596 has about 270 students. The modern city has various industries, including the manufacture of firearms, powder, cotton goods and hats. Shipbuilding is also carried on. The inhabitants of the town speak a dialect which closely resembles the Spanish.

We Guarantee, Madam to stop falling hair —to grow new hair in 90 days this new way or money refunded

Science discovers most all falling, lustreless hair due to simple infection (Sebum). Now quickly overcome. Hair actually re-grown on 91 heads in 100.

World-great dermatologists are now employing a new and radically different formula in hair treatment, with almost unbelievable results.

This is to offer you an opportunity to test it in your own home.

Note that it is guaranteed absolutely. Guaranteed to start a growth of new hair — lustrous, beautiful, youthful — in 90 days or your money refunded. And to stop falling hair.

If it fails, it costs you nothing. Your own druggist signs the guarantee, so we take all the risk.

Why 8 Women in 8 have Dull, Unattractive Hair

Science has recently discovered that hair roots seldom die. They can be revived—given new life.

We have proved that conclusively by re-growing hair on 91 heads in 100. The method we use is new. Years of exhaustive experiments were spent perfecting it.

Now world-great dermatologists employ these ingredients.

Falling hair, dull, lifeless hair; hair without sheen or luster — 6 women in 8 have it.

The reason for most of it is a very simple infection. An infected scalp oil called Sebum. This new way quickly overcomes it. It starts to act instantly.

The Infected Sebum in Your Hair

Sebum is an oil. It forms at the follicles of the hair. Its natural function is to supply the hair with oil. But frequently it becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles, and plugs them. Go to the mirror and you can see it in your hair, either in the form of dandruff or in that of an oily excretion at the hair roots.

Germs by the millions breed in it, then feed upon the hair. Soon your hair begins falling. You note too how lifeless it appears. In a short time, all the natural luster and beauty are gone.

But—and note this scientific fact—remove the Sebum and the hair reverts back to the softness and brilliancy it displayed when you were a school girl.

The Van Ess Treatment accomplishes that result. We know you will doubt it. So we guarantee it.

New hair grown in 90 days. Falling hair stopped. Your own druggist gives you our guarantee to do these things with each 3-bottle purchase. He signs it. If we fail, your money will be refunded without argument. There is a printed guarantee in the top of each package. Read it first before you buy. Note its fairness.

Where to Obtain the Treatment

We urge you to give this new way a fair trial. Remember, you take no risk.

Go to any druggist or department store today. Ask for the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. Written guarantee accompanies it.

Now on sale at all leading Drug and Department Stores.

VAN ESS Liquid Scalp Massage

VAN ESS LABORATORIES
8007 Lake Park Ave.
Chicago, Ill.

Costs Nothing

Unless the Van Ess Treatment for your hair, the New 3-bottle treatment is entirely guaranteed. You are to be the sole judge. The warrant is signed by your own druggist. All he requires is his signature that you have purchased a 3-bottle treatment. If it fails, we refund your money. Ethics you cannot go wrong in making this deal.

Note This New Way

—It Massages the Treatment Directly to the Follicles of the Hair

You can see from illustration how Van Ess is set to "massage." It is a massage and lotion in one operation. You do not rub it in with your fingers. Each package comes with a massage cap. The nipple of this cap is set at an angle. Just invert bottle, rub your hair and the nipples automatically feed lotion to follicles of the scalp where it will do some good. At the same time the nipples give your head a vigorous massage.

It is very easy to apply. One application each day is enough.

CLUB IN ACTION ON CANDIDATES

Philanthropy and Civics Indorse Mrs. Toll

March is to be Busy Period for Organization

Elk Charities Described by George Bradley

The Philanthropy and Civic Club yesterday took action regarding the candidates for the district election in April, indorsing Mrs. Charles H. Toll for the office of president, Mrs. J. M. Mathews for vice-president, and Mrs. W. W. Slayden for recording secretary. The indorsement was unanimous.

The cloak of secrecy which has always clothed the activities of the Elks in regard to the worthy things done by them was unfolded yesterday, when George Bradley, in charge of the Elks' charity work told many interesting incidents in regard to the work.

REDUCTANCE EXPRESSED

Mr. Bradley, in expressing his reluctance to expound on the activities of the Elks, said that he felt like the little boy who stood fascinated before a cafe window where a girl was cooking flapjacks. A benevolent man coming up, said, "Are you hungry, my boy?" And the boy replied, "Oh, gee! Can't a fellow look at a good looking dame without attracting a crowd?"

March at the Philanthropy and Civics Club is to be a month crowded full of interesting happenings. Tomorrow evening at the Elks' clubhouse, Mrs. Bruce Stevenson will give a Mardi Gras masque ball for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the club. The main event of the month, however, is on Monday night, when the club, supplemented by friends, turns out en masse to welcome the president, Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith when she appears at the 7:30 o'clock performance at the Pantages Theater. Three hundred seats have been reserved for that evening.

INDUSTRIAL FUTURE

"The Industrial Future of Los Angeles" is the interesting subject chosen by Gertrude Comstock for the 8th inst., when she is to be the luncheon speaker. In the afternoon Herbert J. Goudge will talk on "Law Making and Law Breaking." On the 15th inst. Capt. John D. Fredericks will talk on "What the Moving-Picture Industry Means to Los Angeles," while in the afternoon Mrs. Henry F. Boesche will give a review of Will Irwin's book, "The Next War."

A combination of local and international affairs is to be presented on the 22nd inst., when Bert L. Farmer, candidate for Mayor of Los Angeles, and Baroness Ottily de Ropp will talk. The baroness will speak on "The Rule of Bolshevism in Russia." The last Thursday of the month is the birthday luncheon as usual, and will be followed by a reception in honor of Mrs. Goldsmith.

California Art Club Meeting

Mrs. Gertrude Ross, Miss M. E. Elliott and Miss Evylena Nunn will be guests of honor at the next meeting of the California Art Club which will be tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the clubhouse, 623 Park View street. The board of control meets at 7:30 p.m. as usual. Miss Nunn will talk of her travels and observations of present-day art in Japan. Mrs. Ross will give a group of piano selections, in addition to which Mrs. Margaret Fisher Munson will sing some of Mrs. Ross's compositions.

Moliere Play to be Presented

"La Malade Imaginaire," or "The Imaginary Sick Man," will be presented by the intermediate class of Cumnock School under direction of Miss Helen Hardison this evening and tomorrow afternoon. The play is a French comedy by Moliere and ridicules the practice of doctors in the time of Louis XIV. The curtain rises at 8:15 in the evening and 2:15 in the afternoon. Tickets may be purchased at the school. The characters are as follows: Cergan, Catherine Crow; Beline, Mrs. Flyntam; Angelique, Helen Strickler; Louisan, Lorraine Isaacs; Toinette, Dorothy Jayne; Cleante, Ardys Anderson; Monsieur Diafores, Irvine Rice; Thomas Diafores, Florence Morriel; Monsieur Purgou, Ruth Warner; Monsieur Fleurant, Dorothy Blakely; Beralde, Virginia Patton; Monsieur De Bounefoi, Lyle Rooks.

ANGLES AND TANGENTS OF CLUBS

BY MYRA NYE

Two costumes have spoken of spring during the week. Mrs. Birney Donnell, who reads the minutes of the Ebell Club as though she were reading an essay on spring, was dressed last Monday in a white lace gown with a sash of three shades of green tulle. She wore jade beads reaching to her waist. She looked lovely and cool.

Wednesday Mrs. J. J. Carter, when she presented her plan for a great community chorus for Los Angeles, herself looked like a singing red bird of rare plumage. She wore a scarlet hat of duvetyn, jaunty, chic, close-fitting, until suddenly at either side it flared out into two adorable red wings. Her waist was scarlet georgette beaded with cut steel and she wore about her neck a curious, rectangular, beaded ornament primarily gray but scintillatingly iridescent to carry out the note of daring set by the color of her hat. Only one thing about her was more changeable in its flashing, the coming and going of the deep dimple in her left cheek.

Of the speakers at the Woman's City Club I heard someone say to a friend: "He thinks old thoughts and not in a new way; but he's nice."

"He's a fine thinker," was the reply, "but he catalogues his ideas." And this man who has spoken at least twelve times before women's clubs this season and always entertainingly has never made a newspaper story.

Just was the measure of praise meted out to the chairman of decoration of the Ebell Club by the president last Monday. The curtains of the stage are all in dull golds, tans and yellows. Mrs. John Wilson had chosen for the day brass bowls of marigolds, daffodils and large sprays of yellow acacia with their yellow-green foliage.

SPEAKS ON DIVORCE

Mrs. Mab Copeland Lineman, who spoke on uniform marriage and divorce law, the local woman's court and the failure-to-provide law, gave her hearers something to think about when she said that husband chasers were the best institution of the courts. She hastened to explain that these chasers were men, not women, and they sought the husbands to make them pay for the support of their children. She created a further stir when she said that from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. one day last week she heard sixty-three fathers testify in Superior Court and only one of them told the truth concerning his earnings. They lied out of their responsibility to support their children.

SHAW PHILOSOPHY

Here are bits of jam and ginger from the lips of Shaw Desmond, who came into our midst this week:

"Free love is abominable, stupid and lacking in all romance."

"My book, 'Bodies and Souls,' is published widely in Europe and England, but it cannot come out here because of the innocence of American police."

"All the laws passed in the past and in the future will not make happy marriages. If we will only show the romance of marriage to the youth of the land we won't have to pass acts of Congress."

"Street cars have a special facility for collecting unhappy people. There you see every day the hungry woman, the woman who wants a happy marriage."

"Let every woman have a right to her own life before she marries, which should not be earlier than 25."

"When love letters cease romance has gone."

"I have yet to see an original feminine American face. A woman can't be beautiful without lines in her face. They show character, the most beautiful thing about her."

"A woman feels more in a glance than a man feels in a kiss."

Mr. Desmond was the most adroit shifter of censure I have ever heard. In the beginning of his lecture on "The Real Marriage Problem" he said: "I am going to speak as plainly and frankly to you as you will let me. I get a message from my audience and if they want to hear more I read it in their faces and I give it in plain language." It follows that whatever Mr. Desmond might say the audience could blame nobody but themselves if they did not like it.

UTILITY BOARD STILL NEUTRAL

Majority Members Take No Sides on Busses

Need, However, Better Transportation

Plan All Sections of City to Get Relief

The Utilities Commissioners Hardy and Bogardus yesterday issued a formal statement setting forth the attitude of the majority members of the utilities commission in the matter of obtaining improved transportation facilities in Los Angeles. The statement follows:

"We wish to correct an erroneous impression which seems to have been received as to attitude of the Board of Public Utilities with respect to motorbus and railway transportation. We have been holding conferences with people from various sections of the City during the past two weeks which have proved very beneficial in many way.

"No piece-meal relief will be considered; it must be relief to the City as a whole, whether by railway or bus lines. A bus line in this section, or a car line in another section, without relief to the City as a whole, will not be given any consideration."

Commissioner Ogardus said: "It is the Board of Public Utilities holding behind the circulation of any petition for a motorbus line, or being favorable to railway interests, this is without any foundation whatever, and that the Board of Public Utilities is constituted at present is with the people in their demands for adequate transportation facilities, any impression or impression to the contrary is not founded on fact."

Both commissioners explained that several bus line applicants have yet to be heard during the coming week, including those presented by William G. McAdoo, from which nothing definite had been heard from Mr. McAdoo's clients. It was the desire of the Board to review the transportation questions presented without further delay, and recommendations to this end probably would be in shape by the latter part of the coming week.

SILVER HILL HEARING

The hearing this morning will affect residents of the Bunker Hill section, now known as Silver Heights, tell of the transportation needs of that section, which is served by the First-street line of the Los Angeles Railway Company. Appearing at the hearing will be Managing Director Silbeck of the Business Men's Co-operative Association, who was active in the fight for improved street-car service for the Bunker Hill district, and finally obtained an agreement from the Los Angeles Railway to extend its First-street line to First and Hill streets. The only remaining transportation hearing to be given by the Board is that assigned to the organization of the McAdoo independent motor-bus system, who are seeking a twenty-one-year franchise to operate buses over sixty miles of city streets, the system being divided into thirteen routes. The matter hearing had been postponed until the return from the East of Richard W. Meade, general manager of the project.

Exclusive petitions asking the Board to grant a franchise to the motor bus system, known as the Angeles Motor Bus Company, of which Marco H. Hellman is president, now are being circulated. Action by the bus company is looked at the City Hall to indicate that the promoters believe that the Board and the City Council report against the proposition.

Consideration of the application of the McAdoo petition shows the list of streets over which the busses would operate on a regular schedule if given a franchise. This list of streets is as follows:

GUN-TOTING MOTORIST IS ALL 'HET UP'

Film Quartet Runs Into His Car; He Backs Pay Demand With Pistol

Two men and two women, all well-known in the Hollywood film colony, were threatened with serious injury or death yesterday afternoon when an irate motorist, enraged over the damage sustained by his car in a collision with the film party's motor, wildly waved a pistol in the general direction of the quartet and demanded that they pay, on the spot, for the damage.

The collision and subsequent disturbance occurred at the intersection of First street and Western avenue during the peak hour of afternoon traffic, and hundreds, including several police and motorcycle officers, gathered about the quarreling quintet.

Murray Spencer and Dan Charles, actors, and Peggy Purcell and Betty Brantley were the members of the motor party, bound for work at the United Studios.

Joseph Miller of 4430 Moneta avenue, was the irate motorist with gun-toting proclivities, according to the report of the accident and controversy filed with the Wilshire police.

According to Spencer's report to the police, Charles was driving the car carrying the quartet to the studio. Just ahead was Miller. At the intersection of First and Western, Spencer declared, Miller made a sharp turn, without giving the proper hand signal, and the collision resulted, Charles being unable to stop his car in time to prevent it.

At the police station Miller filed a reckless driving charge against Charles, while the actor retaliated with a like charge against Miller. In addition, Spencer declared he would file a charge of felonious assault and carrying concealed weapons against Miller.

DRUG CURE RUSE USED BY VENDOR

Poses as Addict in Jail to Sell Hop, but Trips on Bad Check

Posing as a narcotic addict wishing to rid himself of the habit by means of free treatment supplied in the City Jail, while he was actually peddling the drug to other inmates of the jail, is the charge made against J. H. Star, by members of the police "hop" squad, after they had searched him in the jail yesterday and found a quantity of cocaine in his possession.

Technically, Star is held for violation of the State Narcotic Act. A second charge of issuing a fictitious check will be placed against him today.

It was the check charge that brought about Star's arrest by Detective Sergeant Littlejohn of the narcotic squad. He had been allowed the privileges of a trusty, permitted to leave and enter the jail. At the jail he was known as J. H. McClure.

His movements attracted the attention of detectives working on the narcotic detail, and he had been under observation for several days. They believed that he was carrying drugs to inmates of the jail but had not been able to find any evidence.

A few days ago Star passed a check for $25, which later came back to the indorser as worthless. Detective Sergeant Littlejohn discovered that McClure was the man wanted.

VOTE FUND QUIZ MAY FIX BLAME

Spirit of Law Violated, Committee Finds

Persons Who Gave "Kick In" Hint Sought

Resume Stephens Inquiry at Sacramento

Concluding their work in Los Angeles the member of the Assembly committee investigating complaints that State civil service employees were required to contribute to the campaign fund for former Gov. Stephens preceding the primary election last August, will leave Los Angeles today for Sacramento, where the investigation will be resumed next week.

After remaining in session in Los Angeles and vicinity for three days a majority of the committee appears to be convinced that the civil service laws of the State were gravely violated by officials of the former administration, but the committeemen are also impressed with the difficulty of fixing responsibility upon evidence thus far gained, due apparently, to precautions taken by those who may have instigated the political assessments upon the State workers.

"While the greater part of our work lies before us in Sacramento and San Francisco, to two localities where the asserted violations of the law were most pronounced," said Assemblyman Henry E. Carter, chairman of the committee, "it seems very plain to me that there was a willingness and even a determination to violate the spirit of the law and at the same time attempt to keep beyond any penalty for a violation of the letter of the law.

URGES LAW REVISION

"We find that civil service employees in Southern California, where the political pressure seems to have been lightest, nevertheless felt that they should contribute if they desired 'everything to be for the best.'

"Our investigation, in my opinion, strongly demonstrates the need for a revision of the civil service law in certain respects and for a closer defining of what constitutes undue political pressure or duress upon those whom the law holds exempt from any such coercion or intimidation.

"However, our work is not half finished and, we believe, will supply us with further general and specific instances of the general atmosphere of uncertainty and uneasiness that pervaded State offices last summer.

"Somebody or some group of individuals was responsible, directly responsible, for the feeling on the part of the civil service workers that, all things considered, it would be well for them to disregard the apparent safeguards of the law and, as some have expressed it, 'kick in' with a contribution and thus save themselves annoyance or trouble. It is our purpose to discover the responsible person or persons."

SEEK FAIR DECISION

In all questions addressed to witnesses by members of the committee care has been taken to explain that only the welfare and protection of the employees of the State is being sought and the phrasing of the questions appears to demonstrate complete absence of a desire on the part of any member of the committee to arrive at a prejudiced or biased conclusion.

Thus far the only member of the former Governor's official family who has shown any particular anxiety as to the course of the investigation is Egerton Shore, who, as a member of the State Board of Control, according to his testimony before the committee, did "a little evangelistic work" in connection with seeking campaign contributions from State officials. Mr. Shore, now on the Railroad Commission by appointment from former Gov. Stephens, placed so much importance upon his testimony and the questions he apparently anticipated would be submitted to him, that he prepared his general testimony in advance and read it to the committee before any member questioned him.

Sixty Bid for Work on New Chamber Home

Contractors bidding for work on the new Chamber of Commerce Building will learn of the decision of chamber officials after the general contract bids are opened. In the presence of sixty bidders the architects, John C. Austin and John Parkinson, opened sealed offers after the regular meeting of the board of directors.

Eight general contractors bidding were: Lange & Bergstrom; Weymouth Crowell; Edwards, Wildey & Dixon; C. J. Kubach Co.; McDonald & Kahn; Clinton Construction Company, J. C. Bannister, C. L. Peck.

Careful study of the alternative proposals and various bids, numbering more than sixty, for special lighting, heating, structural steel and elevators will require some time before the building committee can announce the result of deliberations, according to John P. Burke, chairman of the committee, and member of the board of directors.

Last Call for Auto Licenses Sounded Here

Mr. Motorist! You must get your 1923 auto license by midnight tonight!

According to a telegram received here yesterday by the Auto Club of Southern California from the Motor Vehicle Department at Sacramento, the 25 per cent penalty will positively be imposed beginning tomorrow.

No extra time will be granted this year, is the warning sent out.

Those auto owners who do not intend to apply for their new plates today might as well begin to figure out how much 25 per cent of the fee will be and carry that sum with them tomorrow or whenever they decide to get their plates, say Auto Club officials.

Says You Should Know About Kidneys and Bladder to Assist Their Functions

(By Dr. Lewis Baker)

The kidneys perform a vital function—

What is the meaning of "function?"—The act of performing a natural duty.

The bladder, too, performs a function.

Functional disturbance is not organic disease.

But neglected functional disturbances eventually may lead to organic disease.

Now what is the function or duty, that devolves upon the kidneys in a healthy state?

They act as a filter in removing waste matter, acids, alkalis and poisons from the blood.

If you eat too much at one time, or if you eat too much of one thing—that is, more than your system needs, it is the duty of the kidneys, as one organ of elimination, to help free the system of both the normal and the excesses you have consumed.

And the same is true if you drink too much of beverages other than good pure water. Too much coffee, too much tea or too much wine or other alcoholic drink gives the kidneys an extra amount of duty to perform.

Have you ever observed the downpipe unable to carry off the water from the roof gutters during a heavy rain? The capacity of the down pipe is just so much and following a heavy storm the down pipe "congests"—and all the water cannot go through it.

Just so the kidneys—if the blood fluid is loaded beyond their capacity, the poisons, in a sense, "overflow," and remain in the system, which, if repeatedly occuring, causes aches, pains, fevers, chills, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc. Organic disease of the kidneys, on the other hand, may be likened to a roof-gutter that becomes filled with leaves, twigs and rubbish, which in time causes rust holes, permitting leakage and overflow, both. Neglecting the tired overworked kidneys, in due time brings on the clogged, leaky condition—organic disease.

Balmwort Tablets are intended to help the function of the kidneys before they become actually "leaky" or diseased.

Skilled medical specialists should be employed if you even suspect organic trouble.

The function of the bladder is to act as a receptacle for the liquid waste matters which are strained from the blood by the kidneys and to hold this liquid until convenient to void it. Normally the bladder can retain such liquid all during your sleeping hours without pain, pressure or distress.

If, however, this liquid contains too much acid or other irritants, then you will have pain, pressure and distress with desire to void, perhaps every hour or two.

This disturbs sleep and rest—and like an endless chain, nervousness, weariness and irritation make the kidneys weaker in their functioning powers—and so the trouble grows worse—unless the tonic diuretic and neutralizing action of a medicine like Balmwort Tablets is used regularly to restore, by its aid the natural duties of the kidneys.

Is "Prohibition Liquor" and "Home Brew" Responsible For Great Increase in Kidney and Bladder Trouble?

HEALTH AUTHORITY SAYS IT IS.

Says Poisons in "Prohibition Liquor" and "Home Brew" Causes Congested Kidneys and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Such Conditions Also Due to Damp, Cold Weather, Colds, Grippe, Wet Feet, Etc.

While health authorities may disagree regarding the baneful effects of "Prohibition liquor" and "Home Brew," it is likely that they all agree that cold, damp, changeable weather, subjects all of us to the danger of colds, flu, grippe, wet feet and other exposures which tend to weaken the functional activity of the kidneys, which in turn brings on a long train of distress, aches and pains.

Whatever the cause—the question is: What is the way to get well?

Dear Sir: I wish to say a word concerning the benefits I have had from Balmwort Tablets. I am 36. Merchant by occupation. I have suffered from cystitis—a burning, grinding, cutting sensation in the bladder.

I am the mother of 8 children and when anything helps me I would like to "Tell the World," as they say, and let somebody else be helped. Yours for Health, Mrs. W. H. Youth Arrested Is Charged With Grand Larceny

Charged with grand larceny, Frank Heacock, 19 years of age, was arrested early yesterday by Detective Sergeants Canto and Kearin and Police Sergeant Ernest Gleason of the Hollywood police division. Heacock was found at his home, 3324 Division street. He is asserted to have stolen a motion-picture camera valued at $2000 and several hundred dollars' worth of film and other materials from the laboratory of Chester Bennet at the intersection of Santa Monica Boulevard and Cahuenga avenue several days ago.

Shortly after the arrest of Heacock, L. W. Clement of the Pacific Title Card Company, 1127 North Bronson avenue, also was arrested by the same officers on a charge of receiving stolen property. It is said that Clement bought the camera from Heacock for $200. Admitting that he bought the machine, Clement denied that he knew anything about it being stolen, although he admitted knowing something of the value of such a camera, police say.

MAGON FAMILY SAYS ADIOS

Socialistic Circle's Activities Expected to Subside With Deported Leader's Departure

Finis was written in the activities of the Magon circle of local agitators and advocates of the rule of the Red flag, when Enrique Flores Magon, accompanied by his wife and five children, yesterday lft for Mexico City.

Some time ago Immigration Agent in Charge Burnett asked for a departmental warrant for the deportation of Enrique Flores Magon on the ground that he was an undesirable alien, through his campaign of anarchistic and communistic propaganda carried out through the columns of his paper, Regeneracion. An examination of Magon was held at the Federal Building, and a recommendation sent to Washington that he be deported. This was approved, and the warrant issued.

Magon asked as a personal favor that he be allowed to go back to Mexico City, unaccompanied by any official of the immigration department to the border, and this privilege was accorded him. He will be check out by the immigration agent at El Paso. It was at that point that he, with his brother, Ricardo Flores Magon, who recently died in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, flourished before the brothers appeared in Arizona back in 1916, where both were imprisoned in the penitentiary at Florence.

CAREER STORMY

The Magon brothers, Ricardo Flores and Enrique Flores, with Anselmo Figueroa and Liberado Rivera, were the heads of the local communistic group that some years ago flourished in this city. The two Magons and Figueroa were sent to the Federal prison on McNeil Island by Judge Olin Wellborn for a long term for violation of the neutrality laws. Figueroa died while in prison.

Later the two Magons again busied themselves, and they, with Liberado Rivera, were again convicted under the immigration laws. Enrique, the "brains" of the group, got but two years from Judge Trippett, but Ricardo and Liberado were given fifteen years. Enrique served his term and was released.

FRIENDS PAY WAY

It is understood that friends in Mexico furnished the money for the trip of the Magon family back to Mexico. Many of the political friends of the Magons are now in power in the Obregon government, and some time ago the Mexican Congress voted a pension of $3 a day to the families of the Magon brothers. This was just before the death of Ricardo at Leavenworth, and the offer was rejected. Both said they would be under no obligations to constituted government.

One of the most exciting episodes at the Federal Building was on the occasion that the Magon brothers were convicted the first time by a jury in Judge Wellborn's court, when a band of socialistic soap-box orators, headed by Lucille Norman, the step-daughter of Ricardo Flores Magon, tried to rescue the prisoners as they were being taken to the County Jail after they had been sentenced.

Many Causes for Headaches

But All Yield to Virtues of Old Prescription

DOCTORS say that most headaches are in reality only symptoms of some hidden trouble like indigestion, constipation, high blood pressure, etc. The pain is caused by purging of the blood vessels so that pressure is exerted on the nerves.

But it makes no difference what the cause, nothing will bring relief for Headaches so quickly as taking one or two Orangeine powders compounded from a famous prescription. Ask for it by name—Orangeine. When your nerves are "on edge" these powders exert a restful, calming effect yet they contain no narcotics. All druggists are familiar with this prescription, having dispensed it for more than 30 years.

PROMOTES NEW ERA FOR FILMS

Association Working for Better Pictures

Seals of Merit Will be Awarded

Nation's Civic Leaders on Advisory Board

A new era in the motion-picture industry is to be brought about through the efforts of the Better Pictures Association of the World, according to John A. Quinn, president of the association.

Mr. Quinn conceived the idea of organizing the Better Pictures Association nearly five years ago. The association now is a completed organization, pledged to the betterment of motion-picture production, distribution and exhibition.

The essential purposes follow:

(1.) To discourage the production and presentation of objectionable pictures and plays.

(2.) To offer constructive suggestions and criticisms making for greater popular approval and support.

(3.) To work for elimination of misleading and untruthful advertising.

(4.) To strive for betterment generally throughout the motion-picture and theatrical business, and, for this purpose to maintain various departments of service, research, statistics and information.

(5.) To safeguard stage and screen from unreasonable regulations and restrictions.

(6.) To back up worthy productions through pulpit, press, schools, and special bulletins.

(7.) To award the Better Pictures Association Merit Seal—a mark of excellence which will be made dependable—to productions of unusual merit.

(8.) To encourage and help, through a service department of experts, the production and presentation of motion pictures and plays which deal with the worthwhile sentiments of life.

(9.) To prevent, in so far as possible, unfair criticism and propaganda being circulated against the motion-picture and theatrical business and its people.

NO PROFITS PLANNED

The Better Pictures Association of the World is a non-profit membership organization. All money received for memberships is to be expended for the betterment of the motion-picture and theatrical industries, and for the support of the staff necessary to carry out its purposes.

It embraces in its membership the public, workers in the motion-picture industry and theatrical people.

Serving on its co-operating council are Dr. Frank Crane, Cosmo Hamilton, Daniel Frohman, J. Hartley Manners, Charles A. McMahon, Rev. John Talbot Smith, Howard Chandler Christy, Willy Pogany and Lewis E. Anspacher; and also representatives of the American Criterion Society, the Friars Club, the International Reform Bureau, the Knights of Columbus, the Motion-Picture Theater Owners' Association of America, the National Social Workers' Exchange, the New York Federation of Women's Clubs, the New York Federation of Churches, Pen and Brush, New York State Federation of Clubs, the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A. and the Welfare League Association.

Frank Bacon was vice-president until the time of his death, and Isley Boone of New York is secretary and treasurer.

BUREAU FOR AUTHORS

"We will play no favorites. The whole value of the Association's work depends on its strict neutrality and unbiased action in relation to any picture or matter brought before their attention," Mr. Quinn said.

"We intend to make the association of real benefit to the author of plays and photoplays, for we hold that the story is of primary importance in the production of good pictures. We shall maintain a bureau for the purpose of informing authors as to the best markets for their work.

"We shall see that the director who is producing worth-while pictures, shall receive recognition. He will be judged by the quality of his work rather than by his affiliation with a powerful company."

Affiliated with the Better Pictures Association of the World is the Better Pictures Service, which is a releasing organization, handling pictures which bear the merit seal.

The headquarters of both organizations are in the Cosmoart Studios in Los Angeles. It is the purpose of the directors to make Los Angeles the center of motion-picture production and distribution.

VIOLA SAYS SHE DIDN'T

Motion-Picture Actress Declares Wife of Vaudeville Actor Shouldn't Name Her Home-Wrecker

Viola Dana, motion-picture star and one of the big lights of the Metro lot, laughs at the report that she is to be sued by Mrs. Dick Stewart of New York City, wife of Dick Stewart, a vaudeville actor. Mrs. Stewart contemplates accusing the film actress of alienation of her husband's affections, according to dispatches received from the East yesterday.

Miss Dana, who has just recovered from an operation for appendicitis, late yesterday told newspaper men that "Mrs. Stewart has no grounds for such a ridiculous charge."

"I met Dick Stewart while I was making a personal appearance in Kansas City some months ago," Miss Dana said. "He was on the same bill with me and he used to entertain mother and me with his antics on a trick saxophone.

"I didn't think there was any harm in knowing him. He seemed to be just a kid and, of course, I never asked him if he was married or not. When I left Kansas City I received several letters from him and he told me he was lonesome and asked if I wouldn't write. I wrote to him a few times. I didn't say a thing in the letters that I would be ashamed of any one seeing.

"Evidently he has shown the letters around and his wife has become jealous. I am very sorry but I am sure she has no grounds to think that I have alienated her husband's affections.

"After this I shall watch my associates more closely. I can't see that I did anything wrong by writing to the boy."

FINIS FOX TO START NEW FILM

Author and Producer Lists Allan Forrest in Cast for Play of Old Quebec

Finis Fox, author, director and independent producer, has completed arrangements to start work next Monday morning at the Fine Arts studios on his third independent feature film production, "The Man Between."

This new play, which was written by Mr. Fox and adapted to the screen by Lois Zellner, has its scenes laid in old Quebec and the French-Canadian portion of Canada. Announcement of the forthcoming production was made yesterday by Robert R. Beaty, general manager of the Finis Fox Productions.

The cast engaged for the picture includes such well-known screen artists as Allan Forrest, Philo McCullough, Vola Vale, Edna Murphy, Kittie Bradbury, Fred Malatesa and Doreen Turner.

The feature film will be photographed by Sam Landers and Mr. Fox himself will direct.

Lee Kids Here in Engagement for Vaudeville

The "baby grands of vaudeville," who broke into fame and world-wide recognition as the first child actors on the screen under the Fox banner, came to town yesterday.

Jane and Katherine Lee, accompanied by their mother, arrived here yesterday via the Southern Pacific from New York City to fill a vaudeville engagement at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater.

After their engagement is concluded here the youthful stars will leave immediately for the East and after a short stay in New York City will leave for Europe. They will be gone for several months and will play in the leading cities of the Continent.

LOEW THEATER HERE IS NOT TO BE SOLD

REPORT OF ORPHEUM DEAL ENTIRELY ERRONEOUS, SAYS BLUMENTHAL

Reports to the effect that negotiations for the sale of Loew's State Theater to the Orpheum Circuit are entirely without foundation, according to a statement made yesterday by A. C. Blumenthal, head of A. C. Blumenthal & Co., whose name has been connected with the rumored transaction.

There is no deal under way for the sale of Loew's State Theater either in Los Angeles or San Francisco to the Orpheum Circuit or to any other theatrical interests, Mr. Blumenthal declared.

"I have no doubt," said Mr. Blumenthal, "but that Mr. Loew would sell his real estate here if he could get his price, but he has had several flattering offers which he has rejected. Loew's, Inc., is in a very flourishing condition; it has paid up all its indebtedness, and there is no reason for the sale of its local property unless Mr. Loew can get the price which he considers adequate."

Divorce Record Here May Delay Sheik's Wedding

Rodolph Valentino and Winifred Hudnut, O'Shaughnessy, Rambova or whatever her name may be, are off in their calculations.

It was discovered at the Hall of Records yesterday that the Shiek's first spouse's interlocutory decree of divorce was not granted until March 9, 1922 and that it cannot be made absolute, accordingly, until the 9th inst., which is one week from today.

This puts the reported plans of Mr. and Mrs. Valentino to remarry in Chicago next Monday out of joint, for no remarriage, to be recognized in California, can be performed before the 10th inst.

They can remarry next Monday, but it won't mean anything, it was declared.

So the couple planned to have the knot tied again as soon as confirmation that the decree obtained by Jean Acker had been made final, reached the Windy City.

Want-Ad readers can look forward to a real thrill in the forthcoming mammoth issue of SUNDAY TIMES Want-Ads. TIMES Low Advertising Rates Help the Reader!

Although THE TIMES prints more Want-Ads than any other newspaper in the world, it employs relatively few solicitors. As a result of this, TIMES advertising rates are exceedingly low. Where newspapers are compelled to solicit all their Want-Ads, the high cost of getting business forces rates to almost prohibitive figures. Nearly all advertisers who have real bargains to offer—who do business on a close margin and hence cannot experiment—confine their offerings to THE TIMES. Between 2500 and 3000 of such snaps are advertised exclusively in the SUNDAY TIMES each week—another reason why "Everybody reads THE TIMES for Want-Ads."

GOLDWYN GETS HIM

EMMETT FLYNNN'S TO MAKE SPECIAL PICTURES

By Grace Kingsley

Day by day in every way the Goldwyn company is growing better and better, when it comes to signing up first-class directors.

Emmett J. Flynn, director of "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" and "The Count of Monte Cristo," two of the most successful pictures of the past several years, yesterday signed a long-term contract with the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, according to announcement by Vice-president Abraham Lehr.

The director is to head a production unit at the Goldwyn studios, which are now more active than they have ever been. His first picture will be adapted from one of the best known American novels, the name of which will be announced later.

Recently added to the Goldwyn list of directors have been Victor Seastrom, the Swedish director, King Vidor, George D. Baker, Charles Brabin, Tod Browning, Lambert Hillyer and Clarence Badger. Marshall Neilan is making his second production at the Goldwyn studios, Eric Von Stroheim is about to start his first, and Rupert Hughes is just completing his most ambitious effort. Hugo Ballin is about to produce his second under the lion banner.

Flynn joins the Goldwyn forces after three years at the Fox studios, where he was a featured director for three years. He entered motion pictures in 1914, after a short stage career, as an extra under D. W. Griffith. He remained in the ranks only three days when he obtained a part. After acting before the camera for a year, he became an assistant director and then graduated into the directorial class. He made two Goldwyn pictures starring Mae Marsh several years ago.

Griffith to Film Shakespeare

It looks as if the films are to catch the Shakespeare fever, and among the plans of various producers to put Shakespeare on the screen is the important one of D. W. Griffith to film "Romeo and Juliet."

The announcement is more than a rumor, since there is already serious consideration of Lillian Gish as Juliet and Joseph Schildkraut as Romeo, and it is known that Miss Gish will soon return from Rome, where she is filming "The White Sister."

What is said to have incited Griffith to consider the filming of "Romeo and Juliet" is the fact that the New York critics have lauded the dramatic performances of John Barrymore, Warfield and Miss Cowl, and to a certain extent have used them as examples of the superiority of the stage over the screen. Griffith desires to answer this challenge, and picking up the gauntlet for the motion-picture art will use his screen version of the Shakespeare drama as the sword.

Griffith is filming "The White Rose," with Mae Marsh starred, in the South, and expects to release that picture in the wake of his mystery melodrama, "One Exciting Night," which is playing in its third week at the Mission.

Frankie Lee's Grateful Heart

When Director Frank Borzage plunged over the railing on the tenement porch set Wednesday afternoon with Frankie Lee in his arms he held the child actor above his head and took the brunt of the fall himself, saving the lad.

Yesterday morning when Borzage came on the set he discovered his chair draped with gay colored bunting, and on the set was a gorgeous silk floss pillow, handmade and everything. A note pinned to the cushion explained:

"Dear Mr. Borzage: Pleas accept this cushon as a tokin of my apreciation for your saving my life in the fall. I was awful sorry that you got bumped so bad. Yours truly, FRANKIE LEE."

Gaston Glass Entertains

Nobody in the company of "The Hero," which opens at Miller's on Sunday will go hungry on that evening if Gaston Glass can help it. He is giving a theater party and dinner on that evening. His guests will include Barbara La Marr, John Sainpolis, Doris Pawn, Ethel Shannon, David Butler, Martha Mattox and Frankie Lee.

Grace Darmond In It

Grace Darmond is one of the busiest little ladies in the films these days. Yesterday she signed for the leading role in James Oliver Curwood's "The Man From Ten Strike," which Principal Pictures will make.

George Siegman was also signed to play an important role in the picture, which is to be an elaborate one, and which will be made at the Thomas H. Ince studios.

Ethel Clayton's Car Afire

Fire enveloped Ethel Clayton's car yesterday as she was driving along Wilshire Boulevard. Miss Clayton, terrified, leaped from the car, and her chauffeur immediately put out the blaze with the aid of a patent extinguisher. Little damage was incurred.

Bluebeard's Eighth on Hand

Bringing to a close two months of careful casting, the supporting players to appear in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," a Sam Wood production for Paramount starring Gloria Swanson, have been selected.

Huntly Gordon, chosen for the role of Bluebeard, won that important leading masculine role over more than 100 competitors. Robert Agnew, recently signed to a long-term contract to play important roles in Paramount pictures, is to make his initial appearance in support of Miss Swanson.

Others in the cast include Charles Greene, Frank R. Butler, Lianne Salvor, June Elvidge and Paul Weigel.

CAREWE TO RETURN

Edwin Carewe will bring back his "The Girl of the Golden West" company from location at Sonora the early part of next week. The director has been in the mountains of Central California filming the exteriors of the David Belasco success. With the completion of the work at Sonora, Carewe will have filmed nearly one-half of the story. Interiors will be shot at the United studios. The cast of this picture includes J. Warren Kerrigan, Sylvia Breamer, Russell Simpson, Rosemary Theby, Wilfred Lucas, Nelson McDowell, Charles McHugh and Hector Sarno.

Bringing Cheer to the Audience

Myrtle Steadman

Who will appear in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," a film version of the popular stage play, concerned with war-relief work and its aftermath, to show next week at Loew's State Theater.

Program of One-Acters by Writers

Any time the Writers take it into their heads to put on one of their programs of one-act plays, there is entertainment aplenty in store for as many drama-loving citizens as can crowd into that organization's playroom.

This was demonstrated by the three plays which composed the second program offered by the screen writers last Wednesday evening. Each was a well-built, well-played drama, and each turned out to be a little gem in its own particular field.

Opening the program was a semi-serious sketch, "Clear as Crystal," by Jack Jevne. The subject was an expose of methods employed by a fake crystal gazer, and afforded the author many opportunities for lightly shaded humor. Two very theatrical climaxes following in quick succession gave a queer twist to the ending of the play. Herbert Rawlinson as Telsa, the crystal reader; Snitz Edwards as his assistant, Gladys Wynne as the girl in the cast, and Philip Hubbard as the revenge-hunting Mr. Johnson from Iowa, gave good interpretations.

The sensation of the evening, however, was scored by Raymond Hatton in "Cycle," a tragic drama by Witter Bynner. This is a short, concise affair, as given by the Writers, a very powerful little playlet, based on a rather delicate war theme. Hatton, in the role of a foreigner from the East, gave one of his very best performances. Others in the cast were Theodore Von Eltz, Patsy Ruth Miller and Katherine Murphy.

The third play was of a lighter mood. "The Sabine Women" (quoting the program:) "A somewhat impertinent treatment of a fragment of the play by Leonid Andreyeff," proved to be a very clever satire. The Writers neglected to credit the adapter. Why? Anyway, now that the sketch has been performed, we know the real low-down on the famous episode in Roman history of the abduction of the Sabine women. Carmel Myers and Wallace Beery headed the cast, although there were really no leading parts.

Recalls Days of Old Rome in Photoplay

"When in Rome do as the Romans do," was more than a mere saying to the technical department of the Joseph M. Schenck organization during the preparation for the filming of the Roman sequence of "Three Ages," Buster Keaton's initial five-reel comedy.

The picture, after taking Buster through the prehistoric period, brings back the days of the Roman Empire and deposits the sad-faced comedian in the midst of the Colosseum and other centers of Roman life. There are plenty of "doings" in the most approved Roman manner, interpreted by the coming star in the most approved Keatonesque fashion.

But just because there are hundreds of big laughs in the action does not mean that any technical details can be neglected. It has always been the aim of Mr. Schenck and his directors to be thorough in the little things that give the setting and the proper atmosphere to a film. In the "Three Ages" the costuming department of the Schenck organization is in charge of the wardrobe, from stars to extras. The absolute necessity of sticking closely to historical facts and accuracy of costume was realized by Keaton. Even in the big scenes, when more than 1000 characters appeared in full view of the camera, every act and every costume was checked to be in conformity with our knowledge of dress and manners of the Romans.

MAE MURRAY ENJOYS HER SHOPPING TRIPS

Mae Murray, dainty star of "Jazzmania" her latest photo-dramatic effort, coming to the California Sunday, gets as much enjoyment from a trip to her dressmakers or from a shopping tour as other women derive from social gatherings, golf, club affairs, music or business.

Miss Murray need be in a city only a few days in order to learn where to secure the choicest hats, shoes, furs, lingerie and gloves. She never entrusts another with her shopping. She spends hours with a sheet of paper and a pencil, or colored crayons. If they are available, designing gowns she wears in her screen productions.

No prime minister ever guarded his secrets of state more closely than Miss Murray guards the secrets of her new gowns. She does not want them to be seen by anyone until they are flashed on the screen in her pictures.

"GIRL I LOVED" TO FOLLOW GRIFFITH

A definite date for the Los Angeles premiere at the Mission Theater of Charles Ray's new photoplay, "The Girl I Loved," has not been set owing to the furore of Griffith's "One Exciting Night," which is drawing near the beginning of its fourth week.

The Ray cinema will follow next. The story is not an imaginary one, but of real and famous figures of America life, in especial the actual personal romance of James Whitcomb Riley, the poet. The production is heralded to have been done with beautiful fidelity to the life of Mid-Indiana in 1840-46 and with intense conviction on the narrative side as the thrilling episodes of Riley's love are unfolded.

ONE THING HE LIKES AND THAT'S FISHING

William Farnum would rather fish than eat.

Each interlude between pictures finds Farnum aboard his yacht with his trusty hook and line as company. He returns from such excursions with a coat of tan that gives him a style typical of the western roles he usually portrays.

His last trip was made after the completion of "Brass Commandments," which will be seen at Grauman's Million-Dollar Theater next week. It is said he deserved recuperation after that production, for he and Tom Santschi in the final scenes staged a fistic battle, which is described as the most realistic ever portrayed upon the screen. And this with all due respect to their fight in "The Spoilers," which went down in film history as the most exciting ever filmed.

FISHER IN ANOTHER NOVELTY AT LOEW'S

Another of the novelties that have characterized Max Fisher's reign will be presented Sunday at Loew's State Theater.

"A Trip to Catalina on the Good Ship Avalon" is the title of Fisher's specialty in which his artists are to syncopate their way to the magic isle. Three scenes will show the troupe on board the Avalon, the arrival at the dock and on the sandy beach at the isle. Jack Laughlin, the producer, has assembled a company of fifty for the number.

Other features of the program include the world premiere of Fred Niblo's first independent production, "The Famous Mrs. Fair," and Ciccolini in several new operatic selections.

THEDA'S COMING WEST, SAYS HUSBAND-DIRECTOR

By Edwin Schallert

Her husband has said it. Therefore we may depend on it that the announcement's true.

Theda Bara is coming West. She'll be here in two weeks, according to present anticipations, or but very little later at most.

Miss Bara's husband is Charles J. Brabin, the director, who is preparing to cinematize—as they say in browish Culver City—the story by Elinor Glyn, called "Six Days."

"I have just received a telegram from Theda," Mr. Brabin told me yesterday at Goldwyn studio, "and she has definitely decided to come West."

He also hinted that Miss Bara may appear before the camera.

It is told that Mr. Brabin has been quite lonesome for his wife ever since his arrival, and he himself indicated that he will greet her arrival with more than considerable joy.

So, providing a husband knows what he is talking about, and husbands generally think that they do, Theda won't disappoint us this time.

Anna Wong in Comedy

Anna May Wong the little Chinese actress who is featured in "Toll of the Sea," showing at Loew's State Theater this week, is now playing in a comedy being made at the Christie studio. Dorothy Devore is the star, and the film is entitled "Babies Welcome." Miss Devore is supported by George Stewart and Babe London. In addition to Miss Wong.

Gowland a Blond

Another perfectly good actor has dyed. None other this time than Gibson Gowland, who has been selected to play the title role in "McTeague," which Erich Von Stroheim is to direct for Goldwyn's.

Gowland, returned to Los Angeles from abroad a few days ago, and the first thing that he had to do was rush around and have his hair peroxided. He's now as much of a dyedinthewool blond as anybody can hope to be. You can see his shining curly hair a mile or more away on a sunny day.

Gowland's sacrifice, for it amounts to that, is entirely for art's sake. Mr. Von Stroheim didn't feel that McTeague would look natural if he wore a wig, so he insisted on the dyeing process.

Bert Lytell underwent similar pangs in order that he might become of the blond persuasion for "Rupert of Hentzau." In fact, dyeing promises eventually to supersede the wigging custom for the men, while it's the other way around for the ladies.

You'll remember Gowland no doubt for his portrayal of the Tyrolean guide in "Blind Husbands," the first picture Von Stroheim ever directed. He also played in "White Heather" directed by Maurice Tourneur, and the cave man role in "Ladies Must Live."

When he was in England he appeared in several pictures, one of which starred Peggy Hyland, who was formerly with Fox here.

NORMA'S LATEST IS FEATURE AT KINEMA

After a lapse of three years, Eugene O'Brien, one of the most popular of male screen stars, again is playing opposite Norma Talmadge in "The Voice From the Minaret," coming to the Kinema tomorrow. Frank Lloyd directed it from the novel by Robert Hichens.

Mr. Lloyd has assembled an important cast to support Miss Talmadge. In it are such players as Edwin Stevens, Winter Hall, Carl Gerard, Claire DuBrey, Lillian Lawrence and Albert Prisco.

Billed with this feature is "The Message of Emile Coue," in which the noted Frenchman, personally appears in a two-reel explanation of his theory of curing disease by autosuggestion.

"APRIL SHOWERS" TO BE FINISHED SOON

Next week the final scenes of "April Showers," the Tom Forman production, will be made at the Louis B. Mayer studios. The final scenes, which take place in a prizefight arena, are the climax shots of the photoplay, which those who have been watching the rushes declare to be the best of Forman's directorial career.

Ralph Faulkner enacts one of the leading masculine roles. Kenneth Harlan has another. The featured feminine player is Colleen Moore. A strong cast supports these three.

Bleeding gums herald Pyorrhea's coming

When the gums bleed, be on your guard.

That's Nature's warning of Pyorrhea's coming.

The odds are 4 to 1 against you, for Pyorrhea strikes four persons out of every five past forty, and thousands younger, menacing their teeth and undermining their health.

At the first sign of bleeding gums, consult your dentist. Then brush your teeth, morning and night, with Forhan's For the Gums, a scientific dentifrice that, if used consistently and used in time, will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress.

Forhan's For the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S. Used as a dentifrice, it will keep your teeth white and clean and your gums firm and healthy. It is pleasant to the taste. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

LINDSAY TAKES CITRUS HONORS

High Standing Won Despite Damage to Fruit

Two Youths Charged With Tulare Robbery

Visalia Realtors to Greet Association Heads

LINDSAY, March 1.—Lindsay received seventeen awards at the National Orange Show at San Bernardino in spite of the fact that twelve boxes of oranges were damaged in a railroad wreck. The fruit was entered by the American Fruit Growers, Inc., and was in charge of T. E. Anderson.

Among the awards were the following first prizes: Best four boxes of St. Michaels; best five specimens of Washington navels; best commercial packed box of Washington navels; best tray, twelve, Washington navels. Second prize: best four boxes of Valencias; best four boxes of seedlings; best four boxes of Ruby bloods.

Lindsay took second place in the grand sweepstakes; second on the lemon sweepstakes and third on the grapefruit sweepstakes. The town has twice won the sweepstakes, but the damaged fruit this year made it impossible.

YOUTHS ARRAIGNED

Roy Carter and Buren Kitchens of Tulare were taken into custody and arraigned before Judge D. P. Kendricks on a charge of burglary in connection with the disappearance of the safe of the Tulare Theater some weeks ago from which more than $300 was stolen. The youths pleaded not guilty and were admitted to bail of $1000 each by Judge Kendrick. The date of the preliminary hearing has not been set.

The Visalia Realty Board is making plans for a banquet and entertainment of officials of the State Realty Association who will arrive at Visalia Saturday. This visit is in the nature of an educational tour for the benefit of the realtors. Legislation and legal safeguarding of investors will be discussed.

A Spanish banquet at Estrada's will open the meeting. Realty men from other towns are expected to be guests. President Frazier O. Reed of San Francisco, Secretary Glenn D. Willaman and other State officials will be present.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

I, I, I: I, MYSELF; I
THE HISTORY OF ME BY ME
CHAPTER XLVII—NO PINS IN ME

I do not have any pins in my wardrobe because I wear the pinless kind. (You can have the name of the kind I wear by sending a self-addressed and stamped envelope to my doctor and asking for it.)

If I did have pins in my clothes, my mamma would never put them in her mouth when she took them out, as many mammas do. Do you know why? Because she knows how much I admire her and she knows that anything I see her do I would do too. And pins and needles and such things in a baby's mouth may cause a great deal of trouble.

If you laugh or you cry or speak or choke, they are very liable to get in the lung passage—the trachea, or the stomach passage—the esophagus, and they may choke you to death. Or they may go further and get into the lungs or stomach and be very, very uncomfortable, you can imagine.

Sometimes things taken into the mouth in babyhood and childhood and breathed in, may lie imbedded in the lungs for years and cause a lot of trouble until an X-ray is taken which shows where they are so that a specialist in that work can remove them.

So, mammas, my doctor wants me to warn you never to let your babies see you put anything into your month that ought not to be swallowed. And never put pins or tacks and things like that where your babies can get them. You must remember that we babies think everything is good to eat. Our instinct to eat is very strongly developed so everything we get our little hands on goes to our mouths.

When I am a little older I shall expect to have my hands smartly slapped whenever I put anything I pick up into my mouth. Then perhaps I shall learn that I must not do that. Do you think that is cruel, mammas? I don't think so. I am sure I shall thank my mamma when I am old enough to understand why she caused me the little pain. I surely do not want to make my tender little body a pin-cushion or a storehouse for bits of toys, nails, stone, etcetera, that I may get hold of when I reach the creeping and investigating age. Besides, I find this world very pleasant, and I want to live a long time. I've got a lot of work to do.

Doctor told us how a friend of hers taught her little 2-year-old niece not to put pins in her mouth. The little girl's mamma died and she was left in the care of her aunt. This auntie was a dressmaker and not in a position to have a nurse for her little neice all of the time, so she had to have her in her working room part of the time. Of course, there were many pins around in such work, and the auntie knew she could not watch the little girl all of the time and do any work, too.

So she took the baby on her lap three times a day for a week or so and gave her a box of pins to play with. Every time she put one to her mouth the auntie slapped her hands and said, "No, no!" After that she watched her for a while, but she never saw a pin go to her mouth. Apparently if the little girl did get one in her mouth she never swallowed it or got it in her lungs, for she had perfect health and is now a mamma herself and has a little girl of her own.

However, Doctor is not sure that this method would be successful with all children. She thinks the best way is to rely on the smart slaps on the hands in case anything is picked up and put in the mouth—this must be done at the time, of course, else the child will not associate the habit with the pain—and then as far as is possible to keep undesirable things away from little children. Don't forget the pins in your own mouth, will you, mammas?

I'll tell you more about this subject next week. Au revoir.

SAYS HOME TRAINING IS HUGE NEED

Self-Discipline Should be Taught Children, Advice of Unitarian Speaker

Dr. William Laurence Sullivan of New York spoke last night at the First Unitarian Church, on "The Christian Home, Its Powers and Its Perils."

"The most difficult of all arts, which is the living together of the adventurous spirit of youth along with the prudent wisdom of age; the adjustment of different temperaments and tastes; the training of other minds as well as our own; the educating of noble youth for service to God and country as well as in personal character, these are the purposes of the home, the highest and the hardest that human beings can attempt," he said.

"The home begins with youth. What youth is the home is likely to be. And youth can in no way better prepare itself than by remembering that the young men and women of today are to be the parents of tomorrow, of the America of tomorrow. For young men and women I propose two words that summarize all duty and responsibility. The two words are honor, strength.

"Teach children. Have no patience with the view that they should grow up destitute of the lessons your experience can give. Teach honor. Teach power. Teach self-discipline as the guide of impulse, for one who knows no other master than impulse is irretrievably ruined."

Tonight Dr. Westwood will preach on "Can the Liberal Faith Save Civilization?"

Two Arrested as Suspects in Robbery Series

A series of at least three major robberies is believed to have been cleared up by police yesterday in the capture of Fred Scott, 32 years of age, and Samuel McCardell, 42, in a house at 6312 Pasadena avenue. The men are said to have prison records.

According to Detective Lieutenants Wave Box and E. J. O'Merrill, who made the arrests, the men have already been connected with three robberies and are believed to have participated in several others during the past two months.

They are charged with the robbery of the home of G. K. Fitch at 901 West Avenue Sixty-six on February 11, last, when $500 in jewelry was taken; the home of Mrs. John Heims, 6308 Ruby street, robbed of $1000 on February 14, and the home of E. O. Stumps, 6324 Meridian street, from which $500 in jewelry was taken on last Christmas night.

Among the articles taken from the Stumps home was a picture of Mrs Stumps in a silver frame. Detectives said this picture, without a frame, was found in the suspects' room, while another woman's picture was in the frame.

APPRAISER IS ROBBED

Stranger Asking Directions Draws Pistol and Takes Gems

When Edward S. Ellis, licensed appraiser, stepped outside the door of his home last night, at 2554 West Eighth street, to direct a stranger to a near-by garage, the stranger drew a revolver and robbed Mr. Ellis of a diamond ring and scarfpin insured for $2900.

Mr. Ellis stated to Police Lieutenant Amman that he thought he had seen the man earlier in the evening, prowling about with a flashlight. He was able to furnish a description of the bandit which the police believe will lead to an arrest.
